Fuel Oil, Gasoline Prices Up

Curbs Hinted On Exports To U.S.

Times News Services

Canadian oil refineries were assured today by federal energy minister Donald MacDonald that their future needs will be met even if it means limiting oil exports to the U.S. which is now suffering a severe fuel shortage.

MacDonald emphasized however that there is no evidence Canada is faced with an imminent petroleum shortage and there are no immediate plans to impose controls on exports to the U.S.

Meanwhile, the White House has authorized more than a fourfold increase in heating oil imports to ease the fuel shortages threatening a six-state region of the midwest.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness said that the lifting of the import quotas would mean some 252 million additional gallons of No. 2 heating oil would become available to most of the nation over the next 90 days.

Major airlines rationed their jet fuel at Kennedy International Airport today because of what industry officials called a "very serious" shortage.

The shortage was attributed to a cut in deliveries to airlines by major petroleum companies straining to meet demands posted by the fuel shortage.

Because of the shortage at Kennedy, the airlines most affected are taking on extra-heavy loads at other cities before flying to New York so they have enough fuel for flights to their next destination.

While the weather took its share of the blame, the OEP laid at least part of the responsibility on Midwest refineries it said persisted in producing gasoline at a time when heating oils began to run short.

The OEP said some 70 refineries in nine states have been producing twice as much gasoline as heating oils every week of the last three months.

A glut of gasoline led to gas wars in Michigan and Wisconsin that have resulted in prices seven cents a gallon lower than sourrounding states, the OEP said.

"The new quotas will bring heating oils from the Virgin Islands into East Coast ports," a spokesman for the LOG JAM ON INDIAN RIVER near Tofino is one of several which clog the once free flowing salmon-producing waterway. Tributaries of the river are also filled with debris and stumps from logging operations and fish are no longer able to reach their spawning grounds.

Imperial Oil has increased wholesale gasoline prices one cent per gallon and wholesale fuel oil two cents per gallon effective this morning and other oil companies indicated they will follow suit.

Victoria Imperial fuel distributors this morning increased heating oil prices to 25.3 cents per gallon from 23.3 and gas stations are expected to increase their prices one cent per gallon Thursday.

The Automotive Retailers' Association is meeting this afternoon to consider its reaction but secretary-manager J. Lloyd Kinneard said service stations would have little choice but to increase pump prices.

Prices fluctuate from station to station but average price in Victoria is 52.9 cents regular and 57.9 cents premium, one cent above the average Vancouver price.

Pump price increases would take effect immediately if approved as expected this afternoon.

13-CENT INCREASE

An arbitration board has awarded Petrofina Canada an increase in the wellhead price to 16 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, up from 13 cents, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Petrofina sells to Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd., B.C.'s major transporter of natural gas. Westcoast in turn sells to B.C. Hydro, among others.

Customers of B.C. Hydro pay $1.20 per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas. For Westcoast to increase its prices to B.C. Hydro would require negotiations and hearings before the National Energy Board.

B.C. Hydro has a long-term supply contract with Westcoast at a fixed price running until 1987.

Imperial oil announced Tuesday it will pay 20 cents more per barrel for crude oil.

As a result, it will raise the wholesale price of gas, one cent per gallon and heating oil, diesel and turbo fuel two cents a gallon across Canada.

In addition, in western Canada only, the price of industrial and consumer gas will go up two cents a gallon wholesale.

Industrial gasoline is sold to major industries in bulk. Consumer gasoline is sold for other than highway use. Consumer sales include those to farmers, marinas and small commercial customers.

The selective increases brought criticism from Kinneard who said all wholesale prices should be identical.

DIFFERENT PRICES

"Service station operators cannot understand why the same product should have different wholesale prices for different customers," he said.

"Selective price increases are discriminatory. We feel gasoline should sell at one wholesale price to everyone and let marketing conditions govern the retail price."

He added that Imperial's increased costs for crude oil amounted to little more than one-half a cent per gallon and they were recovering the cost at a rate of a cent a gallon.

"That's a pretty healthy recovery rate."

Imperial is paying 20 cents more per barrel containing 35 gallons of crude oil.

Crude oil costs vary from $2.39 per barrel to $3.19 per barrel depending upon production costs but all will go up the identical 20 cents.

These include:

The growing shortage of world supplies of oil;

Higher crude oil prices being paid outside North America;

Increased taxes on oil com-

POSTIES VOTE ACCEPTANCE

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Postal workers have voted to accept conciliation board proposals and have rejected by a narrow margin a recommendation by their national negotiators to turn down the proposed terms.

Results of the balloting announced today by union leaders show that 10,128 full-time and 1,089 part-time postal workers went against their committee recommendation.

Voting for the negotiating committee suggestion were 9,047 full-time workers and 432 part-time employees.

Young Firing Upheld

A majority decision by a three-man board of reference has upheld the Sept. 8 firing of Campbell River high school principal John Young.

John Laxton, counsel for Young, promptly said it was most likely the decision would be appealed.

Young, who has been providing a free ombudsman service in Campbell River since he was dismissed, says he is looking for a new job.

A lengthy set of reasons for the board's decision, which was opposed by Lake Cowichan schoolteacher member Robert Wilson, was submitted to Laxton, school board lawyer J. S. Clyne and the department of education.

Adam Robertson, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, which financed Young's appeal, said if Young wanted to pursue the appeal further his request would be considered by the federation executive next weekend.

Young's first reaction to the decision was:

"Obviously I am not guilty of any misconduct or neglect of duty. I had every expectation that the decision would have been in my favor."

Young would not comment

Logging Labelled Salmon Killer

Ten local organizations have joined together to assist the Save Our Salmon Association in its fight for the survival of the Pacific salmon threatened by coastal logging operations on Vancouver Island.

In telegrams sent today jointly to federal environmental Minister Jack Davis and B.C. Resource Minister Bob Williams, they urge immediate action to stop the devastation of hundreds of streams and rivers on the Island.

Davis is asked to abolish the "presently prevailing practice of leniency towards transgressions against the Fisheries Act," such as yarding across streams, driving motorized vehicles across creeks and leaving debris and stumps in rivers.

It asks that "all laws safeguarding our fish resource be supported by strict enforcement.

Williams is asked to revise the existing guide lines for logging operations to incorporate adequate provisions for the preservation of fish streams. This would include leaving a belt of trees along creeks and rivers and controlling cutting operations on salmon stream watersheds.

In addition, the two governments are urged to co-operate on all matters regarding fish preservation and to undertake a detailed survey of salmon streams in B.C.

The province and Ottawa are also asked to undertake a stream clean up under the summer works program. The costs of such a program to be borne equally by the federal environmental department, the B.C. department of recreation and conservation and the forest industry.

The Save Our Salmon Association is composed of commercial fishermen.

Organizations supporting the association are: Amalgamated Conservation Society, Federation of B.C. Naturalists; James Bay Anglers Association; Sierra Club of Victoria; Victoria SPEC; Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association; Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs; United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union; Victoria-Sooke-Sidney; Victoria Canoe Club; Windsor Park Neighbourhood Group.

Mike Hill of Ucluelet, secretary, said other organizations on the mainland are expected to join in the fight for a new deal for B.C. fisheries resources.

Public action to stop damage to salmon streams is sparked by logging operations in the Staghorn Creek and Indian River area, near Tofino-Ucluelet.

The rivers and creeks were once choked with fish, but logging operations now have seriously depleted the spawning grounds of the salmon according to Hill.

"You cut down trees along stream banks and that's all you will get out of the land for another seventy years," he said. "But if the streams are protected, they will produce tens of thousands of salmon year after year."

"It's incredible how we have tolerated for so many years such waste," he added. "Fish are not only important to man but to other life forms. We are destroying a bountiful resource."

Turner Defends Economy: 'Strong Despite Setbacks'

Times News Service

Smarting from Opposition attacks on the high rate of unemployment shown in newly-released figures, Finance Minister John Turner told the Commons Tuesday that the Canadian economy is basically strong, despite a "temporary pause" in growth last year.

Turner confessed that he was "disturbed and disappointed" by the figures but he laid the blame for them indirectly to crop problems and strikes late in 1972.

Because of these problems, the rate of increase in national output declined, the merchandise trade balance deteriorated, unemployment increased and prices rose sharply, he said.

To opposition cries of "fairy tale," Turner said indications are that the economy is recovering — the rate of price increases has slowed, industrial production has "rebounded sharply," labor income and consumer spending are up and the trade picture has improved dramatically.

Turner's speech was delayed while Liberals, New Democrats and Social Crediters banded together to vote down a Conservative motion that the House adjourn debate on the Throne Speech so that an increase in old-age pensions could be considered immediately.

The motion was defeated 154-104 with five members absent from the House.

NDP support of the motion would have meant its success with the present House standing — Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 15, Independent 2.

Later Conservative speakers accused the NDP of abandoning their principles to support the Liberal government.

Peter Reilly, freshman member for Ottawa West, accused the NDP of an unholy marriage with the Liberals.

But Ed Nelson (NDP-Burnaby-Seymour) countered that the Conservatives would be even quicker to jump between the sheets in a marriage of convenience because of "their lust for power."

Speaking to reporters, veteran New Democrat and higher-pension advocate Stanley Knowles lashed out at the Conservative motion:

"It was a farce and it comes from a party that refused to agree to $150 a month for the old-age pensioners, has refused to say where it stands, and we think that this was a vote that was just designed to mislead the old-age pensioners, that it was just fun and games and playing fast and loose."

Since the government did not have pension-increase leg-

FOOD PRICES TAKE MASSIVE JUMP IN U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Wholesale farm product prices in the U.S. went up 5.7 per cent in December, a 68.4 per cent rate of rise on an annual basis and their largest one-month increase in 26 years, the labor department said Tuesday.

The massive food price rise, which the department blamed "chiefly" on "unusual weather patterns," drove the over-all wholesale price index upward by a seasonally adjusted 1.6 per cent for the month, or a 19.2 per cent annual rate, the most it has gone up in any month since 1951.

Consumer hopes for a slowdown in food price inflation in 1973 have been further dimmed by a new government forecast that prices in the first six months of the year will rise 50 per cent faster than predicted earlier.

INCENTIVES GET NOD

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Tuesday that while the New Democratic Party government hopes to get a greater share of the profits from mining in the province, it will not forget that incentives are neeessary for mineral exploration.

"We realize that the hope of the jackpot is the catalyst that urges people on in exploration and we do not wish to destroy this incentive," he told the annual meeting of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

"But since the minerals belong to the people we feel that they are not getting their proper share of the jackpot."

The chamber was told by retiring president E. H. Caldwell that mineral production in British Columbia is heading for a record in 1973 after setting one in 1972.

He said preliminary provincial government figures indicate mineral production in 1972 was $631 million, a 20-per-cent increase over 1971.

A further production increase this year is indicated by a full year's production by six large mines which started operation in 1972.

Canadian mining as a whole also had record production, he said, but dividends dropped 24 per cent from 1971 and a number of companies are operating at a loss.

Lumber Hikes 'Criminal'

Highways Minister Robert Strachan has termed lumber price increases over the last year "criminally irresponsible" and warned private industry to expect economic controls if the trend continues.

In a speech at the Empress on Tuesday, Strachan said the lumber industry is taking advantage of a good market and the increases have nothing to do with the "puny" wage increase last granted to the International Woodworkers of America union.

He quoted a Victoria Times story, saying that lumber prices have risen by between 30 and 70 per cent over the last year and there have been 13 price increases in at least one type of lumber in the year.

Strachan said that the IWA settlement added only 15 cents to the cost of 1,000 feet of lumber.

"And I suggest that that is criminal irresponsibility on the part of the major industry of this province to subject this province to that kind of price increase."

He said it is especially bad at a time when there is a housing shortage and at a time when the forest industry's "profit picture is higher than it's been for years."

The minister said that "if this sort of price increases continue, you'll be faced inevitably with price controls and wage controls."

"But I suggest to you that if we get to the point of wage and price controls, it can't stop there.

"If we have wage and price controls, you then must also have profit controls, you must also have interest controls, and you must have export-import controls.

"And I say to you that the lumber industry of British Columbia is driving us up that road to compulsory regimentation much faster than the IWA of this socialist government is doing," the minister said.

He said the kind of price increases experienced in lumber sales is "the kind of luxury, the kind of medicine that will be fatal.

"It won't be the socialist medicine that will be fatal. It will be the kind of private enterprise medicine that will be fatal because we simply can't afford the luxury of that kind of freedom any more," Strachan said.

The minister added that it is neither the intention or the wish of the NDP government to have economic controls of the kind he described, but "there has to be someone in the driver's seat."

Another Defeat For Young

on whether he considered the hearing fair.

The board decision, received my Campbell River school district Tuesday, came five weeks after th eterminaton of a 10-day hearing which heard 11 witnesses and received 103 documentary exhibits.

The school board based its dismissal of Young on formal grounds of "misconduct and neglect of duty," which it backed up with 10 pages of reasons reaching back to Young's appointment in 1965.

Central to the hearing was a set of rules imposed by the board on Young's school during the summer holidays.

Young was suspended before the start of school last fall, although he had agreed to impose the rules.

He was dismissed a few days later.

Campbell River high school under Young's principalship was based on a "collegiate" philosophy under which students were encouraged to adopt "freedom with responsibility."

The philosophy encountered problems with the Public Schools Act, particularly with regulations governing "regular" attendance.

panies imposed by the Alberta government effective Jan. 1.

Increased costs of exploration and development.

In Ottawa Energy Minister Donald S. Macdonald said no government action is contemplated on the increased prices announced by Imperial.

He said the increase appears to be in line with a general increase in industrial costs "and it was probably to be expected."

Macdonald said the increase would appear to involve "cost recovery" as opposed to any "structural change."

Imperial Oil chairman W. O. Twaits said in Toronto said the increases reflected the increased costs of obtaining crude oil.

"In addition, inflationary effects on the costs of new equipment, plant maintenance, contract labor and materials plus the costs of more stringent environmental reglations have to be met by the company," he said.

'Such costs cannot be absorbed if the company is to be able to attract the capital required to finance the developments which it must undertake to provide its share of future Canadian oil energy needs."

He said that while oil wholesale prices, including the present increases, had gone up 16.8 per cent since 1967, the cost of living had gone up 21.1 per cent, wages 45 per cent and electricity 24 per cent.

In Victoria some gas stations reporting prices two cents above the current Vancouver level indicated they would not increase their prices. The price 53.9 cents regular and 58.9 premium will become common for Imperial stations.

Some stations will be selling at the Vancouver average of 52.9 and 57.9.

Thieves Take Cash, Liquor

A police report today showed $374 was taken from a cash drawer. Also missing are eight to 10 cases of beer, 12 bottles of champagne and about 26 bottles of wine.

SOVIET ARMS FOR SYRIA

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has completed a massive airlift of arms to Syria believed to have included an unspecified number of MiG-21 aircraft to replace losses suffered recently by the Syrian air force, diplomatic sources disclosed Tuesday.

The airlift was carried out during November and December and involved roughly 40 medium- and long-range Soviet transport planes, including Antonov-22s capable of carrying 220,000-pound payloads each, the sources said.

More than a dozen Syrian MiG-21 jets were reported to have been shot down in sporadic Israeli-Syrian aerial battles during the past five months.

The airlift was described as the most massive Soviet shipment by air of weapons to Syria. The Soviets had airlifted weapons to Syria during September and early October using 20 or so medium-range Antonov-12 transport planes.

About 150 new Soviet military advisers were reported to have been flown to Syria in the September-October airlift but there was disagreement among Western experts on whether that shipment included any important new missile systems.

The arms shipments to Syria indicated Moscow's continued interest in bolstering its position in the Arab world. There was speculation among Western sources that the latest shipments also may have included sophisticated low altitude SAM-3 anti-aircraft missiles in anticipation of major Israeli strikes.

According to official Israeli accounts, Syria has lost 43 aircraft in aerial flights since 1967, nearly half of those shot down during a string of clashes in the last five months.

islation ready, said Knowles, an adjournment would simply have meant stopping debate for the day and going through the same farce the next day.

Reilly also accused Prime Minister Trudeau of delivering a "disputatious, discursive, didactic diatribe" and establishing "a new low in gutter politics."

Meanwhile, Trudeau sat a few feet away at his desk, imperturbably doing paperwork.

Turner said he soon would produce a new budget with major measures to reduce unemployment, encourage steady, balanced economic growth and discourage high inflation.

But he gave no indication of tax cuts and both New Democrat and Conservative spokesmen described his speech as virtually meaningless.

Energy Shortage in U.S.

Office of Emergency Preparedness said.

"Some of this fuel will make its way to the midwest, but its primary purpose will be to divert Gulf Coast shipments of heating oils to the Midwest that had previously been committed to Eastern customers."

The midwest shortage was triggered by a cold wave that shows no signs of abating, though it did turn into a dry cold that allowed some harvesting of corn and grains in Nebraska and Iowa.

Drier weather also allowed more barge and truck shipments of heating oil into the Midwest, though a shortage of diesel fuel tied up barges on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers that had been contracted to carry heating oils into the Midwest.

"These same barges were to be used to transport wheat out of the Midwest for sale to the Soviet Union," an OEP spokesman declared. "We don't know when these barges will begin to move freely. A lot depends on the weather."

The Federal Power Commission told the OEP that shortages of natural gas had spread from the Midwest into parts of New Mexico, Arizona and California as the cold wave spread into these same southwestern regions.

"El Paso natural gas is cutting back on customers in this region that can use alternate fuels," an FPC official said.

More snow and cold weather is on tap today for the already shivering U.S. Atlantic coast and Southland as the second major storm in three days rumbled over the area.

Snow blanketed much of Northern California and sprawled through the Central and Southern Intermountain region over the central and Southern Rockies and into the western portion of the central and southern plains.

Thousands of Atlanta residents cooked in fondue pots, dined by candlelight and shivered through another night of subfreezing temperatures without power Tuesday night and the weatherman offered little hope of relief.

Ice storm warnings were posted for south-central Texas and portions of southeastern Texas while travellers' advisories were in effect for most of the remainder of southern Texas.

Freezing rain was expected to move eastward today to plague the Gulf Coast states.

Snow and freezing rain resulted in advisories for western Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas.

And, in Parchman, Miss., three convicts who broke out of the state penitentiary, but apparently missed connections with a getaway car turned themselves in after braving freezing temperatures for five hours.

"They were iced over from their knees down when they gave up," a prison spokesman said.

the weather

The current cold spell over the southern half of B.C. has lasted for a full week and has set many record minimum temperatures from Vancouver Island to the Kootenays and north to the Cariboo. However milder weather is in sight and a storm some 600 miles southwest of Victoria will bring clouds to the coast this evening. Snow flurries will spread inland Thursday morning to be followed on the coast first by wet snow and then by rain. Icy winds at or near gale force will continue to blow out of mainland inlets for the next 24 hours at least.

Blackout Shrouds Sessions in Paris

Times News Service

PARIS — Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met today for the third session of their new round of peace talks. A news blackout again was clamped around the meetings in a suburban villa owned by the French Communist Party.

Meeting separately from Kissinger and Tho, technical experts of both sides continued their discussion of the details of a possible future agreement.

A meeting of the experts Tuesday lasted for more than eight hours and was one of the longest they have held.

Meanwhile, anti-aircraft fire echoed through Hanoi again today for the first time since Dec. 30 when the United States confined its bombing to below the 20th parallel.

Shortly before, the capital's public alert system had announced the presence of a U.S. reconnaissance plane about 25 miles south of Hanoi. It did not say whether the plane was piloted or not.

It is not the first time since the suspension of the bombing of Hanoi that "spy planes" have entered the Hanoi region.

The United States command announced today the loss of another fighter-bomber over North Vietnam and a helicopter in South Vietnam just below the demilitarized zone. It said all eight Americans aboard the two aircraft are missing.

This raised to 35 the number of U.S. aircraft the command has reported lost in Indochina since Dec. 18, when the two-week aerial blitz on Hanoi and Haiphong was launched.

The command said Viet Cong reports of fighting between South Vietnamese and United States soldiers at Da Nang air base "were a lot of bunk."

We have no reports of any disturbances," a spokesman said.

He said the report was likely based on Monday's accidental bombing of Da Nang air field by U.S. aircraft.

VANCOUVER RAP

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday unanimously expressed "grave concern" over the United States' bombing of North Vietnam.

The council resolution describes bombing as "barbarous" in a war that "cannot be resolved by military means."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Parliament, the two houses of the U.S. Congress, and both sides at the Paris peace talks.

LONDON FLU TIGHTENS GRIP ON MOSCOW

MOSCOW (CP) — London flu has gripped Moscow. Hospitals were filling up with emergency cases Tuesday as workers donned protective face masks.

More than 70,000 Muscovites a day are catching the virus and medical officials reported that cases of the "extremely contagious" malady are increasing.

Emergency measures taken this week in the Soviet capital indicated the outbreak was graver than initially reported by Soviet officials to the World Health Organization in Geneva last week.

Medical authorities have warned the public not to try to treat themselves.

"As soon as you see a slight sign of flu, call a doctor," they warned. Don't go out."

Newspapers stressed that workers who feel under the weather should stay at home and not use public transportation systems.

Shop workers and others connected with public services have all been vaccinated and gauze face masks have been distributed to salespeople in the city's food stores.

B.C. Officials At U.S. Energy Hearing

The British Columbia government has sent an official of the industrial development, trade and commerce department to Washington, D.C. to observe hearings on United States energy requirements a spokesman in the premier's office said today.

Jack Meredith, director of economics and statistics in the department, will attend two days of hearing, beginning today by the U.S. Senate on the subject of oil import quotas and the question of Mackenzie Valley pipeline to move Alaskan oil to the U.S.

Premier Dave Barrett said Nov. 25 that his New Democratic Party government had "no intention of sitting back while someone else in another jurisdiction discusses our resources."

He said provincial secretary Ernie Hall would attend the hearings Dec. 11 and 12, since postponed to this week, but would make no submissions to the hearings. Meredith is to report back to the provincial government on the hearings.

He will join two observers sent by the Alberta government.

NO ACTION SEEN ON WARD VOTE

It appears no action will be taken on a recent opinion poll showing Greater Victoria ratepayers favor a return to the ward system of electing the school board.

The poll, taken at the Dec. 9 municipal elections, resulted in a near tie, but election by wards, with 7,888 votes, had the slight edge over election at large, with 7,497 votes.

School board trustees, at committee meetings Tuesday night, generally expressed the feeling that the close vote indicated indecision on the part of voters and no action was recommended.

"I'm surprised at how fast the trustees have changed their minds on this matter," Trustee Phillip Ney argued.

"How can we ignore this vote in the face of the majority rule of democracy?"

Lavina Greenwood argued that the poll was set up purely to gauge public opinion and to stir up discussion of the issue, which has been debated since the district abolished the ward system in favor of at-large voting two years ago.

"I think it's an east versus west situation," board chairman Peter Bunn said."

"To go back to the ward system would be a great mistake."

In most polling areas the vote was split down the middle except for Esquimalt which tipped the scales in favor of wards.

District superintendent A. J. Longmore pointed out that the issue first came before the board because Esquimalt was complaining of no representation on the board and the two new trustees, John Duffus and William Ross, are both from Esquimalt.

Ross ended the discussion by pointing out the board should find out why Esquimalt was dissatisfied with their treatment by the board and should take steps to remedy the problems.

NFB Meeting Here

Regional film production will be a major topic at a meeting of the board of governors of the National Film Board, which opens Thursday at the Empress Hotel.

The board will be looking at its regional production office in Vancouver, which started making films several months ago, with the idea of opening similar production offices in other Canadian cities, a spokesman said today.

The two-day meeting, one of four board meetings a year, starts in Victoria Thursday and will continue at the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver Friday.

The nine-member board started holding its meetings outside head office in Montreal last July, when they went to St. John's, Newfoundland.

The meeting is closed to the press.

LEASE CARS TURNED BACK

TORONTO (CP) — The commercial registration appeal tribunal was told Tuesday that about 120 automobiles used by Cross Canada Car Leasing Ltd. had their mileage turned back before being sold to the public.

The tribunal is hearing an appeal by David Allan Robertson, a Cross Canada official, and Camp Cars Ltd., a Toronto firm that sells Cross Canada cars. The firms are appealing the revocation of their provincial registration as motor vehicle dealers.

Clay Powell of the Ontario attorney-general's office said he had documentary evidence of leased-car mileage being turned back before the cars were sold, often through the Camp lot.

John Glover, a Toronto photographer, testified he was refunded the full purchase price of $2,722 for a car after he learned the mileage had been turned back to 31,190 from 51,000 miles.

Off to a Promising Start

The direction of current public concern and the consequent course of council activity may be seen in Mayor Peter Pollen's inaugural address emphasis on planning, land use, beautification and transportation. Both in his introductory speech and in his choice of committee chairmen for key jobs in these fields, the trend of Victoria's civic affairs is plain to see. There can be no question that the public in general will approve.

In Aldermen Bawlf, Hood, Tindall and Young, the Council has some new blood and it is hoped that their combined efforts, against the background of members of longer experience, may produce some attractive and innovative ideas for city improvement. It is clear, in view of some council decisions of the past and the problems of today to which they have led, that the city does not yet have the powers that it requires for complete control of the community's development.

So far, the city has been more or less at the mercy — if one could call it that — of any developer who came to town with an idea for a major building project. Sometimes the ideas are appropriate ones, in that they produce local assets both functionally and visually. Far too often, unfortunately, they produce permanent problems for the city by reason of their appearance, size, siting and disruption of established traffic and service facilities.

The "Zoning, Environmental and Land Development" committee, under Alderman Young, the "Transportation and Land Use Planning" committee under Alderman Bawlf, and the "Housing and Community Relations" committee under Alderman Hood, will therefore be looked to with particular interest for a major contribution to the community during the coming year.

Mr. Bawlf's committee will be concerned with "the balanced development of transportation and land use" — a tall order — along with planning of malls and preservation of "heritage buildings". Mr. Young's committee will produce programs to implement the Bawlf committee recommendations, as well as work in co-operation with the Advisory Planning Commission. With authority in "zoning and measures to protect and enhance the environment" the committee will hold a key position in the city's administration.

Mayor Pollen's emphasis on housing as a major concern of the city this year will give particular prominence to Col. Hood's committee, with its concern for building standards in housing, the development of housing, and communication with the community on matters within his jurisdiction.

The inaugural address gives weight to long-range, community planning and the need to register approved plans for various neighborhoods with the Minister of Municipal Affairs so that future councils will follow the overall pattern. Obviously, a heavy responsibility will fall on the persons who devise and register the plans, and it is here that the voice of the community should be heard and considered. There is not going to be unanimity on any such complex problems, of course, but the general philosophy and hopes of the people of this favored city should be the directing force in the evolution of the area.

Already there is a wide consensus on numerous concepts that are admirable and worthy. It is late, but not too late, to be rescued, for instance, from the hazards of what Mayor Pollen refers to as "expedient or spot-zoning by impulsive or misled councils." All power to the Registered Community Plan system if it can at last protect us from that.

"... now hang still for a moment and I'll explain who's to blame for this and why ..."

What's the Limit on Wood?

Building suppliers have expressed their deep concern over rocketing lumber prices — citing increases of from 30 to 70 per cent on different grades and sizes last year — and have predicted continuing increases in the months ahead. What they have not mentioned in the present instance is the height to which prices can go before prospective purchasers turn to alternatives.

This is a problem once discussed by Greater Victoria's School Board, for instance, as it contemplated substitute materials for lumber in a major construction program.

A number of causes may be cited for the rise in prices. General inflation is as large an influence in the timber business as in any other. Higher wage contracts balanced by the industry's efforts to keep abreast of the escalation, have played their parts. Demands by importing countries sustain the upward trend. British Columbia's lumber industry deals in a world market, and domestic users are competing with foreign consumers for the product.

These are understandable factors in the over-all rise in prices. But they invite a question of importance to more than the individuals immediately engaged in the forest and construction industries. How long before buyer resistance sets in? That in turn draws attention to the fact that British Columbia, one of the most favored regions in the world as far as softwoods are concerned, still counts the ultimate returns from the forest industries as the base of about half its production dollar.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Four Tests of Friendship

WASHINGTON — For some 20 years or more the United States enjoyed a highly favorable balance in trade with Canada, its largest trading partner. Only in the last three years has the balance swung the other way. Why, then, should the United States be so disturbed, so insistent on a better deal for itself? And what are the specific complaints against Canadian commercial policy on which it now seeks redress?

The answer to the first question is quite simple: true enough, the United States says, the advantages usually lay with it in the past, and may do so again in the future, but in the present Canada's drain on the neighbor's financial and economic system has become intolerable.

By one means or another the United States' total balance-of-payments deficit must be reduced and Canada, recently in large surplus, should help to reduce it, not alone as a neighborly act but in the interests of world stability, Canada's own self-interest. The alternative, if the United States cannot solve its exchange problem, is tragic damage for its partners as well as itself.

Specific Grievances

The question of specific American grievances against Canada is more complicated and little understood by the public in either nation. Stripped of the political rhetoric and the experts' jargon, the United States' case includes four main points.

First — a minor concern: Canada's duty-free allowance on tourist purchases in the United States is lower than the American figure and should be raised to approximately the same level, as it probably will be.

Second — a major concern — the existing joint defence-sharing arrangements are obviously unfair to the United States. In agreeing to buy military products, or their components, from Canada the United States understood that it would sell roughly an equal volume here. Instead, according to the latest American figures so far incomplete and disputed in Ottawa, the United States ran a deficit of about half a billion dollars in this single category of trade during the past year.

Third — the most prickly issue pending between the two nations — Canada has unfairly exploited the so-called Free Trade Automotive Pact with the United States. Thereby it has piled up huge surpluses unforeseen at the beginning and now clearly much more than the United States can afford.

When the contract was negotiated the United States understood that Canada would remove its tariff on American automotive products step by step over a period of about five years. That time has passed but the tariff on privately-imported automobiles still remains. As a result, the United States' balance-of-payments is suffering a heavy, unexpected and grossly unreasonable burden. At the same time the Canadian automobile purchaser must pay a higher price than the American purchaser for the same car. He, too, is suffering an unreasonable, and unnecessary, private burden.

Officially the Canadian government has always argued that it could not remove the tariff lest it flood the Canadian market with cheap American cars and damage the automotive industry of Ontario. Even worse, the government says, real free trade might mean the removal of the industry, or at least part of it, to the United States.

In fact, the government greatly exaggerates its fears for political, not economic, reasons. It does not believe that real free trade would destroy, or even seriously affect, the Ontario industry, which is well able to compete in an unrestricted continental market and is here to stay. But in politics the government's fears are entirely genuine.

PRESIDENT NIXON
... looking for a balance

Before the election of last October it believed that any concession to the United States, however small, just and reasonable, would lose it many Ontario constituencies by frightening the automobile workers and the communities dependent on their earnings.

Consequently neither the government, the Conservative opposition nor the NDP dared to discuss, much less to open, this long-standing argument with the United States. Now, at a time of post-election chaos in Parliament, no party is prepared to face the issue if it can be avoided or postponed, no matter what the merits of the American case may be, and no matter what the tariff costs the Canadian consumer. Ontario votes in the next election, not the price of cars, are the primary concern of all parties.

The fourth American complaint will surprise and doubtless anger the Canadian people, once they have grasped it. In brief, the United States government has examined what the Canadian government calls its "new industrial strategy." Under examination, this ambitious phrase seems, in Washington's eyes, to mean simply subsidization of various export industries by Canada's public treasury.

The Canadian government, and provincial governments also, are handing out massive grants of one sort and another to private corporations which, bankrolled by the taxpayers, can sell competitively, and unfairly, in the American market. Or, as Washington sees it, Canada is planning to export its unemployment problem to the United States — an inexcusable offence.

While the Canadian government regards this charge as unfounded and, in any case nullified by the United States' export subsidies to its own corporations, it is not merely a point of political argument but a matter of American law.

Countervailing Duties

Under the law, the United States government must levy countervailing duties on imported goods when they are subsidized by foreign government. Already Canadian automobiles manufactured in a Nova Scotia factory which received large grants of public money are being studied by the U.S. treasury. If, in a vital test case, exports to the American market can be restricted by special duties, so, presumably, can other Canadian products similarly subsidized.

Thus the "new industrial strategy," assuming that it's more than a domestic political slogan, raises grave international questions unforeseen and not fully comprehended in Ottawa.

Besides the four specific complaints, a fifth may arise out of Canada's unknown plans to control American investment. The plans announced by the Trudeau government and never ratified by parliament were not onerous enough to cause serious alarm in Washington. But were they only the beginning of a much more drastic policy, the narrow end of the wedge?

This report has tried, in oversimplified form, to explain the American case which Canada must meet, sooner or later, at the bargaining table. Of course there is a strong Canadian case, too, but without an effective government to argue it for the time being. And over all the arguments of daily business looms the far greater continental and worldwide problem of those dwindling physical resources that Canada still owns in abundance and its neighbor covets.

MAURICE WESTERN

Subsidies for Everybody

OTTAWA — While Canadian political parties are hospitable to many opinions, they have no patience nowadays with those of Edmund Burke.

In his once-famous Speech to the Electors of Bristol, Burke dealt with the duties of members — presumably including ministers. "Your representative owes you," he declared, "not his industry only, but his judgment; and he betrays instead of serving you if he sacrifices it to your opinion."

It is obvious that such a doctrine has nothing in common with the two great principles of modern government as we now observe them in operation. These are: 1. Find out what the voters think they want. 2. Make them think they are getting it.

The fashionable and felicitous expression which sums up both these lofty principles is, of course, participatory democracy.

Before the election the government boasted a majority and anticipated another with some confidence. As it has no wish to bring troubles upon itself in future, it tempered the findings of participatory democracy with its own best judgment. The speech from the throne and Mr. Trudeau's amplification of it on Monday leave no doubt whatever that the government has now switched over to a second-best judgment which, it hopes, will please us better.

NDP Applause

As David Lewis and the NDP members view the matter, this is a development to be applauded. The more the government tempers its best judgment to accord with the opinions of the third party, the greater will be his confidence in it.

Mr. Stanfield's attitude is rather more complicated. On the one hand, he rebukes the government for advocating policies today which they repudiated yesterday. So much for Burke. On the other hand he is gratified that the government has adopted so many Conservative policies although saddened by what has been left out. Considering these unfortunate omissions, he agrees with a criticism that "there is less in the throne speech than meets the eye."

The government's answer to what we think we want and the variants of it offered by other parties can be summed up in a single word — "subsidies." It is not a term that is well regarded by politicians, especially if they happen to be on the ministerial side. The preferred expression is "program," which may be considered almost a synonym since programs, generally speaking, are built around subsidies, sometimes disguised.

Other expressions with the same significance may be found in abundance in the throne speech — aid, assistance, incentives, encouragement, renewed measures, "revision ... enabling industry to take advantage of" and so on.

There is a certain rhythm in the paragraphs of the speech, suggestive of a nursery rhyme. Subsidy, subsidy, subsidy, jiggety, jiggety, jog.

But the word itself is unpopular. What it may suggest to the tax-payer is that the government intends to dip once again into his pockets in order to please more deserving taxpayers.

It may be said that in a modern society there is bound to be a certain amount of income redistribution to sustain the poor and needy. The fact is, however, that we have now moved far beyond this simple notion. The government moves through a veritable Milky Way of subsidies; indeed, they are now so numerous that it quite possible (as happened the other day) for a department to forget one completely until its memory is nudged by a newspaper.

DAVID LEWIS
... applauding

When subsidies are handed out in arbitrary but wholesale fashion, some groups are bound to benefit, at least temporarily. But there must be some cancelling out (it is, after all, a bit difficult for a country to pull itself up by its own bootstraps) and with inflation assisting the process, we can often observe this — for example, in the periodic moves to restore the purchasing power of pensions.

The government, and its ever-more experienced bureauerats, have been in the housing business ever since the war, constantly improving and enlarging programs. It does seem odd that, after all these years of expertise, it is much more and not less difficult now for young couples to acquire homes.

Another indication of the proliferation of subsidies and the general interest in them is the current order paper of the House of Commons. This already includes 30 notices of motion for production of papers and 202 questions, of which a large proportion relate to subsidies. Mr. Broadbent alone managed 16 questions (the first touching grants and loans to 94 companies) and Mr. Rodriguez another eight. All these refer to programs of benefit to business but, of course, there are dozens of others affecting agriculture, fisheries, culture, innumerable worthy organizations and so on. Not to mention social security.

Net Loss

If we ever reach the time when everybody gets something, then — assuming some rough equality — nobody will get anything. In fact there will be a net loss because, as government gets deeper and deeper into the subsidy business, it must naturally employ larger and larger numbers of officials and camp followers to administer the programs, to revise and improve them and to strengthen our sense of national well-being by dreaming up more. These experts must be handsomely paid.

Through the CBC and in a variety of other ways, we subsidize our national identity. Even our best quarrels with the neighbors, those which daily stir the patriotism of members of Parliament, depend on subsidies as may be seen from the Michelin case and the ever popular (with the government) automobile agreement.

For politicians, the universal subsidy state does have one attraction undreamed of in the philosophy of Burke. While events may impose corrections of judgment always for the better, we are expected to believe, there is never any sacrifice of principle.

How can there be, when the government is merely revising, improving, renewing, re-organizing, harmonizing and otherwise perfecting the subsidy system? Its confidence in mankind is undiminished; it also aspires to the confidence of Mr. Lewis, a hope which may well be rewarded for the time being.

Oddly enough, Burke is still considered sound, at least by some members, on the issue of capital punishment. But debates on that subject are agonizing — members hate them. Far better participatory democracy. Never mind judgment: find out what the voters want and, if words can do it, give it to them.

Editorial Correspondence

Automation

The editorial from The Globe and Mail entitled "A New Work Philosophy" which you carried recently seems to create problems which don't exist. Automation in industry tends to eliminate the least stimulating jobs. Many people who hold more challenging jobs which cannot be automated will not welcome the opportunity to retire before their capability to perform the job has been exhausted, although this might be an option to those who desire it. Certainly, the present custom of enforcing retirement at an arbitrary age is not desirable.

Rather than try to accommodate the work force by arbitrarily advancing the retirement age, everyone can profit by allowing automation to take its course in eliminating routine work for people who will then be free to pursue vocations which require the personal touch, all the while profiting from the work of machines. The economic incentive to work will be maintained by following this natural course of events.

Contrary to The Globe and Mail's opinion, people fortunate enough to hold jobs may be reluctant to give them up for the reduced living standard of a guaranteed income. It is doubtful, too, that workers preferring an early pensioned retirement would be numerous enough to provide new work for the many unemployed. Both workers and unemployed, however, should benefit from the work of machines. — James D. Craig, 1571 Brodick Crescent.

PARIS: The world of Parisian dandies, whose existence is occupied with caricaturing the English and American male fashions, has been greatly agitated by the news that a few days ago a well known "elegant" was seen in Piccadilly, not with a poppy or a lily, but a leather handbag hanging from his left arm, and was further seen to enter a store and stow away his trifling purchases in his reticule which contained, as permanent fittings, a cigarette case, matches, a purse, a knife and an Oxford Bible.

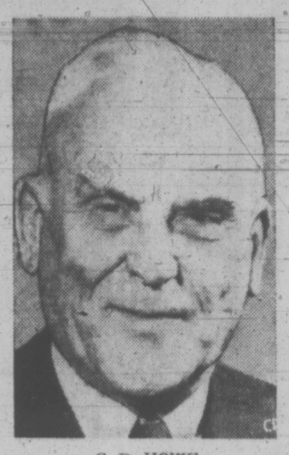
Trudeau's Comeuppance: It All Began With Howe

By JAMES EAYRS

A pair of behavioral scientists at Duke University in North Carolina, in a paper discussing the impact of U.S. scholarship on Canadian political science and sociology, bestow the following accolade upon Professor John Meisel of Queen's University: "A distinguished scholar and teacher, his prestige in Canadian political science derives in part from his close association with the American political science establishment, especially the Inter-University Consortium for Political Research. Meisel, more than any other political scientist, has been instrumental in making behavioral research in political science 'respectable' in Canada . . . If Canadian political science has experienced something of a behavioral revolution in the past decade, then Meisel must be regarded as its principal architect."

When the authors of this tribute read "Howe, Hubris and '72" — Professor Meisel's forthcoming essay on why the Trudeau government slipped so badly last October — they are in for a shock. The scholar so well equipped to act as our chief coroner at post-election post mortems — to assess the causes of demise when a political party meets a sticky end at the hands of the electorate — uses little of his scientific equipment in the reaching of his verdict.

Here is no painstaking assemblage of those myriad grains of information brought in from the field by an ant-colony of researchers, no tabulation of statistics spewed forth from giant computers, the doyen of behavioral political studies in Canada eschews the behavioral approach.



C. D. HOWE
". . . hubris, too"

He employs instead what behavioral scientists denigrate as the classical approach — "the approach" as one of its defenders has defined it "that derives from philosophy, history and law, and that is characterized above all by explicit reliance upon the exercise of judgment and by the assumptions that if we confine ourselves to strict standards of verification and proof there is very little of significance that can be said . . ."

The "Howe" in its title is the late C.D., who as minister of almost everything under an overly indulgent prime minister inculcated among Liberal party members and Liberal-minded public servants that sense of their divine right to rule Canada which led to their undoing in June 1957. The "Hubris" is not some Quebec equivalent of Howe (an Honourable Telesphore Apollinaire Hubris, pronounced "oo-bree"), it is the word employed by ancient Greeks for that sin of insolence in office that comes from overweening pride.

Meisel contends that neither the years in opposition, nor "the unostentatious, gentle Lester Pearson," was enough to purge the Liberals of hubris. Their ingrained arrogance, their complex of superiority, Trudeau inherited along with his prime ministership — with results deadly for Liberals when a day of reckoning came.

"Because he himself is impatient of criticism, overly confident, reluctant to recognize his own errors, and because he chose to campaign accordingly, he blew the election": such is Meisel's forthright, if not very evidently scientific, verdict on the outcome.

"His patrician style, combined with the party's arrogance, forfeited national support at a time when the country would, I believe, really have preferred to give it." "The hauteur of Mr. Trudeau fused with traditional Liberal arrogance and the two, reinforcing one another, led to a loss of public trust."

Of these two factors — Liberal party tradition, prime ministerial personality — Meisel is inclined to attach most importance to the former. He finds it "extremely suggestive that Mr. Pearson, despite his own style which was warm and in no way arrogant, was unable to change that of his party", and speculates "that we have a lesson here in the degree to which even a highly regarded leader can fail to alter the physiognomy and stance of his party". The Pearson personality proved to be an unavailing corrective for hubris, that of Pierre Trudeau a catalyst of hubris.

Given its affinity with the Liberal party tradition, the prime minister's personality played a key role in the outcome. "The Liberal victory of 1968 and the party's 1972 stumble can be explained largely in Trudeau terms. His was the victory and his the fall. The extraordinary initial appeal of the Liberal leader persisted long into his first term of office and was still evident in the 1972 campaign. But for a growing number of people it underwent a slow metamorphosis leading to the emergence of a double image — one showing an attractive, exciting, resolute thinker-doer, the other a proud, temperamental and impatient ruler . . . As the campaign unfolded and concern about major problems and minor irritations grew, the negative assessment became more dominant".

It is fascinating to compare Professor Meisel's analysis with that of the prime minister himself, insofar as the latter has been disclosed to us in Mr. Trudeau's interview last week by Carole Taylor and Bruce Phillips.

Both Meisel and Trudeau reject the notion that an anti "French power" backlash was a significant cause of Liberal losses. Meisel notes that English-speaking Newfoundlanders gave more votes to Liberals in '72 than in '68, that Liberals lost in French Canada as well as elsewhere, that "in Quebec the staunchest support for the Liberal party came from the English-speaking voters".

Trudeau put it this way: "There were enough good reasons to vote against Liberals that we don't have to invoke these backlash reasons, I think I wouldn't be telling the truth if I were to deny that the backlash also added on to the good reasons, but, no, a lot of people in Quebec also voted against the Liberals and that shouldn't be explained in terms of a backlash."

TRUDEAU
". . . catalyst"

On the role of Liberal hubris, the Prime Minister is understandably silent. On the role of his personality he is at first self-deprecating: "After '68 I was modest enough to think that the success was not due to the person but the ideas and the Liberal policies . . . I would like to draw the same conclusion now, that people haven't voted essentially for or against a personality but that they have tried to judge our government on its merits".

Later in the interview, he adverts to the Meisel verdict: "You see, I wasn't as successful as we hoped in the last election and it's a natural inclination to look for who can we blame — and certainly myself . . . We've had good policies . . . We admit that we didn't perhaps communicate them enough . . ."

It is certain that "Howe, Hubris and '72" will be required reading at Liberal party headquarters these next few weeks. Stanfield and Lewis should read it, too. Hubris is not a peculiarly Liberal affliction, much as Liberals have been prone to it. It is the occupational disease of all who aspire to, receive, and try to hang on to, power.

ADVERTISERS HOLD MAGAZINES HOSTAGE

They Gave Life and Then They Took It Away

THE NATION
An Editorial

The scene has become a ritual. A celebrated magazine announces its final issue. The editorial staff gathers, nostalgic, sad, pensive, with paper cups brimming. Tall stories are told; magnificent episodes recited. But there is always more talk about future job prospects than about why the magazine failed and almost never does anyone mention the magazine industry and what is happening to it.

Theories as to why the particular magazine failed are a dime a dozen, but they have one thing in common: they are ludicrously superficial. A case in point: Shana Alexander, formerly with Life, now with Newsweek, has "a dreadful, oppressive feeling that somebody betrayed a trust, and so we watched Life die" — that is, no one bothered to fix it!

The scene is so compelling — it makes such deep appeal to all sorts of sentiments — that it seems unkind to undercut it, but the effort must be made. First let it be said that all magazines of general interest face major difficulties at the moment: soaring postal rates; rising costs that cannot be met by income from subscriptions and single sales, and, of course, TV has been cutting into advetising revenue.

So much is obvious. But why, in these boozy post-mortems, does no one ever mention that advertising is itself a major reason for the demise of magazines? Magazines and newspapers were not always dependent on advertising.

Raymond Williams, in his excellent study, Communications (1966), points out that it was not until after 1880 or thereabouts, with the emergence of a mass market, that publications began to boost circulation, at any cost, as a way to get more advertising. By so doing they made themselves hostages to anonymous "media buyers" in the big agencies.

The agency officials quoted by Philip H. Dougherty in his New York Times story about the demise of Life, had scarcely a kind word to say for the magazine. "It's no great loss," said an executive of Ted Bates & Company. Life's salesmen, said another, "weren't able to scrape for the advertising dollar when the time came." Too bad for them.

The fact is that the frenetic efforts to expand circulation in order to get more advertising at higher rates confronted magazines with a serious problem even before television became a serious rival.

But television no doubt drove the knife home. It could offer advertisers, particularly product advertisers, a larger audience at a lower unit cost than could the mass magazines. When this point finally sank in, all the big magazines began to change formats and engage in all the other antics that signal distress.

At the same time, new magazines were invented to cater to special audiences. If all skiers subscribe to a ski magazine, the media buyer can perhaps be conned into thinking that an ad there will do better for his skiing account than one in a general-interest publication.

Thus, almost on the day Life died, Sunset announced in a full-page New York Times ad that it would not accept advertising unrelated to "the Sunset life style"—that is, what people west of the Rockies enjoy in their homes, gardens, food and travel. That, no doubt, is good business. But is Sunset concerned with national issues? Will Sunset tee off on the Administration, as Life has done on a score of important issues in the last four years?

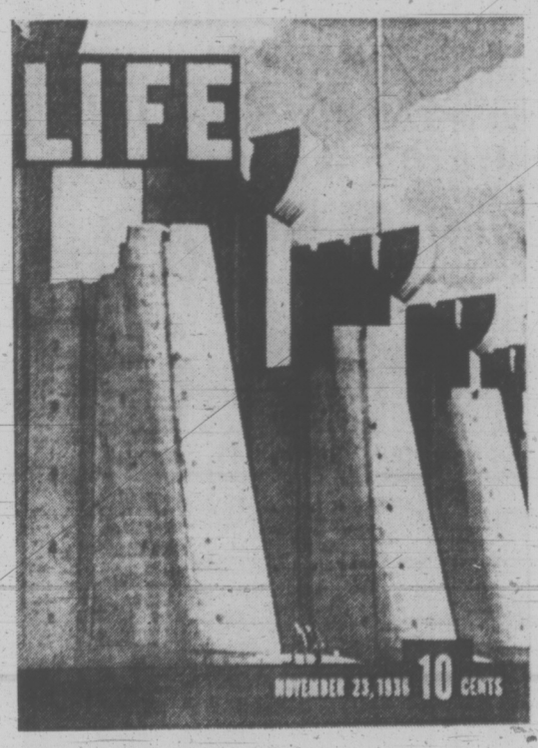
Television news, we shall be told, will keep everyone briefed about what's happening. But television news is parasitic: it depends on magazines and newspapers, as its most ardent advocates concede. So what will happen when the general-interest magazines fall by the wayside and, after them, the newspapers?

In March 1957, Marshall McLuhan published a brilliant piece in Explorations — the magazine he then edited at the University of Toronto — in which he predicts the demise of Life. Folded in the issue, as an insert, was a story dated Sunday, February 3, 1963, set in New York Times type and headlined in Times style: "Life Folds, Blame TV, 1,500 Left Unemployed." Advertisers, the story went on to say, had come to feel that Life no longer had impact value.

"It was found everywhere in homes, dentists' offices, barber shops but . . . it had ceased to interest or influence anyone . . . With the arrival of video-tape Life died. Insiders blamed what they called "Luce's conservatism and ambition." History, they said, showed that the coming of a new medium forces the old media to become partisan. The latest medium always speaks with the anonymous moral voice of society. Writing did this to speech, and print did it to writing. Much could be said that couldn't be written, and much could be written that couldn't be printed. Life prospered during the depression years because it offered pictures while radio was only sound. Moreover, Life was Republican while radio belonged to Roosevelt. With the coming of TV and Eisenhower's victory, Life lost both advantages. Now TV spoke with society's impersonal puritan voice of power. Newspapers kept their audiences by becoming partisan, printing news behind the news, news that couldn't get on TV, and columnists slanted views. . . . For a time (Life) held it own by running stories about TV personalities. But this alone couldn't save it. Its passing will probably be noticed only by its staff of 1,500, now unemployed, and a handful of admen who met today to pay tribute to the memory of a "Grand Old Mag."

Witty and perceptive but not quite right. Life got better and more relevant as it grew older. And the admen did not mourn the passing of the "grand old mag": they gave it a boot, as they talked up the virtues of the new special-interest publications.

When all is said and done, it was the mad quest for the advertising dollar that got Life and Look and The Saturday Evening Post into the impossible position of cutting back on their circulations because they could no longer afford to give their publications away as a means of cornering a market for advertisers.



Life's first issue, 1936

LAST RIDE?

THE SUN

The provincial government surely is unnecessarily huffy in its response to the auto insurance industry's last-ditch defence of its particular brand of private enterprise.

Of course the big, expensive propaganda campaign is a "resort of the insurance companies lobby to exert pressure on the government." Of course it's an "effort to influence the drafting of legislation which would be favorable to the companies."

Does the government really expect an industry that did $135 million worth of business last year to roll over and play dead before government auto insurance without any fight at all?

If the industry has something to say, it has every right to say it. If it can convince British Columbians that such apparent sins of the past as gross overcharging without refunding were all a ghastly error, good luck to it. If it is able to show how 185 separate companies with 185 separate overheads can offer a better deal than one, why not?

The government has little to fear if its case is sound. Indeed, an industry that can afford a $100,000 propaganda campaign after years of pleading poverty and the need for ever-higher rates could be handing Victoria the last argument for nationalization that it needs.

They're Barred From Office

By KENNETH BAGNELL
The Globe and Mail

There are many places of responsibility toward which a Canadian may aspire, but none is higher than elected office. And among such offices none carries more potential for service, than a seat in the House of Commons. Even if a man or woman so chosen remains a backbencher for life, there are large opportunities to benefit if, not the country, then certainly the constituency.

All this is relevant to our consideration at any time, but may be more so with the current uncertainties of Parliament and the possibility of a return to the polls, earlier than most of us might wish. The fact is that in a variety of ways we deny thousands of our people — some of them our best — the opportunity to stand for public office.

I don't mean simply poor people who cannot compete in costly campaigns; I don't mean women who still find themselves excluded from serious contention in some parts of the country. No, I mean the very persons we might expect to place themselves most readily before the electorate — well educated men in their thirties and forties, with experience in business.

Yet, time and again, I meet such men who tell me they want to seek office, but cannot. They work for companies whose senior management makes it clear that if a man runs for office he wins no favor with his employers. In fact, he jeopardizes his future, perhaps his position.

In some cases, though it is hard to prove, firms have actually made it known that if an employee seeks federal office he'll get his pink slip and last pay within 24 hours. Others, to their credit, have clear policies (IBM for one) which guarantee that any man or woman may seek any public office without loss of security, salary, or seniority.

The most obvious result of these uncertainties is that Parliament, which ideally should reflect the nation's social and vocational diversity, is less likely to include a reasonable representation from young, middle management.

It is ironic that while our legislators have drafted various codes to protect civil rights, they have not looked closely at the rights of men aspiring to become legislators. But is it not discrimination to threaten a man, subtley or otherwise, with loss of job security if he dares make public his political creed by standing for his party?

Some legislators have attacked it. In Quebec, a few years ago, an amendment was moved to the provincial elections act, threatening an employer with jail if he denied an employee leave of absence to stand for the National Assembly. That may have deterrent value, but it is far from the most civilized solution.

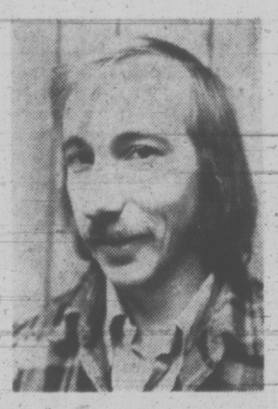
The civilized way is a new imagination in business. Almost all union contracts now assure a man or woman the right to run for public office. And yet, in the management area, there are men frightened to indicate any interest in larger service, lest those who judge them view their ambitions as disloyal. Why must it be that in some corporations, the horizon of service begins and ends at the front door?

ARGYLE MACHINE WORKS (1962) LTD.

From Port Alberni are pleased to announce their latest expansion into the Duncan area. As of January 2nd., 1973, they will be operating E & M MACHINE WORKS, Box 566, Jacob Road, Duncan, B.C., as a division of Argyle Machine.

Mr. Ken Sexton

Mr. Bill Pridie



Mr. Phil Humber

Mr. Ken Sexton has left Argyle to manage the Duncan Branch and he is joined by Mr. Bill Pridie who will be in the position of Sales Manager over both Divisions.

Mr. Pridie, formerly of Mainland Foundry & Engineering Ltd., wishes to thank all the people with whom he has done business in the past few years and hopes he can still be of service to them in his new capacity.

Mr. Phil Humber has also joined E & M Machine Works as plant superintendent in charge of machine and welding shops.

The management of Argyle Machine Works thanks all their customers on the East Coast of the Island for their past business and now, with their latest expansion into Duncan, they feel they can give a faster and more complete service to everyone.

INDEPENDENTS 'ESSENTIAL'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ian Mahood, vice-president of the British Columbia Truck Loggers Association, said Tuesday independent loggers were essential to the continued health of B.C.'s forest industry and warned that monopoly in the industry would breed arrogrance, incompetence and ingrown management bureaucracy.

Mahood told delegates to the association's annual convention that H. R. MacMillan, founder of MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., had emphasized to a royal commission in 1955 the need to retain independents to ensure the vitality of the industry.

Mahood said some of the dangers MacMillan had warned about in 1955 now were becoming evident.

"A number of corporate giants, given timber allocatins of good quality, have floundered due to bad technology, misdirected policies and bad management," Mahood said.

'Regrettably, the timber allocations involved displaced or otherwise foreshortened opportunities for healthy small and medium-sized locally-based industry."

Mahood said several corporate forest giants with ample timber allocations have yet to show a profit and one or two others, after harvesting the most accessibe parts of their reserves, are showing the alarming signs of decline that MacMillan had predicted.

"In almost all cases the companies are in trouble because their cost of log production is too high."

Mahood said the smaller groups worked more efficiently than the "sprawling organizations featured in big companies."

Housing Starts

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Housing starts in British Columbia in 1972 increased by an average of five per cent over the number of starts in 1971. But in Prince George, housing starts last year were up by 50.3 per cent over 1971. Figures released by building inspector Ed Neff show that 496 permits for single family dwellings were issued to the end of 1972, compared with 330 for 1971.

Few Protests

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said his move Dec. 21 imposing amalgamation of the greater Kamloops area has received little protest. He said he has received about 30 letters concerning the amalgamation, and they are about 3-1 in favor of his move. Lorimer said the amalgamation of Kamloops, Brocklehurst, Valleyview and Dufferin will be official July 1.

Strike Ends

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A four-week strike by five members of the beverage and culinary workers union has ended with the signing of a first contract with Johnny's Supper Club. The union was certified to represent a bartender and four cocktail waitresses Oct. 26. Under the new 14-month contact, the waitresses will receive a $1.34 hourly increase to $3.59 an hour and the bartender will get $1.21 an hour more to $4.21.

Compressor Taken

VANCOUVER (CP) — A local construction firm told police a $5,000 air compressor has been stolen from a lane in downtown Vancouver.

Medical Supplies

Man Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police have charged Paul Edward Lemon, 24, of Vancouver with robbery after a Bank of Nova Scotia clerk refused to give a would-be robber the amount he demanded.

Council Pay Hiked

SURREY (CP) — Surrey municipal council voted itself a 10-per-cent pay raise for 1973. The raise — boosting aldermanic pay to $5,500 from $5,000 and giving Mayor Bill Vander. Zalman additional $1,000 for a total of $16,000 — was passed by a 5-3 vote.

Trial Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Horace Steven Wright, 25, of Philadelphia was committed Tuesday for higher court trial, charged with possessing hashish for the purpose of trafficking with possessing a dangerous weapon and with dangerous driving.

Performance Bonds

VANCOUVER (CP)—Developers of major projects in the city will have to post performance bonds from now on to ensure they carry out their promises, Mayor Art Phillips said Tuesday. He said he intends to stop developers from getting council to rezone land for one purpose and then delaying actual construction for long periods.

PONTIAC Astre

A NEW SMALL ECONOMY CAR MAKES THE SCENE

GM Canada

IT'S RIGHT ON

Astre enters the small car arena with the kind of credentials that'll make some other little cars wish they'd never gotten off the boat. Astre is economical to run and economical to buy. In fact, you can pay less for an Astre than many people are already paying for small cars—and their cars aren't Pontiacs!

Astre is a little car yet its front headroom and front legroom compare well with many big cars. Its performance is very lively, thanks in a big way to a 2300 c.c. overhead-cam, aluminum-alloy engine that's a real standout among its competitors. And as you would expect, you can leave it to Pontiac to lay on the nice touches.

Full-foam seats, rich-looking materials, and a powered ventilation system that keeps outside air moving through Astre even when it's stationary and with the windows up. You've got four model choices. An Astre Coupe that's our lowest-priced Pontiac, an Astre Hatchback that's half coupe and half wagon, an Astre Safari that's a little Pontiac station wagon, and an Astre Panel that's a little delivery van. So now you can save money on a small car that has all the features you want along with the prestige of a Pontiac. Come in and price an Astre soon. It's right on! And it's built in Canada.

Astre Hatchback

RIGHT ON WITH A PROVEN DESIGN

Every major component has been thoroughly tested and proven over many millions of miles. Most importantly, Astre's aluminum-alloy, overhead-cam engine packs plenty of expressway punch with four-cylinder, import-style economy. It's lightweight to help give a good power-to-weight ratio, it's simple for quick maintenance and it's efficient, easy on gas. At 2300 cubic centimetres (or 140 cubic inches) Astre's engine is one of the biggest in its class—no need to worry about it overworking over the long haul. To smooth out the ride, Astre has full-coil suspension. An electric fuel pump shuts off automatically should oil pressure ever drop below normal.

RIGHT ON WITH REASSURANCE

Astre has a double-panel acoustic roof and the reassurance of Side-guard door beams as part of a comprehensive safety package. The Coupe even has a Cargo-guard steel bulkhead in the trunk.

RIGHT ON WITH IMPORT-STYLE ECONOMY

You expect good gas mileage in an economy car and Astre delivers. Also keeping down the cost of upkeep are flush and dry rocker panels that help reduce damage from road salts, a side-terminal battery that's corrosion proof and an engine air filter that should last 50,000 miles or more. Astre is economical to run. And it's built for the "do it yourself" buff. As a little car that's easy to work on, Astre is right on.

RIGHT ON WITH TYPICAL PONTIAC LUXURY AND COMFORT

A small economy car that's a Pontiac should be a cut above. Astre is. It has contoured full-foam seats in exclusive knit vinyl in a choice of four colors, depending on model. Or you can order at extra cost cloth-and-vinyl in either of two smart checks (with a matching panel on the door) or Custom-vinyl in your choice of three colors. In every Astre you get simulated walnut panelling on the dash, carpeting fore and aft, (except, of course, in the Panel van), a closeable glove box and wide-opening doors. Pontiac Astre is some economy car! If you want to add extra-cost options, you can order a radio, Turbo Hydra-matic transmission, radial tires, and air conditioning.

RIGHT ON WITH A DOWN-TO-EARTH PRICE

Astre's price is nose to nose with many of the most popular imports. And included in the price you get standard goodies like front disc brakes, a map pocket in the door, a powered ventilation system, a cooling system that should never overheat, a choice of 10 Magic-Mirror exterior colors—and service at any Pontiac dealer in Canada.

RIGHT ON WITH AN EXCITING GT OPTION

Order it on the Hatchback or Safari and you get a special high-performance engine, front and rear stabilizer bars, wide-rim GT wheels, a small diameter GT steering wheel, full sports car instrumentation including a tachometer and a blacked-out grille. Even more. You can add stripes with or without the GT package. Try out an Astre today where Astres are sold... at your Pontiac dealer's.

Inflation-Proof Pension Comes at High Cost

By PETER C. HIRST
Consulting actuary,
Kates, Peat, Marwick and Co.

Pension plans should adjust to inflation so that retired employees may live out their lives with some sense of security. This is easy to say, but it is not to easy to define how an employer can afford to pay for this.

Substantial benefits necessitate substantial costs.

For example, provision for an annual 2 per cent increase in pensions after retirement can increase the future service costs and any liability for past service by about 15 per cent. If there are substantial past service benefits, this can mean an increase in existing plan costs of well in excess of 15 per cent.

As with any pension plan costs, such increases clearly require careful financial planning by the employer. But at the same time, the employer can look to the management of the pension fund for assistance in meeting these increases.

Pension funds generally consist of assets, most of which for a long period of time will not be required to meet benefit payments. These assets are therefore invested. It is the investment performance of the pension fund which is perhaps the most important factor affecting the costs of any pension plan. Actuaries frequently quote a rough rule of thumb that an increase of 1 per cent per annum in the long-term rate of return on the pension fund reduces costs by approximately 25 per cent.

This enables the employer to increase benefits substantially.

This demands that the employer ensures that his company's pension fund is effectively managed. In particular, if inflation can be reflected in the investment performance of a pension fund, the costs of adjusting pension plans to inflation can be kept within manageable bounds.

Some people have gone so far as to suggest relating pension benefits to the investment performance of the pension fund. Thus, the argument goes, as the fund reacts to inflation, so will benefits, with no additional costs to the employer. This approach, however, may require complex rules, defeating the important object of making benefits easy to understand and administer. Furthermore, the employer cannot reduce his costs as a result of exceptionally good investment results, while employee dissatisfaction may result if investment performance is comparatively poor.

Another school of thought suggests that pensions should be related to a common stock index of one form or another and then the pennsion fund invested in the stocks that make up the index. This concept is based on the premise that inflation results in higher common stock prices. Though this may be true in the long term, the increase in stock prices may occur some time after inflation has run its course.

We have recently witnessed a period of rapidly falling stock prices coincident with a painfully high rate of inflation. Thus, just at the time inflation is reducing the purchasing power of his income, a pensioner could suffer a reduction in the dollar amount of his pension. Even if provision is made that the pension benefit should never be reduced, this only partially solves the problem. In the circumstances described, the pension still will not increase with inflation. It also places the employer in a "heads you win, tails I lose" situation.

If a pension plan is to adjust to inflation effectively, it can best afford to do so if the plan administrator ensures as far as possible that the pension fufd is effectively managed.

MLS Listings Up Sharply

The Victoria Real Estate Board reports a flood of new listings for its Multiple Listing Service this month and it credits the new commission schedule.

Board president Eric Charman said listings in January are up about 50 per cent above the rate of new listings in the first 10 days of January last year.

For example, 24 new listings came in on Monday alone, on a list that contains some 500 entries.

"People are listing on MLS who previously would have used exclusive listings," Charman said.

"Now the difference is only $150 to go on MLS. We expect there will be very few exclusive listings in the future."

The $150 figure comes from the difference between the commission on MLS and exclusive listing on a $30,000 sale.

Exclusive rates fluctuated widely but were within the range of 5 per cent to 10 per cent. Most were at the 5 per cent level. Now the minimum exclusive rate is 6 per cent.

The new MLS rate on $30,000 is 6.5 per cent.

Commission under MLS is $1,950 and under exclusive listing $1,800.

Before the new rates came into effect in late November, the commission on the $30,000 house would have been $1,900 under MLS and $1,500 under exclusive listing, a difference of $400.

Former MLS rate was 7 per cent on the first $30,000 and 5 per cent on the next $10,000.

Charman predicted that total value of MLS listing sales for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1973, would be $49 million, an 8.9 per cent increase over the $45 million in the previous fiscal year.

Meanwhile the Vancouver Island Real Estate Board reports MLS sales of $29.1 million for the calendar year 1972, a 33.5 per cent increase over the $21.8 million in 1971.

The up-Island board reported 1,846 properties sold under MLS in 1972, up from 1,391 in 1971.

Average price of sales by the Vancouver Island Real Estate Board was $16,031 in 1972, an increase of 2.3 per cent over the 1971 average price of $15,680.

Average MLS prices are not necessarily a good guide to increase in values because the list could emphasize lot sales in some years and large apartments in others.

Total number of listings under MLS had not increased up-Island in 1972, a similar experience to the Victoria area before the new commission rates were introduced.

Mackasey Rips Into UIC Critics

OTTAWA (CP) — Former manpower minister Bryce Mackasey tore into critics of the Unemployment Insurance Act Tuesday in an emotional address that had members of all parties cheering him on.

Mackasey said in debate on the throne speech that one of the reasons he remained in the Commons after resigning from the cabinet following the last election was to see that "reactionary forces in the House do not destroy unemployment insurance legislation."

Alleged abuses of the unemployment insurance plan raised a controversy during the election campaign and were credited with helping turn the tide against the Trudeau government.

Mackasey produced poll-survey figures to show that of the people who voted against the government, only five per cent did so because of discontent over unemployment insurance abuses.

"I have looked up the results of polls, not only the Gallup poll but private polls which people were kind enough to place at my disposal after the election," said Mackasey.

"I find that 51 per cent of the people who voted against the government voted because of unemployment, that 13 per cent voted because of inflation, and six per cent because they thought old-age pensions needed improvement," he said.

"Only five per cent of the electors voted against the government because we increased unemployment insurance."

Mackasey's first targets were the government "mandarins" whom he accused of using the unemployment insurance controversy as a screen to divert attention from unemployment figures.

He said there are several economic forecasters in the finance department whom Finance Minister John Turner "might be better off without."

They used issues such as unemployment insurance as excuses for their own failures.

$250,000 for Spies—Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The prosecutor charged today that White House aide G. Gordon Liddy was provided $250,000 to finance a political intelligence operation for President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Earl J. Silbert, chief prosecutor in the Watergate bugging trial, said Liddy and his close friend and E. Howard Hunt Jr., who served at times as a White House consultant, were provided the money to recruit intelligence agents.

He alleged their aim was to provide advance information about possible demonstrations by "extremist groups either of the left or the right" during the presidential campaign.

In an opening statement to the jury Silbert said the government would prove that Liddy, Hunt and five men arrested at the Watergate building offices of the Democratic National Committee last June 17 conspired to steal political secrets by theft and by wiretapping.

He said he wanted to give the jury "a general idea — a broad picture" — of the alleged crimes, set forth in an eight-count indictment in September, before calling witnesses that he said could prove the charges.

Silbert noted that Liddy, an ex-FBI agent, left his staff job at the White House in September, 1971, to become a counsel to the committee to re-elect the president.

"Toward the end of December, he received two additional assignments . . ." Silbert said. "He was to try to develop an intelligence operation to find out in advance if demonstrations were planned for campaign appearances . . . in addition, he was to look into security problems for the Republican national convention then scheduled to be held in San Diego."

ALTERATION STUDIED

A $5,000 alteration in plans for Cedar Hill Community Centre now under construction in Saanich would improve its usefulness and add to spectator facilities, aldermen were told Tuesday.

The proposal was brought forward by former finance chairman Ald. Alan Newberry, now chairman of parks and outdoor recreation, following a meeting of finance committee.

He said he was seeking reaction to the suggested addition of a "viewing" gallery above a dance studio at the front of the building on Cedar Hill Road due to open in February or March.

Members of the committee, including indoor recreation chairman Ald. Fred Severson, agreed to view the site at 4 p.m. next Wednesday and have a meeting immediately following to decide whether to make a recommendation to council.

A quick decision is needed, to take advantage of the construction schedule, Newberry indicated.

The dance studio is one of the larger sections of the building, about 1,100 square feet in size, but original plans made no provision for a public viewing area as was allowed for in the main auditorium.

The suggested alteration would allow a 15 by 25-foot glassed gallery to overlook the studio floor from the second storey above a concession area and adjoining a staff room. It would be reached by stairs from the ground level.

The proposed room could also be scheduled for meetings or receptions.

Ties Announced

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Costa Rica and East Germany established relations Tuesday, a joint announcement by the governments said. Costa Rica already has diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Water Rate Hike Likely In Saanich

Higher water rates in Saanich this year are a "distinct possibility," comptroller-treasurer Roy Broughton told members of municipal finance committee Tuesday.

He was replying to Ald. Leslie Passmore, chairman, who sought information to amplify the suggestion of higher retail rates made Monday in Broughton's provisional budget for 1973.

The comptroller noted the wholesale price of water to Saanich had been raised by two cents per thousand gallons last year and was expected to rise 1½ cents a thousand this year.

In the provisional budget he said preliminary and provisional figures "indicate it may be necessary to raise the water rates in 1973."

A further report will be presented to the appropriate committee of council in the near future, he said in the budget remarks.

In the budget, expenditures of $1.07 million are anticipated for waterworks, maintenance and administration, of which $945,300 would be raised by water sales and service charges.

Finance committee approved a recommendation to council that $12,127 be spent to buy new equipment for the municipal water billing system.

In other matters aldermen recommended two grants to community organizations, referred a third to budget time in the spring and deferred a fourth to the next finance committee meeting.

A grant of $300 was approved for Saanich Minor Hockey Association in lieu of providing free ice time for a B.C. Bantam Hockey Association tournament scheduled for the weekend of March 17 in Pearkes Arena.

Further consideration will be given to a request from Greater Victoria Little League asking for $3,000 to help bring teams to Canadian Little League championships to be held in Lambrick Park in August.

Reynolds Secondary School Bands' Auxiliary was granted $200 aid for uniforms and music in view of the cost of sending musicians on a visit to California April 26-May 3. The auxiliary will put up about $3,000 besides $125 paid by each member of the group for his travel expenses.

The motion also limits the amount of any other grant to a school band this year to a maximum $200.

Victoria Visitors' Bureau request for a grant was deferred to budget time.

NEWBERRY replaced by PASSMORE

Only One Big Switch in Duties

There was only one notable switch in Saanich committee appointments for 1973.

The finance and legislative chair was taken from Ald. Alan Newberry and given to veteran alderman, Leslie Passmore.

Newberry was appointed to parks and outdoor recreation committee, whose 1972 chairman was retired alderman Ed Lum, and Passmore's old indoor recreation committee was handed over to Ald. Fred Severson.

Last year Newberry was outspoken on parks and recreation matters and shares Severson's support for additional indoor facilities such as a second ice rink.

At the same time, Newberry concluded a priority assignment last year with the introduction of a noise suppression bylaw, given its final reading Monday night.

Mayor Hugh Curtis took social services from the finance and legislative committee, adding it to Ald. Edith Gunning's lands and housing committee, which she held last year.

Ald. William Noel keeps fire, civil defence and the Cedar Hill golf course management committee, one of a lengthy list of special committees involving both aldermen and members appointed from the community.

Newcomer Ald. John McDonald will be the fifth member of council's "A" group of committees.

Ald. Frank Waring is chairman of planning, Ald. William Campbell chairman of public works and appointed public works executive, and the other members of the group are Noel, Passmore and the mayor.

Curtis named municipal administrator John Tribe as a special member of the golf course committee, effective Feb. 1, the day following his retirement from municipal employment.

One-year advisory planning committee members will be Waring, McDonald and Noel, representing the council, and outsiders P. D. P. Holmes, Alan Lester, John Roberts and a new member, school teacher Sam Dumka.

Each will serve for two years.

Waring replaces Campbell as an alternative delegate to Capital Regional District board and Noel becomes an alternate instead of a director. Passmore goes from alternate to director, Curtis and Gunning remain directors and Newberry remains an alternate.

Saanich representation on Greater Victoria Library board increases with appointment of Waring and Times editor B. A. Tobin, who is chairman of the board, in addition to Newberry, in midterm of his appointment. Curtis said the additional alderman was recognition of the relatively large amount spent by Saanich in library service and the need for closer liaison between council and board.

Rupert Ferry To Get A Bar

It will soon be possible to get a drink on the Queen of Prince Rupert for the journey between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert.

Highways Minister Bob Strachan said Tuesday that the Queen of Prince Rupert will be fitted with a liquor lounge when she goes into drydock Jan. 22.

Strachan said the Prince Rupert will be the only B.C. Ferry to have a lounge. Even it will not stay open after midnight on the 20-hour trip. The distance between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert is 330 miles. The vessel leaves Kelsey Bay at 1:30 p.m., leaving 10½ hours drinking time for passengers — and 9½ hours sobering time.

Afrikaners Praying For Rain

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Poor rainfall in the midst of the growing season is threatening to cripple crops throughout central and southern Africa.

A national day of prayer is scheduled by three Afrikaans church groups in consultation with the South African government for next Monday.

The two-month drought has already cost South African farmers more than $320 million, with no relief in sight.

Prayers for rain as well as cloud seeding have not helped in Rhodesia where the agricultural loss is reported mounting.

Cattle are dying and little planting has been possible in Botswana.

Trapper Chose Bullet

EDMONTON (CP) — A 42-year-old trapper stranded in the bush with a broken hip had two choices: starve to death or end his life with a bullet, Chief Coroner Dr. M. M. Cantor said.

The trapper, Gerald Melson Kenny, chose suicide, the coroner said.

"He had a choice, he could starve to death or do away with himself — he was a brave man to hold out as long as he did."

"I don't know what I would do in the same situation. I don't think any of us do.

"He acted out of desperation."

Dr. Cantor said no inquest will be held, in line with policy on suicides.

The trapper was found Dec. 14 in bush country 130 miles southwest of Edmonton after a search was started when he did not return from a four-week tour of his traplines.

Dr. Cantor said Kenny, who had broken his hip, kept a diary of his ordeal in which he indicated he intended to take his own life.

His death occurred about Dec. 2.

Surplus in Sask.

REGINA (CP) — Higher-than-anticipated federal equalization payments contributed to a $9.9 million budget surplus in Saskatchewan for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

In revealing the surplus in a prepared statement, finance minister Elwood Cowley said actual budgetary revenues exceeded estimates by some $20 million but expenditures surpassed estimates by more than $10 million.

Player Appointed

REGINA (CP) — Bill Baker, the rugged defensive end with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference, has been hired as manager of the Regina convention bureau.

The native of Sherridon, Man., has previous experience in the tourist promotion field with the provincial government and is a former executive director of the Saskatchewan Forestry Association.

Gas Hike Profitable

EDMONTON (CP) — Every one-cent-a-cubic-foot increase in the price of natural gas is worth $3 million to Alberta, Provicial Treasurer Gordon Miniely said.

He told the annual meeting of the Parkalien Progressive Conservative Association that the province intends to win its battle for higher natural gas prices.

"We have to receive a fair value for our gas," he said. "It will have to at least double in price."

Record Damaged

EDMONTON (CP) — Flight recorders from a Pacific Western Airlines Boeing 707 cargo jet that crashed last week killing all five persons on board and 75 head of cattle were heavily damaged, Lorne Tapp, head of a 14-man investigative team, said.

Tapp, a ministry of transport investigator, said the flight data recorder and cockpit voice recorders both were badly burned. The impact of the crash caused the stylus of the flight data recorder to tear the aluminum foil used to register readings.

Half a Century Late: But at Long Last Chums

Item: A note today from my friend Paul Faris in North Vancouver triumphantly informing me of a Christmas most men would envy. As a boy, Paul dreamed, as we all did, of getting Chums' Annual. It was never to be. He was often reminded by his parents that "money didn't grow on trees" and, after all, Chums was priced up around the five-dollar mark.

"This Christmas morning, under the tree, was a package addressed to Dad," Paul now writes. "When I lifted it I assumed that someone with a misguided sense of humor had wrapped up a slab of concrete. Of course, you have guessed it. At long last my Chums Annual. A 1913 edition and very well preserved, too. It took over half a century, but I did get it."

I have offered Paul a straight swap with an unworn Hathaway shirt, a velvet smoking jacket, a striped tie and a pair of genuine carpet carpet-slippers—my big gifts—but he's not taking and I don't blame him.

Item: Yet another very good reason for taking a winter vacation is the fighting chance it gives you to escape from people who have taken a winter vacation.

As it was, we were snug in our bed on a cold winter's morning when our friend Webster, just back from Baja California, shook us awake and launched into a non-stop, 90-minute dissertation on the exotic pleasures of La Paz and Cabo San Lucas, surely the most tiresome monologue in the memory of man.

Deeply tanned, fairly bursting with his batteries newly recharged by the Mexican sun, Webster went on and on and on about the joys of the virgin beaches and secluded coves where the desert meets the Sea of Cortez and the open Pacific at the farthest point of that finger-like peninsula. He seems to have caught some 30 fish. Each was described in the complete detail possible only with a man possessed of—afflicted with—total recall.

Webster has a new guarantee of a captive audience. Somewhere, somehow, he has come into possession of a truly enormous dog which, though still a puppy, now weighs 180 pounds. It looks somewhat like a small polar bear. It adores Webster and the sound of Webster's voice, which seldom diminishes below a steady roar. If you interrupt Webster the dog turns upon you with a menacing growl, focuses its beady little eyes on your jugular vein and reveals fangs fully four inches in length.

If my attention wandered it was because I was reflecting, though not aloud, upon the strange fact that it is quite possible to hate a man even though he be numbered among your closest friends.

Item: A perceptive comment from my octogenarian friend C. K. Morison on the philosophy expressed in Desiderata which appeared here as a New Year's column.

Writes C.K.: "Having passed 80 I now feel that I am entitled to 'go placidly amid the noise and haste.' I have those philosophical remarks hanging in my front porch, but I have been wondering whether Karl Marx would not label that, too, as 'opium for the people?' While decent people wander around placidly, feeling that 'the universe is unfolding as it should', the panhandlers and thugs, in high places and in low places, quietly take us for a ride and constantly cook up new ways to take us for a ride."

Too terribly true. I know of no truly outstandingly successful man who hasn't broken most or all of the Desiderata commandments. Or as Leo Durocher put it: Nice guys finish last.

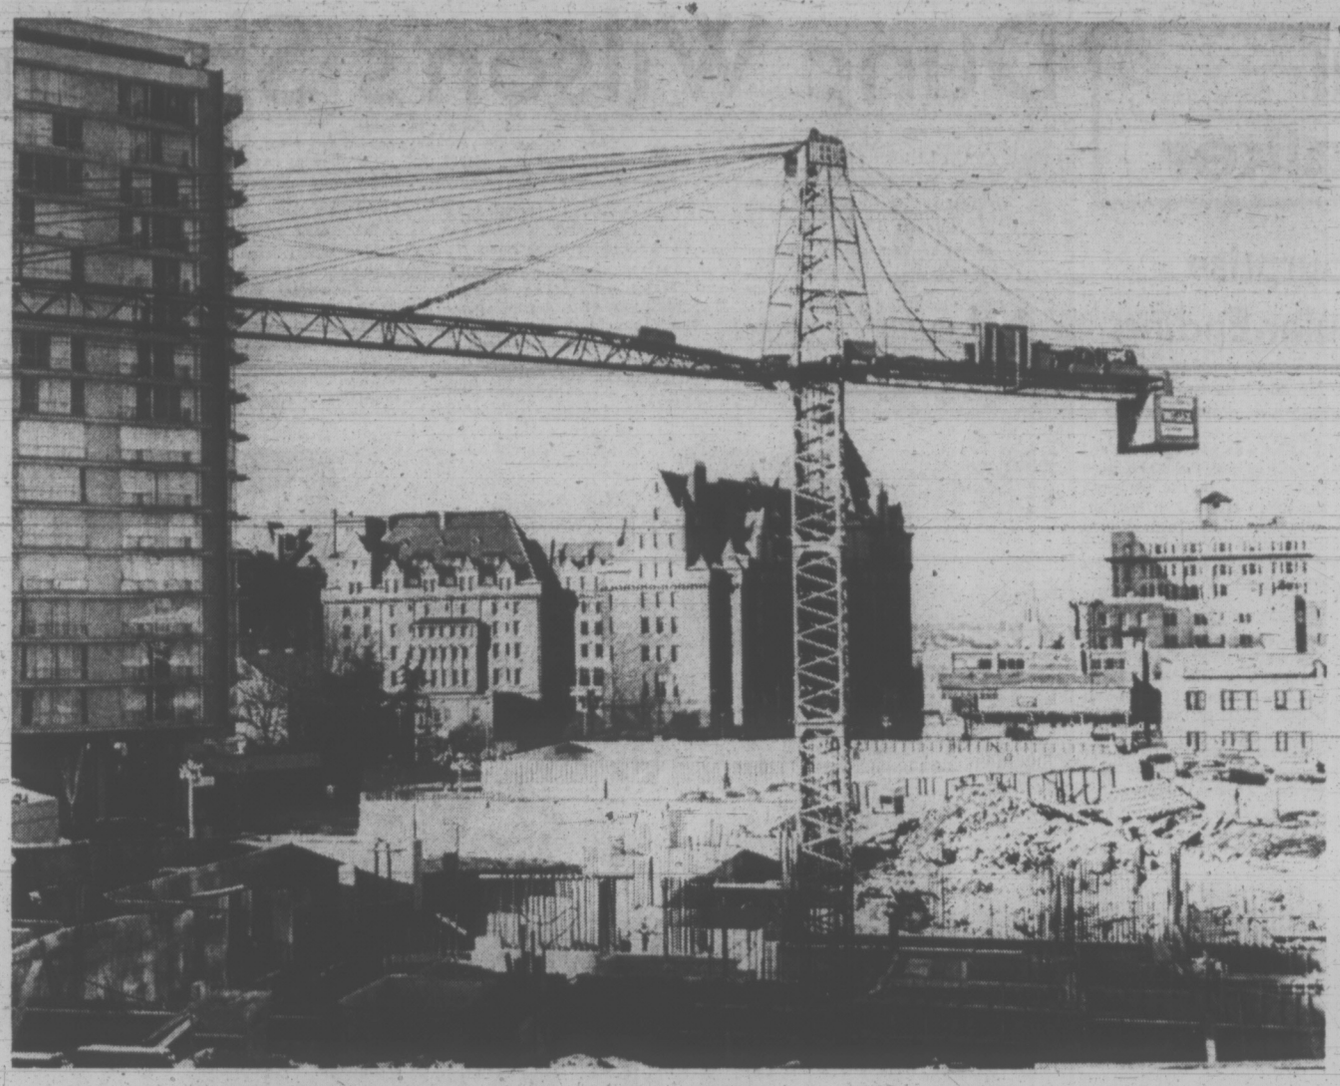
Item: Yet another case of Disenchantment with the Empress, sadly an increasing phenomenon, this time from CKDA's commentator John Mackin who forgot his wallet and arrived with his wife at the hotel's New Year's Eve dinner dance with just 10 dollars in his pocket.

Mackin, it seems, consulted a short wine list and settled on a Chablis priced at $5.50. When the Chablis that arrived was priced at $9.50 John complained and was told, peremptorily, without apology, that "they were out of the wine I had ordered and take it or leave it."

Addressing Louis Finamore, the hotel's general manager, Macklin went on the air to say this: "Can you imagine, Mr. Finamore, listing a wine without first checking your cellar to find out if you can serve it? I have sampled the hospitality of hotels in England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria and Germany and I can tell you, Mr. Finamore, that is not the way a hotel of the first class performs . . . I am of the opinion that things ain't what they used to be."

Since I've a couple of dozen letters with similar complaints, most of them involving the Empress Christmas Day dinner, I'm wondering if Louis' greatest challenge isn't to shine up, locally, the tarnished image of an institution we want to love.



Where Louis Dwelt

Striking scenario of contrasts is presented by huge climbing crane against the backdrop of the dowager Empress Hotel.

The crane is being used on the $1 million Chateau Victoria, 470 Burdett, due to be completed March 1974.

The L-shaped 14-storey project, being built on the site of the old "Parrot House" (Louis' home) of the late Mrs. Victoria Wilson, will contain 66 motel units and 120 apartments.

A separate 20,000 square-foot office wing will front on Courtney. Plans are also being studied for a restaurant on the top floor. The project is being built for V. G. Joint Venture by Farmer Construction Ltd.

Fast Start on Housing Push

Vancouver Co-Op May Play Big Role, Says Alderman

Ald. Alf Hood, the man charged with directing Victoria's thrust for a major housing program in 1973, was quick off the mark this week in tackling the groundwork for the assignment he was given Monday by Mayor Peter Pollen.

Among his top priorities, Hood said today, will be pushing ahead with development proposals for the four-acre site on McCaskill Street which the city is selling to the provincial government's land bank.

Hood has high hopes that the United Housing Foundation, the Vancouver co-operative responsible for the acclaimed De Cosmos Village housing project, will play a a major part in developing the 70-unit McCaskill site in Victoria West.

He has already met with the foundation's officials, and received an invitation to view their complex at an early date.

"It sounds quite terrific," he commented, adding that the UHF has expressed keen interest in the possibilitites for a similar development in Victoria West.

Hood is determined that, whatever council manages to achieve in the housing field this year, there will be no massive concentrations of low-income homes as typified by Blanshard Court.

This has been accomplished by the De Cosmos scheme, he noted, where there is a wide range of incomes from about $1,000 up to $12,000, and an age spectrum from 23 to 85.

"The idea is to get a real mix," he added.

Hood said the UHF has been concerned solely with non-profit development of land for home ownership, but he is hopeful that arrangements can also be made for some rental accommodation at the McCaskill site.

Victoria is negotiating to sell the land to the province for $350,000.

What about other sites? Here lies a thorny problem, the alderman admitted, because most of the city-owned land is either not suitable for housing or is being held for other purposes, such as parks or street improvements.

Hood said finding areas within city boundaries large enough for a 15- or 20-unit development is going to be extremely difficult, and he envies the "vast tracts" which outlying municipalities have available.

The answer may be to tackle housing on a regional basis, he speculated.

Looking ahead to a busy year, Hood says besides travelling to such places as Burnaby and Calgary which have accomplished a great deal in housing he wants to meet with local "potential user groups," developers, property managers and contractors.

One purpose behind such discussions would be to find out what can be done locally to help meet the pressing need for apartment accommodation for young families with children, and also for single-parent families.

Hood admitted that city council had achieved little or nothing on the housing front last year, and said there were two possible reasons for that failure: fear of the heavy cost to the city and a feeling of disappointment that areas such as Blanshard Court had not produced the expected results.

The city's new impetus, as reflected in Pollen's inaugural address Monday, was a response to the provincial government's determination to promote vigorous housing programs, and to the pledge of federal assistance under amendments to the National Housing Act, he explained.

"This means that funds are going to be available for various types of projects which will relieve municipal authorities from coming up with actual funds."

Municipal participation, Hood said, would be mainly confined to trying to find land at a reasonable cost, and encouraging mixed development through co-operatives.

CBC Studying City Station

A CBC executive in Ottawa said today that an application for a CBC television station in Victoria could be submitted by or before Jan. 19.

Contacted by phone, David Orr confirmed rumors that an application was in the offing:

"Certainly we are working on an application," he said, "the Canadian Radio-TV Commission indicated quite some time ago that they would consider an application for Victoria on Channel 10.

"We have until Jan. 19 to make an application and if we can get some technical answers before then the application will go in."

Orr said the location of a suitable site was one of the main difficulties.

He added that his department could get the necessary information "either tomorrow, or next week."

Earlier, former Victoria mayor R. B. Wilson said the CBC is "quite intensively" studying the establishment of television facilities in Victoria.

British Columbia's representative on the CBC's board of governors, Wilson said today:

"It is the accepted policy of the CBC, the Canadian Radio-TV Commission and the federal government that ultimately all provincial capitals have CBC services."

Victoria is the only provincial capital with neither a CBC television station nor radio station.

He added that providing Victoria with CBC facilities is a "question of when and how."

Wilson said the question of installing joint aerial facilities on Saturna Island had been considered:

"It (the aerial) would have to be made higher so that joint use could be made by several stations. However, I understand the ministry of transport frowned on this."

Wilson said he had been trying to contact CBC president Lauren Pickard in Ottawa today but had been unable to reach him.

A number of years ago the CBC was granted a reservation on a television broadcasting channel to enable it to transmit directly from a Victoria station. The channel has since been lost and in view of heavy demand for broadcasting channels in this area it was expected the reservation would not easily be regained.

Q. You had an answer in Ask the Times on Saturday saying only the Royal Canadian Legion crest can be worn on a legion blazer. I understand a person can wear any crest on a legion blazer, as long as it's from his regiment. Is this true? B.S.

A. A Royal Canadian Legion spokesman says members can and do wear their regimental crests on legion blazers. However, correct legion regalia is still the blazer with the legion crest, grey pants, the legion tie and beret.

'Safest Home Built In the World'

Developer Hits Highrise Fire Trap Rap

Victoria developer Jim Mace jumped to the defence of highrises Tuesday when a Vancouver urban affairs commentator claimed that high towers are "impossible to fight fires in."

Mace claimed that highrise buildings erected in Canada over the past five to 10 years are the "safest residential accommodation that have yet been built in Canada or any other country in the world."

The statement was greeted with some laughter. When Mace was asked by someone how he could substantiate that remark he replied . . . "because of our engineers, our architects and our rules."

Michael Crampton, speaker at the Sierra Club meeting at Landsowne College is a teacher of urban affairs at Capilano College and a broadcaster. He said the synthetic materials used in modern apartment construction are highly flammable and where buildings have a core of adjacent stairs and elevator shafts there is a "most gorgeous chimney."

Mace retorted: "I feel the people who live in these buildings deserve more than people like yourself. . . ."

Crampton's theme was the manipulation of local government by those in property development and real estate, to serve their own interests. He said this process came about because the manipulators are, in a sense, filling a vacuum created by apathetic citizens and inactive councils.

"Apathy is the most important ingredient in politics," he said. "You have to ask yourself who is being apathetic. Obviously it is not the developers — it's not in their own interests to be so."

But when one listener asked what the cure to apathy is, Crampton said there was no magic formula for plucking people from their firesides "short of topless aldermen or something like that."

He said informed, active and innovative citizen groups are the only real hope of coming to grips with civic politics, as city halls across the country have been in the hands of the property industry for a long time.

In this respect, Crampton said, Victoria is not much different from other cities, although he conceded that here "it is rather harder to pin labels on members of city council."

After reading some extracts from the recently published study of James Bay by the city's planning department, he said the naivety evident in some of the official attitudes would not have escaped a hammering in cities such as Vancouver where there are scores of aggressive citizen groups.

"This report reveals a cast of mind now obsolescent in most communities in B.C. and certainly in Vancouver — as I thought it would be in Victoria following the election of a reformist mayor," he said.

But Mayor Peter Pollen, while appearing "acutely committed to a change of direction," also gave the impression of behaving "in an incoherent way," he said.

Crampton was reluctant to be drawn into any discussion on specific civic matters in Victoria, but he did say it was "rather interesting", to note the make-up of Victoria's Board of Variance, which is charged with considering routine zoning matters.

This body, which by its actions has the potential to create land values, has five members, three of whom without doubt are concerned with the property industry and possibly a fourth as well, Crampton said.

The fourth member was listed as an investment man, "and that covers a multitude of sins," he added.

Curling: A Surprise With a Popular Ending

"Whitey" is like that. He can't be anything but dead honest. Even in his moment of glory.

Yes, Les Brice freely admits that he was just as surprised as everyone else when his rink qualified for the Vancouver Island Consols playdowns at the Victoria Club on the weekend. "We hoped we might win three games," he said of his all-firefighter foursome of third Lonnie Restell, second Stanley Thame, and lead Al Hayton. But they won five, and now are in the Island final along with young Tim Horrigan, of Victoria, and veterans Gord Stewart and Glen Harper of Duncan.

LES BRICE

For Brice, it isn't all new. He was a third with skip Keith Dagg "about nine years ago" in the Island final, and lost out for a PCAA berth on last rock at Nanaimo. "I won't forget that one," he reminisced. Dagg's front end then consisted of Barry Harvey and Jackie Trueman.

Since then, except for last year, Brice has given it a try every season, but this is his first as skip.

"We may not be the greatest rink," he also confided after Saturday's clinching win over Stewart in "A" side, "but we curled consistently, hung in there, and that helped.

"We know our weaknesses, with turns and whatnot," he added, "but somehow we always seemed to get the shot we needed! As for some of the favorites, who now are out, Brice said: "I don't think they were that sharp."

At Baseball, 'Most Valuable'

A modest approach to a popular win, but a delightfully refreshing one. But then Brice is like that too.

Besides he is almost a curling aficionado. He is a major shareholder in Playland Enterprises, a club director, and one of those primarily responsible for the success enjoyed by both the Firefighters and Sportsmen's Curling Leagues.

A few years ago, when the high school youngsters needed a helping hand for a new league which was being formed, first to offer his services at Playland was the same Les Brice.

In the off season, Les is more than generally regarded as one of the best baseball players in town. And he has been at or near the top since he first broke into senior company at age 16, just 16 years ago.

He was on the Victoria Centennials team that won the Canadian championship at Brandon in 1970, and he competed in the world championship at Cartagena, Colombia, for Canada as a relief pitcher, and first baseman.

The next year, he was selected "most valuable" in the city. As a pitcher, he had an 8-1 record. He also managed Greaves, and played first base. In the B.C. championship final, he hurled the winner, a 1-0 gem, over Burnaby Villa. He was also "most valuable" in that tournament.

Last year, troubled by a bad knee, and sore arm, he didn't see too much action; but he did throw a no-hitter against Quesnel in the B.C. championship before losing to Villa in the final.

When the Strategy Is Built In

The nickname "Whitey" came about because of his likeness to "Whitey" Ford, a pitcher with New York Yankees.

"I was about the same size, modelled myself after him tried to copy his move to first (one of the best in baseball), heaved a lot of junk, and the name caught on."

Unnoticed by weekend spectators possibly was that "trick knee", which had been operated on last fall. "It was sore afterwards, and the pain sharp, like needles," Les admitted. "I had some loose fragments in it, and I think some are still there!"

A keen student of sport, Les revealed one secret: "You know, against Stewart, we noticed he didn't want to throw the out-turn takeout — he would always go to the in-turn — so we played him that way. For us, it was different. We had two lefthanders, Thame, and myself. For us, those were in-turns."

And Les will likely analyze his opponents the same way in the Island final, and also the Firefighters. He didn't miss by much in the latter last year. He lost out in the "A" final, and then to champion Aubrey Neff, 7-6, in the Grand Championship with the same rink he has now.

Busy as he was, Les didn't neglect his other duties either, on Saturday. In the midst of those five Consol wins, and 36 ends alone on Saturday, he showed up for his regular draw against Archie Browning in the Sportsmen's League.

The fact that he lost wasn't the surprise. The fact that he bothered to show up, was.

But Les, or "Whitey" is like that.

Dunc Wilson's Shutout Is a First

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dunc Wilson kicked out 33 shots in recording his first shutout of the National Hockey League season as Vancouver Canucks dumped St. Louis Blues 3-0 before 15,570 fans at Pacific Coliseum Tuesday night.

Wilson played flawlessly as Vancouver broke a four-game losing streak to give them 30 points in the eastern division — four points fewer than sixth-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

It was Wilson's second NHL shutout and the first for the Canucks in Vancouver.

Don Tannahill, Dennis Kearns and Bryan McSheffrey pumped in a goal apiece for Vancouver as Canucks took a 1-0 lead at the end of the first period and added two unanswered goals in the final period.

Following a scoreless first period Vancouver grabbed a 1-0 lead when Tannahill beat St. Louis netminder Wayne Stephenson from the side of the net.

Tannahill flipped in an Andre Boudrias' rebound high over Stephenson's shoulder for his 14th goal of the season to give Vancouver the lead after Wilson had played outstanding goal to keep the Blues off the scoresheet, kicking out 21 shots in the first two periods.

Kearns added an insurance goal at 15:22 of the final period when his shot from the left pointed slipped by Stephenson, who was screened on the play.

McSheffrey rounded out the scoring at 18:54, banging in Dale Tallon's rebound from the right side.

Vancouver fired only 23 shots at Stephenson in handing the Blues the loss.

St. Louis remains in seventh spot in the western division, five points behind Philadelphia Flyers.

BUSY AND EFFECTIVE MAN for Canucks Tuesday night at Vancouver was goalie Dunc Wilson, who recorded his first shutout of National Hockey League season as Canucks blasted St. Louis Blues 3-0. Helping Wilson apply whitewash was this first-period play, in which he stole puck away from Jack Egers, who had moved into point-blank range. Wilson ended up with total of 33 saves. Rival Wayne Stephenson blocked 20 Vancouver shots. (CP Wirephoto)

Kings Show Sympathy

By The Canadian Press

Bob Pulford looked somewhat embarrassed Tuesday night after his Los Angeles Kings squeaked by New York Islanders 3-2 to move into third place in the National Hockey League's West Division.

What can a coach say after checking the first-year Islanders, a feat most clubs have done with increasing regularity and without nearly as much difficulty?

"I'm glad I'm finished playing against the Islanders," was Pulford's honest reply. "This is the best I've seen them play."

The Kings won four of the five meetings between the two clubs this season. The victory gave Los Angeles 42 points, one behind the second-place Minnesota North Stars and just one up on Atlanta Flames, another first-year team.

Pulford wasn't ready to gloat over the Islanders' ineptness after they set a club record of eight straight losses. He and most of the Kings know how it feels.

Just a year ago, it was the Kings who were wallowing in the cellar, finding it difficult to grab any sympathetic points, just as the New Yorkers are this year.

The Islanders, with four victories against 33 losses in 41 games, are in Toronto against the Maple Leafs tonight. In other games, Montreal Canadiens visit Minnesota, Detroit Red Wings are at Pittsburgh Penguins, Atlanta is host to Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis goes against California Golden Seals at Oakland.

"I think scoring those three goals so quickly probably had an effect on us—it put us to sleep," Pulford said in a post-game interview, referring to goals by Mike Corrigan, Serge Bernier and Vic Venasky by the 3:44 mark of the opening period.

Islanders goalie Gerry Desjardins held them in check the rest of the way, however, and scores by Dave Hudson in the second and Brian Spencer in the third had the Kings' victory hanging in doubt to the final whistle.

Little Gary Makes It Big

By The Canadian Press

Gary Veneruzzo, like many of his World Hockey Association colleagues, got little opportunity to prove his worth in the National Hockey League.

And just as did so many dissatisfied NHLers of a year ago, Veneruzzo decided to give the WHA a whirl, a decision he has not regretted.

The 29-year-old right winger from Thunder Bay scored the winner at 1:57 of overtime Tuesday as Los Angeles Sharks nipped Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-3 at St. Paul, Minn.

It was his 24th goal of the fledgling WHA campaign. He also helped on the equalizer by J. P. Parise with just 12 seconds remaining in regulation time to send the game into extra minutes.

Elsewhere, Houston Aeros upset New England Whalers 7-5 and Ottawa's light-scoring Bob Charlebois tallied twice in the third period to lead the Nationals over Quebec Les Nordiques 7-5.

Alberta Oilers visit Winnipeg Jets tonight with Philadelphia Blazers entertaining New York Raiders and Los Angeles at Chicago Cougars filling out the schedule.

Veneruzzo, who labored in the Toronto Maple Leaf chain for three years after graduating from Thunder Bay Canadiens, and played part of one season with Victoria Maple Leafs, discovered that size was against him in the NHL.

At 5-foot-8 and 165 pounds, he hardly met the requirements of a major leaguer at that time — 1964—when the scouts looked for monsters in addition to talent and gave their nod of approval to an adequate big man over the good small man.

Veneruzzo was drafted by St. Louis Blues in the 1967 NHL expansion and again showed the parent club brass he was a big producer in the minors.

But in five years with the Blues, he played only six games for St. Louis. Although he set a Western League record at Denver last year scoring one or more goals in 10 consecutive games for the Spurs, Veneruzzo wasn't prepared to wait any longer.

His 41-goal season also made him good bargaining grounds for the Sharks who selected him in the WHA's universal draft last February, signing him in July.

GOLFER'S SURGERY SUCCESS

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Jocelyne Bourassa, 1972 rookie of the year on the women's professional golf tour, is resting comfortably after surgery to remove a piece of cartilage from her knee, says the doctor who performed the operation.

Dr. Marc Michaud said in an interview the operation Tuesday on Miss Bourassa's left knee was successful and she should be able to play golf again within a few weeks.

"Jocelyne will stay a day or two in the hospital then she'll be able to go home to Shawinigan."

A spokesman for Miss Bourassa said Tuesday night she is expected to require crutches for about two weeks. After two weeks at home, Miss Bourassa plans to convalesce at the Florida home of fellow golfer Janie Blalock.

Barrie Club Tied

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, West Germany (Reuter) — Alois Schloder's goal at 19:20 of the third period lifted the West German Internationals to a 5-5 tie with touring Barrie Flyers on Ontario in an exhibition hockey game Tuesday night.

The Road to Nanaimo Beckons Two Cougars

Edmonton Oil Kings, opening a four-game West Coast visit, made the trip over the Rockies. For two Victoria Cougars, the concern is the Malahat and the road to Nanaimo.

The open-road traffic policy between the Western Canada Junior Hockey League and affiliate tier two teams shuts down tonight.

After the midnight deadline, only limited player movement will be allowed.

Cougars will finalize their 19-man roster after tonight's Memorial Arena meeting with Oil Kings. Manager-coach Eric Bishop said game performances will help determine any last-minute changes.

Cliff McNabb, manager of Nanaimo Clippers, the B.C. Junior League affiliate, has asked for two players. Clippers are in contention for the Coast Division championship and McNabb feels a defenceman and a proven forward may help Nanaimo's cause.

Bishop said a decision will be announced after tonight's game.

Oil Kings, who play in Vancouver Thursday and return to Victoria Saturday night, are lodged in a tight four-way fight for Western Division honors in the WCHL. Oil Kings, Calgary Centennials and Medicine Hat Tigers are jammed in second, one point behind New Westminster Bruins.

But the Oil Kings have the benefit of five games in hand over the Bruins and Calgary, and three on Medicine Hat.

Results of two of Tuesday's three games added to the West traffic pileup.

Tigers made the big gain by defeating Winnipeg Jets 7-4 while Calgary's climb was stalled by a 5-2 loss to the Blades in Saskatoon. In Tuesday's only other game, a seven-point performance by centre Dennis Sobchuk powered Regina Pats to a 9-3 triumph over Swift Current Broncos.

Lanny McDonald scored two goals and set up three to spark Tigers. Centre Tom Lysiak contributed four assists and took over the individual scoring lead with 79 points.

Ramblers Rally To Nip Runners

It wasn't exactly the kind of effort expected from a club that last year won the provincial championship, but Mount Douglas Ramblers bounced from behind Tuesday to snatch a victory as a new season opened for teams in the Victoria High School Girls' Basketball League.

Shocked in the opening half as Reynolds Roadrunners scooter to a big lead that at one time reached 18 points, the Ramblers charged down the stretch and got to the front just in time to nip the Runners 42-40.

Shirley Skaroop hit for 19 points to pace the Roadrunners, who snatched a 14-4 lead in the opening quarter were leading 22-13 at the half.

Mairi Anne Longmore (11 points) and Alix Bawlf (10) were top snipers for the Ramblers.

In other games, Oak Bay breezed past Claremont 35-19; Esquimalt Dockettes, with Cathy Wilkinson (13) and Debbie Knowles (12) setting the scoring pace, nipped Mount View 30-26, and Belmont Tomahawks downed the Tigerettes 34-27 at Victoria High.

Annemarie Wins Again

PFRONTEN, Germany (CP-AP) — Annemarie Proell of Austria today won her second World Cup ski downhill event in two days. Laurie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., finished a surprise fourth — her best-ever finish in a downhill event.

Miss Proell also won Tuesday's downhill event in which Miss Kreiner, 18, finished fifth, her previous best downhill finish.

Totems Scalp Braves in Opener

Victoria High School Totems may be ready to spring some surprises in this season's race for honors in the Victoria High School Boys Basketball League.

Totems displayed some superb defending and some slick shooting to produce an impressive triumph Tuesday night as eight prep teams launched a new campaign.

Going against Belmont Braves, last year's league champions, the Totems took charge on their home court after battling to a 12-12 deadlock in the opening quarter.

They held the Braves to a mere two points and collected 16 in the second session to reach the half with a 28-14 lead. From there, the Vics were able to coast, notching 16 points in each of the last two quarters to wind up with a 60-34 triumph.

Mount Douglas Rams, rated one of the top contenders this time around, whipped Reynolds Roadrunners 75-45 with Kevin Worth (21) and Doug Mosher (18) sparking the scoring surge. Avtar Bains did his best for the Runners, hitting for 23 points at Mount Douglas.

Oak Bay Bays were also in a scoring mood as they started their season on home boards. Brian Sutherland-Brown (13), Chris Trumpy (13) and Grant Boland (12) were prominent in a balanced attacking force as the Bays bombed Claremont Spartans 70-44. Brian Montgomery notched 13 for Claremont.

Mount View Hornets proved their potential power on a visit to Esquimalt, rolling past the Dockers 60-28 after having some trouble in the opening quarter.

Kilmer Might Have Been Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Kilmer whipped tremendous odds to make Super Bowl VII as Washington Redskin quarterback. He could've been a one-legged cripple or even dead.

The one-time UCLA singlewing tailback was almost killed in a 1962 automobile wreck. Even when survival was assured, doctors debated whether to amputate Kilmer's mangled right leg.

Later, there were doubts if he'd walk again.

"Those were anxious days," Kilmer said Tuesday. "Just a few of the reasons why I might not be lucky enough to be sitting here with reporters, talking about playing the Miami Dolphins in the Super Bowl."

Kilmer, now 33, was once a member of the angry fraternity of quarterbacks that have played behind ageless John Brodie with San Francisco '49ers. He preceded George Mira and Steve Spurrier in the undesired role as Brodie's understudy.

"I never got a chance as a T-formation quarterback until 1967," said the man who assumed the Redskin leadership after Sonny Jurgensen's heel injury at mid-season. "Even then, my Super Bowl chances weren't too hot."

Kilmer figured he'd be an old man before New Orleans Saints, who grabbed him in a 1967 expansion draft, threatened to ascend the higher plateaus of the National Football League.

Then came George Allen.

The Washington coach, who believes youth in pro football is a misfortune, noted that Kilmer again was backstage after the Saints drafted college star Archie Manning of Mississippi to direct their attack.

Kilmer was available at a bargain price.

Allen wanted a veteran to back up Jurgensen and it has paid off twice.

Kilmer bailed out the 'Skins in 1971 when Jurgensen was hurt, passing for 2,221 yards and 13 touchdowns as Washington made the NFL playoffs for the first time in 27 years.

When Sonny was hurt again this season, Kilmer again did the job.

He hit 53 per cent of his passes for 1,648 yards and 19 touchdowns. He fired two scoring passes to Charley Taylor as Washington swamped defending Super Bowl champion Dallas 26-3 in the National Football Conference title game.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Bowler-of-the-Year winner in 1966-67 season, Bill Cool Sr. has captured men's fivepin award in 12th week of annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. Bill toppled division as he rolled 325-352-285 — 962 series in Wednesday Classic League at Cush's Bowl-a-Golf Spa.

Argo Coach Confirmed

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts confirmed Tuesday night that John Rauch, former head coach at Oakland and Buffalo, has been signed to a three-year contract as head coach of the Canadian Football League team.

Argo general manager John Barrow said in a telephone interview from Chicago, where the two met at the annual American Football Coaches Association convention, that he expected Rauch to provide the discipline necessary to make Toronto a winning organization.

"John Rauch will be the type of coach who demands total respect from his players and total discipline," said Barrow.

Rauch, 44, replaces Leo Cahill as head coach. Cahill was dropped after the 1972 Eastern Football Conference season when the Argos finished out of the playoffs.

The only stipulation that Argo management had in the agreement was that at least one of Rauch's three assistants must have been either a coach or assistant coach in the CFL.

The former all-American at the University of Georgia established himself as a top-flight coach at Oakland where the Raiders compiled a 33-8-1 mark during his three seasons, 1967 to 1969.

Oakland, American Football League champions in 1967, were beaten 33-14 by Green Bay Packers in the 1967 Super Bowl. Rauch resigned to join Buffalo in 1969 but after a hassle with Bills' owners he was released in July, 1971.

Nothing to Be Sneezed At

"We have a couple of boys just getting over the flu," Dolphins coach Don Shala told reporters at his Tuesday press conference. "Our doctors are keeping a close watch and making sure we don't catch anything."

Dr. P. M. Palumbo Jr., team physician of the Redskins, reported there were no new outbreaks on the Washington team which was hit with a mild siege a couple of weeks ago. But he said that all players were urged to take good care of themselves.

"We're advising good eating habits and a lot of rest as a matter of extra precaution," Palumbo said.

The battle for the National Football League championpionship is scheduled Sunday at the Coliseum. So far, both teams have escaped a flu outbreak in California which state health authorities say has approached the "epidemic threshhold."

The public health department reported 57 deaths from influenza and pneumonia in California's 11 largest cities the first week of 1973.

Several members of the Dolphins were sniffing but Shula listed only two team members who could be described as flu victims, and he said they brought the bug with them.

"Marv Fleming, our tight end, spent two days in the hospital and is not yet at full strength," the Miami coach said. Larry Seiple (tight end, punter) was in the hospital for a day. He is better. I'd say he is about 100 per cent."

IN HOSPITAL for tests to determine seriousness of abdominal injury suffered Monday night in 3-3 NHL tie against Minnesota North Stars, Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens will miss tonight's game against North Stars in Bloomington, Minn. Cournoyer was slammed into boards by Minnesota defenceman Ted Harris after scoring two Montreal goals.

Gulls Survive Late Pressure

Juan de Fuca Gulls survived a cliff-hanging finish Tuesday night at Juan de Fuca Arena to edge Victoria Nixons 5-4 and take a more comfortable lead in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

In an earlier game on the same ice surface, Saanich Block Brothers got two-goal efforts from Tom Tillotson, Dwight Crockett and Mark Bowles and derailed Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking 9-3.

After Norm Allen counted his second goal of the night at 17 minutes of the third period to lift Victoria within one goal, at 5-4, Nixons buzzed around the Juan de Fuca net and the Gulls needed both determination and good fortune to remain in front.

Steve Leatham also scored twice for Nixons while Ed Nichols notched two tallies for the Gulls, who got their other goals from Al Goldade, Barry McLachlan and Mark Naylor.

Helen Young Leads After Strong Finish

Helen Young, Bev Clarke, Andy McLeary and Morris Kersey are the early leaders in Victoria zone rolloffs leading to the Canadian Tenpin Federation championships at Montreal in May.

They moved out in front last weekend at Mayfair Lanes and will be hoping to retain their positions when remaining contestants bowl for berths Saturday at Mayfair.

Leaders in the Victoria rolloffs will advance to the provincial competition in Vancouver on Jan. 21 and the B.C. winners will go to Montreal for shots at national titles.

Mrs. Young fired 200 in her final game to come out on top in a three-way battle with former Canadian champion Lorna Pollock and Shirl Lewis in the women's scratch event. Helen finished with an even count of 1,800 for 10 games while Lorna, closing with 153, tallied 1,762, and Shirl wound up at 1,754 after a 134 last game.

Handicap berths are being decided over six games.

Bev Clarke notched 1,045-76 —1,121 to set the distaff handicap pace and Kersey paced the male keglers with 1,096-86 — 1,182.

Thieves Invade Tony's Mansion

WINCHCOMBE, England (Reuter) — British golfer Tony Jacklin, now in the United States, has been the victim of a $5,000 robbery, police said here.

Thieves broke into Jacklin's eight-bedroom 17th century mansion and took belongings including a pair of gold cufflinks in the shape of the British Open golf trophy, which he won in 1969.

Californian Joins Kings

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League have announced the signing of Henry Tailor, a 17-year-old winger from Berkeley, Calif.

Tailor, the second Negro player in Oil King history, started the season with Penticton Broncos, Edmonton's affiliate in the British Columbia Junior League.

Suspensions Follow Outburst at Comox

The British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association has lifted the BCAHA membership of Vince Vickers, a juvenile of Nanaimo, for a high-sticking attack against a Comox player last month.

The decision was announced by Ivan Temple, secretary-manager of the BCAHA.

Vickers cut the Comox player for 19 stitches on the bridge of the nose and above the eye with a two-handed attack, the BCAHA report said.

It was a rough game in which 21 penalties were called, including three bench minors and two misconducts.

In addition, the two coaches were also suspended. Roy Pottinger of Nanaimo and Jay Kroeplin of Comox had their memberships lifted until Feb. 10, 1973.

Vickers' suspension will last until Dec. 23, 1973.

Scorpions Add to Attack

BILL ROBINSON
... excellent shooter

Victoria Scorpions, looking ahead to their provincial senior "A" basketball playoffs next month, have added shooting power to an already potent attack.

Scorpions announced the signing of Bill Robinson, a 5-foot-10 guard and an excellent outside shooter who averaged nearly 30 points a game for Simon Fraser University Clansmen. He's also a former member of Canada's teams in Pan-American and Olympic games.

Robinson, completing his studies at SFU, has moved back to his home in Chemainus. The 23-year-old sharpshooter played twice against Scorpions earlier this season, scoring more than 30 points in each contest he played for SFU Alumni.

Robinson will be eligible to play for Scorpions when they meet the champions of the Vancouver Dogwood League in the B.C. Senior "A" playoffs starting Feb. 17 in Victoria.

But another player signed by Scorpions, Gary Smith, won't be able to compete in the playoffs. That's because Smith, also a Simon Fraser grad and former Pan-Am and Olympic performer, lives in Vancouver and thus is ineligible. He'll play exhibition games for Victoria.

Scorpions hope to announce the appointment of a coach by the end of the week.

Eight of the 10 games are at home.

The only road contests are this weekend when Scorpions play Tacoma Plywood at Tacoma Saturday, then move to Renton for a game against Renton Roadrunners Sunday.

Tacoma placed second in the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union championships two years ago while Roadrunners won the AAU title twice and feature several former pros. Renton holds victories over Seattle University the Seattle Ruth Realty, a top Senior "A" club, this season.

Scorpions' schedule after this weekend has the team at home to Richmond Ramblers Jan. 20 and 21, Bellingham Jan. 27 and 28, Tacoma Plywood Feb. 3 and 4 and Renton Roadrunners Feb. 10 and 11.

Bart Starr Ends Football Career

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, veteran Green Bay Packer quarterback who retired before the start of the 1972 season and became an assistant coach, announced Tuesday he had decided on a career in business instead of football.

Starr said that although his official association with the Packers had ended, he would continue to assist coach Dan Devine "for the next few weeks."

Boxers Dropped In Hoop Upset

Bustling Jim Cunningham produced the slickest scoring punch Tuesday night at Cedar Hill Junior High School as the pace-setting London Boxing Club squad reeled to an upset defeat in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League.

Cunningham swished shots through the hoop for 25 points to spark third-place YMCA to a 65-53 triumph over the Boxers and within four points of the runner-up Hotel Douglas crew.

Bill Spotswood fired 13 points for the winners while Jack Robinson notched 23 for the Boxers, who now have eight victories and three defeats in 11 games.

Flyers Facing Charges?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says it has learned that charges will be laid against members of the Philadelphia Flyers as a result of a disturbance at a National Hockey League game here Dec. 29.

The newspaper said possible charges include assault, creating a disturbance and at least one count of assaulting a police officer.

City prosecutor Stewart McMorran declined comment on the report Tuesday night, saying his department has received reports on the incident but "during the course of an investigation it would be quite improper for me to discuss it."

The Province says the Philadelphia players will be charged when the team arrives here for a game against the Vancouver Canucks Feb. 9.

The disturbance occurred when a spectator leaned across the protective glass and pulled the hair of Philadelphia's Don Saleski, who was involved in a fight on the ice with Barry Wilkins of Vancouver. When the fan became involved, several Philadelphia players climed into the stands, swinging their sticks.

Several fans were struck and city police corporal Don Brown was knocked down.

A Williams Lake pilot and his two unidentified passengers were guided to safety Sunday after his Piper Cherokee aircraft became lost.

At 8:36 p.m., the Pacific Reserve Co-ordinating Centre received a call from the Vancouver air control centre reporting that the Piper Cherokee was lost.

Cartwright reported he was at 13,000 feet. He declared an emergency, saying he had only two hours of fuel remaining.

A Buffalo aircraft was airborn at 9:15 p.m. and at 9:44 p.m. two Voodoo interceptor jets were scrambled out of Comox.

Meanwhile, a Harrison Airways plane from Vancouver — believed to be a DC 3 — was in the area where Cartwright was lost. The pilot established contact with Cartwright, getting him southbound.

At the time Holberg got a blip on him, Cartwright was about 90 miles north of Port Hardy near McInnes Island, just west of Ocean Falls.

From there the Buffalo guided the Piper Cherokee, which is believed to have had compass trouble, into Port Hardy.

A PRCC spokesman, recounting the incident, said, "That was a lucky one. Things went clickety-click-click. It's beautiful when it happens like that."

BUCKERFIELDS UNDECIDED ON MOVE

Buckerfields Ltd. has concluded that its feed manufacturing division at 506 Pandora is not ideally-located but has not yet decided what to do about it.

Feed division manager H. M. Corkum of Vancouver said Tuesday the company may decide to move elsewhere on the Island or may stay in the Victoria area.

"We have not yet reached a decision.

"We have an old operation in Victoria and we are trying to make it economical to carry on there," he said.

Buckerfields employs some 25 workers, about half in retail and the rest in manufacturing.

Corkum said the alternatives included the possibility of constructing a building.

"Whatever happens, we will continue to be in business on Vancouver Island."

Buckerfield's has a lease on the Pandora building which expires in December, 1974.

Victoria manager S. L. Biggs earlier said he was confident that the retail operation would remain in Victoria and the manufacturing division would stay on Vancouver Island.

Other sources indicated that among sites being considered for Buckerfield's manufacturing division is Duncan.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Two Kamloops men were sentenced in provincial court Tuesday on charges of breaking into two Victoria television stores Dec. 21.

Judge William Ostler gave Timothy Andrew Pelton, 22, a suspended sentence and placed him on two years' probation for his part in two break-ins, one at B and N Electronics, 2041 Oak Bay and the other at the Television Service Centre, 1014 Cook. In both stores, a color TV set was stolen.

Ostler decided against a jail sentence for Pelton on the grounds that the thefts were hopefully a "once in a lifetime" event for the accused.

Pelton's co-accused, Franklin Dwayne Capostinsky, also 22, was sent to jail for six months, to be followed by 18 months probation on each of the Victoria charges. The same sentence was imposed by Ostler on the accused for a Kamloops breaking and entering and theft charge which had been waived to Victoria. Sentences are to run concurrently.

The judge agreed with prosecutor Walter Anderson that Capostinsky "had exhausted the charitable considerations" of society and no longer merited a lenient sentence.

Greg Danbrook, 17, of 1010 Fairfield, was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation for possession of hashish Nov. 7.

Brian Kirk Higgins, 25, of 2100 Fernwood, was given a suspended sentence and placed on nine months' probation for possession of hashish Dec. 1.

A Victoria man was fined $100 and placed on six month's probation on a reduced charge of common assault.

David Stevenson, of Work Point Barracks, had originally been charged with causing grievous bodily harm to Peter Renyk, 108-1655 Chambers, in an Esquimalt Road apartment Sep. 28. This charge was dropped by mutual consent of the Crown and Stevenson's defence counsel.

Douglas Edgar Flynn, 19, of 734 Lampson, was given a suspended sentence and placed on one year's probation for his part in a Dec. 19 break-in at the Bacchanalia Restaurant on Esquimalt Road.

Another 19-year-old, Robert Christensen, was remanded to Jan. 24 for sentence. He also pleaded guilty with Flynn Dec. 20, the day after the incident.

Last Riverboat Damaged by Fire

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fire started by a short circuit in wiring caused an estimated $2,300 damage Sunday to the Delta Queen, the United States' only remaining overnight passenger riverboat, officials said.

The fire was near the officers' quarters on the top deck. No injuries were reported.

This Doctor Makes House Calls . . . And He's Making Money

FAIRFAX, Calif. (AP) — Frank Lathrope carries wrenches and pliers alongside a stethoscope and forceps in his little black bag.

His two partners are similarly equipped, and their converted postal truck has a handy selection of timing lights, compression testers, ignition parts, fan belts and other tools found in a normal service station.

Lathrope, Neil Crowley and Michael Tachet run a "Car-Doc" business here that specializes in house calls.

Their bright-yellow truck is a miniature service station on wheels. It brings help to ailing autos wherever they may be 24 hours a day.

Lathrope said he has adapted the stethoscope useful for locating sinister noises in a running engine and the forceps and other tools for special mechanical tasks.

GETS NEW TOOLS

"I have a standing order with all the tool supply places to let me know when anything good comes in," he said. "If a tool can make the job easier or save time, I want it."

As for business, "There's a lot of people who don't like to take their cars and leave them in service stations for hours on end," Crowley said. "We work right there, wherever they have their car at."

He said some customers are awed to hear Car-Doc makes house calls and surprised at the flat $10 service charge.

Crowley said they are able to charge a low price because they don't have the overhead of keeping up a building.

The partners hold down other jobs and take turns running their auto service outfit, but soon they hope to have three fully-equipped trucks.

Germany Drafts Bacteria

BONN (Reuter) — An invisible army of bacteria is being enlisted to keep the Rhine from dying of pollution.

Two big West German chemical companies are cultivating the bacteria in large basins where they are fed daily with masses of polluted effluents. They gobble up the pollutants, digest them and transform them into sludge which settled at the bottom of the clearing basin.

The cleansed effluents then are led into the Rhine without posing a danger to fish or drinking water, which about 20 million people take — after chemical processing — from the river.

The effluent-cleaned centre at Dormagen between Cologne and Duesseldorf is one of the preventive measures taken by the Bayer chemical concern and Erdoelchemie, a joint subsidiary of Bayer and British Petroleum, to help keep the river alive.

A group of international scientists and politicians, travelling down the Rhine from Basle to Rotterdam for a firsthand look at the pollution problem, recently termed the river Europe's "largest sewer."

RIVER NEAR DEATH

The group warned that the water in parts of the 825-mile-long river is on the verge of clinical death because fish and aquatic life vital to regeneration are being killed off by pollution.

The Dormagen plant is the biggest of its kind in Europe, with the capacity of cleaning the effluents of a big city such as Munich with 1.3 million inhabitants.

Costing seven million marks about $2.2 million a year to maintain, the plant took years of tedious experimentation to complete.

Biological cleaning, which technicians copied from nature, is the last step of processing. Thousands of millions of bacteria are "fed" with the organic contents of the effluents, which they absorb as food.

OXYGEN USED

To create ideal conditions for the "micro-workers," mixers and a grid of 2,000 jets blow 85 tons of oxygen a day into the basin.

After 10 hours of work, which transforms the bacteria into a thick, brown and somewhat foamy sludge, the effluents run into post-clearing basins where the sludge settles within a few hours.

The remaining clean water then is led into the Rhine and the sludge is heated, dried moved away.

Company officials said they hope to increase the capacity of the $8.4-million plant to some 100,000 cubic yards a day.

Policeman Held In Slaying

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal police constable with 32 years' service is being held on a coroner's warrant in connection with the shooting death last May of 42-year-old Andre Lacasse.

Constable Gerard Cormier, 59, is to testify Friday at a coroner's inquest into the death.

Mr. Lacasse was sitting in the kitchen of his home with his wife and son shortly after midnight May 13 when a man wearing a black nylon stocking over his face entered the house, then fled after firing seven times with a .32 calibre pistol, police said.

At the time of the attack the victim was recovering from an earlier shooting. On Jan. 27, 1972, while shopping with his wife, he was shot six times.

Gangs Disrupt Pens

By STEVE LAWRENCE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The crowd of prisoners was moving toward the Chino prison yard when assailants stabbed three victims with homemade weapons and tossed two men over a second-storey railing.

The assault left one man dead and two seriously wounded.

A week later, several hundred miles north of Soledad prison, two prisoners were fatally stabbed almost simultaneously as they filed into different residence areas from breakfast.

Fourteen inmates have died in similar attacks this year in California's 13 prisons, victims of what is believed to be rivalry between two Mexican-American gangs.

Prison officials say the feud nearly doubled the number of prison slayings in 1972.

"They just can't live with each other," said San Quentin warden Louis Nelson of the two groups—the Mexican Mafia and the Nuestra Familia (Our Family).

Although racial conflict is common in many prisons, the Mafia-Familia feud is unique because it involves primarily Mexican-Americans on both sides and, according to officials, seems to be solely a California problem.

Further, Mexican-Americans are a minority in state prisons, numbering only about 2,400 out of a male prison population of 14,600. An estimated 150 inmates are considered "hardcore" gang members, while a few hundred more are termed "hangers-on."

FORMED NEW GANG

The gang friction began in the late 1960s—shortly after Mexican-Americans from California farming areas formed Our Family as a protection against the older Mafia, a group of Los Angeles area gang members.

At first Our Family had what one official called a "noble purpose," but it soon began battling Mafia members for control of prison drug traffic and extortion rackets.

The struggle intensified, and the Mafia brought in an ally, a white supremist group called the Aryan Brotherhood.

Ruben Coyle, assistant director of the department of Corrections, says gang members sometimes do little to cover up their fighting. Often they jump a rival before several other inmates—sometimes even in view of guards.

"They are fully dedicated to die for any reason," said a spokesman for the California Institution for Men at Chino.

"It's very difficult for us to do much," one official said. "We're trying to separate people and to talk publicly about the situation.

"Primarily, help will have to come from people on the outside. Those things have to be worked out in the community, because that's where the problem is."

Fraud Artist Remanded For Report

Alain Raymond Polzin, no fixed address, faced charges laid over a two-year period and involving about $3,400.

Charges run from 1963, with one count in New Westminster, two in Vancouver and one in Vernon. The two Victoria charges and one from Vancouver are dated 1964. In 1965, there were five charges from each of Grand Forks, Salmo, Creston, Kelowna, Penticton and Midway, B.C.

Polzin, who was arrested in Rutland this month, chose trial by magistrate in all cases and was remanded to Friday for pre-sentence report.

CHINA DENIES TOP EXPORT IS OPIUM

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China has criticized Soviet allegations that China earns millions of dollars a year through opium trafficking.

The New China news agency described the allegations by the Soviet Union's Tass news agency as "preposterous anti-China slander."

The Soviet agency's latest charge, said the New China agency, was that "China earns at least $12 billion to $15 billion a year by her opium trade abroad."

LOCAL FUNDS SOUGHT FOR QUAKE VICTIMS

These should be sent to Miss Peggy McDonald, 3944 Lauder Avenue.

NHA Changes Almost Ready—Basford

OTTAWA — Urban Affairs and Housing Minister Ron Basford told the Commons Tuesday he hopes to be in a position to introduce amendments to the housing act before the federal-provincial housing conference takes place Jan. 22 and 23. Those amendments will be discussed in the Parliament and at the conference.

Basford said there have been already two rounds of consultations with the provinces with reference to this matter. However the program envisaged in the amendments cannot be implemented until the legislation is passed, he pointed out. Earlier, Edward Broadbent (NDP — Oshawa-Whitby) sought assurances from the minister that the amendments will be introduced before the end of the next ten days.

Basford said he planned on intrducing them if possible before the federal-provincial conference. If that was not possible they would be introduced during the month of January, he assured the House.

In the field of housing the government has forecast the following action in co-operation with the provinces:

Assistance in the provision of low-cost housing and other accommodation for senior citizens.

Home-ownership assistance to low and moderate income families.

New incentives for housing provided by co-operatives and non-profit corporations.

Assistance in the rehabilitation of older neighbourhoods.

A land assembly program to assist in the creation of new communities and to check urban sprawl.

Encouragement to investors to make more money available to meet housing needs.

A warranty system to protect the purchaserers of new houses.

Eldon Woolliams (PC — Calgary North) asked what tect the purchasers of new to improve the housing situation.

Basford said there are ongoing programs with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. There is a sewer construction program on which large sums of money are being spent. He said the program was going forward with as much money as he was able to get from the treasury board.

Woolliams said it would appear the federal-provincial housing conference would be superfluous because that all changes are to be brought before the house before the conference commences.

Basford was prevented from replying by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

INQUEST SET

An inquest into the Dec. 31 death of an eight-year-old patient at the Pacific Centre for Human Development, 3221 Heatherbell, will be held tonight.

Deanna Jones, a patient at the Colwood centre for the treatment of severely disturbed children, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital, nine days after admission.

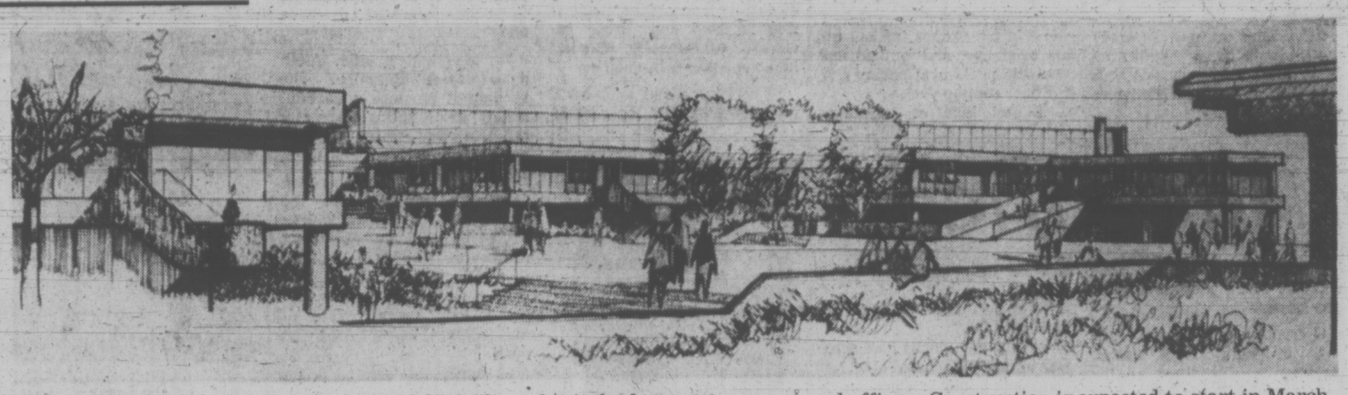
The inquest will be held in the Law Courts at 7:30 p.m.

Young Boys Guilty

Three boys, aged 14, 13 and 11, have pleaded guilty in juvenile court to attempted armed robbery in connection with a Saturday night incident in Victoria's Fernwood district.

The attempted robbery took place Saturday night near Gladstone and Fernwood when two women were accosted by three boys, one of whom brandished a can opener.

The boys were remanded to Jan. 21 for pre-sentence report.



TENDERS have been called for new $2.25 million physical education, athletic and recreation centre at the University of Victoria. The centre will house a large gymnasium, swimming pool, apparatus gymnasium, squash and badminton courts, as well as classrooms and offices. Construction is expected to start in March and to finish in the summer of 1974. Architects are Rhone and Iredale of Vancouver. The reinforced concrete and steel building will be built just outside the Ring Road next to playing fields.

Accused Asked Neighbor to Call a Doctor

The last time 10-year-old Lori Brown saw her mother, the woman was "bending over" in the kitchen of their home telling her to call the police, the girl said in B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday.

The child was testifying at the second day of the trial of Ernest Lavern Hotvedt, 28, charged with the Nov. 5 non-capital murder of his 28-year-old wife, Linda, 1255 Balmoral.

The girl said Hotvedt went into the child's room where Mrs. Hotvedt was sleeping, and shook his wife in an attempt to wake her.

He was saying, "I love you very much. Please come back home with me."

The woman and her four children went into the living room. The telephone rang in the kitchen and Mrs. Hotvedt went to answer it.

Awakened by crying, screaming and loud banging on his front door, Glen Lorimer, 1251 Balmoral, told the court he telephoned police about 7:10 a.m.

About five minutes later, Hotvedt stood on the porch of 1255 Balmoral and asked Lorimer "about three or four times" to call a doctor and to call the police, he said.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood, Lorimer testified that Hotvedt appeared to be "in a state of shock."

Joan Elizabeth Rothwell, 14, of 1266 Balmoral, testified that Mrs. Hotvedt had hired her to babysit the children on the evening of Nov. 4.

The woman left the house about 8:30 and said she would be back between 1 and 2 a.m.

The girl was in the living room at 12:10 a.m. when she heard the sound of breaking glass. She went into the kitchen and saw glass "flying across" the floor. An arm then reached through a broken window in the back door and unlocked it. A man, who she identified as the accused, then entered the kitchen.

William Wayne Buckley, a corporal in the Canadian Armed Forces and part-time taxi driver, testified that he picked up Hotvedt about 11:15 p.m. Nov. 4 on Broughton Street near the Army and Navy lounge at 1001 Wharf.

Hotvedt told him to drive to Work Point barracks and while en route the accused "said something to the effect that his wife was screwing around on him."

Upon arrival at Work Point, Hotvedt instructed Buckley to wait while he went inside to get some money. He ran about three or four yards toward the barracks and fell on his face, said Buckley.

When he returned to the car he was wearing "combat boots." Buckley then drove Hotvedt to the 1200-block Balmoral, as instructed, and dropped him off.

Buckley, who said he had known Hotvedt for three years, said he had never seen him "in that frame of mind before."

Vernon Munn, 20, a Canadian Armed Forces member, testified that he met Mrs. Hotvedt, "by accident," in the Army and Navy lounge about 9:30 p.m., Nov. 4.

He sat with her until 10 p.m. and then rejoined some friends at another table, he testified.

He later saw the accused join her for a short time, after which she moved to another table. Munn rejoined her about 1 a.m. and remained with her, in the lounge, until after 2 a.m., he said.

During cross-examination Munn testified he and Mrs. Hotvedt had consumed about a dozen beer each. They left together about 2:30 a.m. and drove to Beacon Hill Park to talk.

In response to Owen-Flood's questions, Munn testified that they "necked" and "petted" from 3 to 4 a.m. when he drove her home.

She asked him to wait outside while she checked the house. She returned to the car after "one or two minutes" and they drove back to Beacon Hill Park, he testified.

They remained at the park until about 5:30 a.m. when Munn took her home, he said.

Munn testified that they were both impaired by alcohol and at no time, between the time they left the lounge and the time he took her home the last time, did he see Ernest Hotvedt.

Mr. Justice Douglas E. Andrews adjourned the trial until 10:30 a.m. today.

WARNING: The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked.

Playing Dead for Gunman Kept Him Alive

Times News Services

NEW ORLEANS — Robert Beamish considers himself remarkably lucky to have only been wounded by a sniper and says he hopes to be even more fortunate if the gunman returns to finish the job.

From his hospital bed Tuesday, Beamish, 43, when asked if he could describe the sniper who shot him from 50 feet away, said:

"Yes, I could, but discretion is the better part of valor because the man they shot on the roof of the Down Town Howard Johnson's Hotel here Sunday is not the same man who shot me."

For as long as he could, Beamish, kept a careful watch on the man who had shot him beside the hotel pool.

"I was more interested in his rifle actually," Beamish said Tuesday night from his room at Baptist Hospital. "But they'll never convince me that the guy that shot me was the guy they shot on the roof."

He said his assailant had a goatee and was about four inches taller than Mark Essex, the 23-year-old clean-shaven terrorist killed by police later in the day. Beamish also is convinced that his stomach was wounded by a much smaller bullet than Essex's .44 magnum rifle would have fired.

"If I'd got hit by a .44 magnum," he said, "I wouldn't be here. That would have left a hole big enough to drive a truck through."

Beamish smelled smoke, but not real trouble, from his 8th-floor room at the downtown Howard Johnson's Sunday a few minutes before 11:a.m. He opened his door briefly and found the hallway filled with smoke. Light bulbs were bursting from the heat.

"I was kind of congratulating myself," he recalled; "I figured I'd stay by the pool until the firemen could get to us."

Instead, he walked into a two-and-a-half hour nightmare — playing dead in the hotel pool while his assailant scampered about the adjoining rooms, hiding behind decorative bushes and brick dividers, occasionally darting into one suite, then another.

"I was just about to go back into my room for the rest of my belongings when this man stepped out from behind the bushes," Beamish said.

"He was good-looking . . . a light-skinned black with kind of a modified afro . . . very military, very sylph-like. And yes, he had a goatee — at least he appeared to have one."

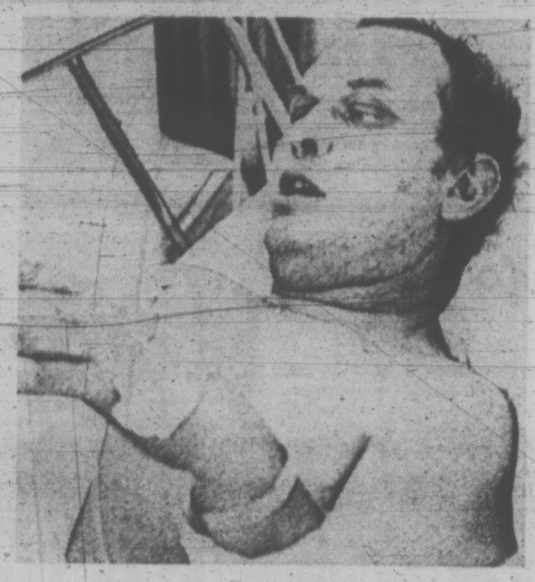
He also had a rifle. After spotting Beamish, "he brought it up, took a careful, steady aim, and squeezed it off. He was about 50 feet away from me."

The shot in the abdomen knocked Beamish into the pool where his topcoat luckily "filled up with air, like a life preserver. I slowly worked myself to the deep end of the pool and just sat there. He never took another shot at me. I figured he thought I was dead."

Beamish, a vice-president of Star Broadcasting Corp., finally was fished out of the pool about 2½ hours later.

Beamish did the best he could to play a floating corpse while keeping an eye on his assailant.

Aside from the dread of drawing another — this time fatal — shot, Beamish said, floating in the water wasn't all that bad. After all, he said, "the pool was heated."



Beamish tells tale from bed

Dead Sniper Identified

NEW ORLEANS (WP) — Police have identified the sniper they killed on a hotel rooftop as a young Kansas black whose minister says "hated white folks."

The slain terrorist, his body literally riddled with police bullets, was named as Mark James Robert Essex, 23, a black native of Emporia, Kan. He was said to have been living in a New Orleans suburb for the past six months.

"The other information we have is nebulous," Police Superintendent Clarence Giarrusso said in a lengthy press conference. "There are many loose ends."

Essex was described by his hometown minister in Emporia as having returned from a hitch in the navy "hating white folks."

The Rev. W. A. Chambers, pastor of St. James Baptist Church, said he and Essex' mother tried to talk to him but "he wouldn't listen."

In Washington, the navy said Essex was given a general discharge for unsuitability Feb. 10, 1970. A spokesman said this type of discharge involves "character and behavior disorders" but would not elaborate.

Meanwhile, police debated whether there was more than one sniper.

Giarrusso gave these reasons to think Essex wasn't alone:

—After his death, a helicopter which participated in a police seige on the hotel was fired upon.

—After Essex died, several policemen saw another person on the roof.

—Policemen heard foul language and shouting and talking on the rooftop after Essex was killed.

Giarrusso cited these reasons for believing Essex acted alone.

—"There has been but one person found."

—"Our men insist the area was adequately sealed off."

However, under close questioning, Giarrusso conceded that "there was a time span prior to our receipt of the plans of the building that an unobvious exit from the roof would have enabled other persons, if there were any, to leave the roof and go to another floor."

Under more questioning, Giarrusso identified the "unobvious exit" as the elevator shaft.

Read Before Writing, Taxman's Advice on New Forms

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — It may not live up to the horror-story billing it drew from some quarters.

But it appears that 1972 personal income tax forms which will be in the mail this week, will make Canadians burn more midnight oil than in previous years.

For the first time everyone — manual laborer or millionaire — will get the same individual form to fill out by the tax deadline of April 30.

And, since the revised tax system introduced for 1972 includes such new wrinkles as taxes on capital gains and deductions for child-care expenses, the forms are fatter than previous ones.

In previous years, the taxpayer with a simple income situation, dependent mainly on wages or salary, could use the two-page short form. There was a six-page general form for those with income of a more complex nature, made up of rents and investment returns as well as salary or wages.

Now every taxpayer is confronted with a four-page basic report and an additional eight pages setting out nine schedules covering such things as capital gains, investment income, child care expenses, special personal exemptions, real estate rentals, capital cost allowances and detailed tax calculations if taxable income tops the $12,000 level.

"The key is to ignore those schedules and parts of the form you don't need," the revenue department says in a 28-page guide pamphlet included with the forms and designed to keep the recipient from throwing in the towel.

"If your tax situation is fairly straightforward, you probably won't need to use any of the schedules. The tax form itself will tell you when or if they apply to you.

Sounds simple.

But what transactions are subject to capital gains tax, for example?

The tax form has a line saying:

"Taxable capital gains or allowable capital losses per Schedule 2 attached."

Turning to Schedule 2, the taxpayer finds a heading:

"Statement of Capital Dispositions (See guide, items 57 to 72)."

Back to the guide.

"Most people will not be affected by the new legislation concerning capital gains or losses," it says at the start of this four-page section.

"This is because the types of property most people own — a home and such personal effects as household goods and automobiles — will not usually be subject to capital gains provisions."

But to find out whether a cottage property, stamp collection or piece of jewelry represents a taxable capital gain when sold, the taxpayer has to wade through the bulk of that four-page guide section.

The tax changes made unemployment insurance benefits taxable and premiums deductible.

"Deduct the correct amount of your premiums here," the guide says.

"Usually, this is the amount shown in Box E of your T4 slip.

"You may, however, have paid too much in premiums and by completing the second section on Page 3 (of the tax form) you can determine if there was an overpayment and what your proper deduction is. An overpayment is refundable to you."

Given the glimmer of a refund, most taxpayers will launch themselves into this one. It requires use of a special table showing what amount of insurable earnings should be subject to a .36 per cent premium rate and what amount is subject to a .9 per cent rate. Then the taxpayer must figure out whether too much was deducted.

So it goes.

Without reading the guide or the schedules—or both—for such things as deductible child care expenses or tuition fees, taxpayers won't know whether they can claim or not.

More serious, lack of proper reading could lead a taxpayer to ignore some item or transaction on which the government should collect tax.

If discovered, the law makes no distinction between those who flout it through ignorance and those who deliberately set out to beat the system.

The Mark of Popularity With Mexicalli Meat Loaf

The ever-popular meat loaf takes another encore, this time as Mexicalli Meat Loaf. Always a budget-stretching favourite of many cooks, this dish is in great demand, not only after the Christmas season, and before paydays, but also any other time of the year too. Our recipe calls for hard-cooked eggs through the centre of the loaf and decoration on top for extra eye appeal. Try it . . . we think your family will like it.

- 1½ cups chicken broth*
- salt
- ¾ cup yellow cornmeal
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- ¾ tsp chili powder
- ⅛ tsp tabasco
- ¼ tsp pepper
- 1 tbsp Worcestershire
- 1 (7½ oz) can tomato sauce
- 3 eggs
- 1 lb. ground beef, chuck
- 1 medium onion, minced
- ½ cup minced green pepper
- 1 small garlic clove, crushed
- 3 hard cooked eggs
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

(1½ tsp chicken-in-the-mug to 1½ cups water)

About 3 hours before serving, heat broth to boiling in a medium size saucepan. Add salt to taste. Meanwhile, in small bowl, combine cornmeal and ½ cup water; stir until thick, then stir into hot broth; cook, stirring until thickened. Set this saucepan in a large skillet with 1 inch hot water. Cook, covered, over medium heat 20 minutes. In small bowl, combine 1½ tsp salt, bread crumbs, chili powder, Tabasco, pepper, Worcestershire, tomato sauce. In large bowl, mix with fork 2 of the eggs, with beef, onion green pepper and garlic. Lightly stir in bread mixture. Preheat oven to 450F. Grease a 9x5x3 loaf pan, then line bottom with wax paper and grease it. Beat remaining eggs with cheese stir into hot cornmeal. With spatula spread cornmeal mixture evenly over bottom and sides of loaf pan. Fill it with 1 cup meat mixture. Place hard-cooked eggs lengthwise on meat. Add rest of meat.

Bake 50 minutes or until golden. Cool in pan on rack 15 minutes. Unmold. Garnish with olives and pimintoes. Makes 6 servings.

Police Work Is Her Beat

By AB KENT
Times Staff

When Marjory Grondahl goes home from work she may tidy up the apartment, do some laundry — or clean her revolver.

She carries it in her handbag along with the shiny shield and ID card which in the last year have become the tools of her trade.

Marjory is a detective, the first policewoman employed by Saanich, and unlike some other women who have tried the role elsewhere Marjory is happy and challenged in her job.

Though hardly one-of-the-boys, the slim, five-foot, eight-inch woman is accepted on equal terms by the men of Saanich police department and looks forward to future years of fulfilment in law enforcement.

"I do like the work and would like to get a chance to really know it well," the 37-year-old policewoman said in an interview.

"Policewoman" is an informal rank so far, but her classification and pay are that of a constable, third class, in which she was confirmed following probation last year.

Marjory had the opportunity to study policework at close hand before applying for the job, having come to Saanich as secretary to Chief Bob Peterson in August 1969, a job that included the duties of matron when required.

Until then she had worked in a variety of secretarial jobs, coming to Victoria from Calgary, where she was born and graduated from Crescent Heights High School.

For three years she was in the women's division of the RCAF, leaving in 1957 after becoming a radar technician.

She considers secretarial work too confining:

"To me, sitting behind a desk all day is no answer."

More girls, she thinks, will be more interested in more challenging and active work.

"I hope women's lib will do that much," Marjory said.

Not a women's-libber herself, she said, but she believes "a woman should not be held back because of her sex if she can do the work."

So far, both her co-workers and the public have accepted her.

She is treated well by the men but not favored.

"They can tell jokes in front of me and not feel embarrassed. I don't feel I've infringed on their rights, as I would be in a male poker game," was the way she described working in the department.

"I feel they have the confidence in me that they could call upon me when they need me," the constable said.

Her police work since basic training in a six-week-course — the same as taken by male probationers, except for subjects related to highway patrol — has featured plainclothes investigation in the fraud squad.

Bogus cheques are a common occurrence, often written to defraud a bank or business by lawbreakers too timid or impatient to steal money by other means.

Volume of this work has been "overwhelming," the policewoman said. Eighty per cent of bad cheque-writing is related to the drug problem. She explained:

"It is a lot easier to write a cheque than break into a place, especially for women." At least three quarters of today's drug cases involve women.

"Often a female is given the drugs to hide, and a policeman can't search a woman like another woman."

Policewoman Grondahl sensed the challenge of the job while she was taking statements of accused persons and witnesses while secretary to the chief, and while acting as matron which involved searches, escorting mental patients and juvenile offenders.

Like each member of the department, she accepts and gives help and advice to other members, but the responsibility of following a case, building it up and concluding it is left to her.

"It's up to my brains. That's satisfying.

"The challenge in secretarial work is there, but the boss tells you what to do," she said.

Her superiors and fellow policemen have helped the adjustment: "Their confidence in me is genuine, and I appreciate it."

She noted that in a growing municipality the use of policewomen becomes necessary and inevitable.

"My placement as a policewoman is an experimental thing. They never had one before . . . I'm hopeful they consider my experience and time with the department in a favorable light and use more women here. You can see why with drugs."

Chief Peterson is delighted with his first female officer and will consider hiring more as the police commission and budget permit.

He is pleased with her accomplishments during the first months of service and said "results have been tremendous."

Policewoman Grondahl said she would counsel young women interested in a police career to consider the demands of the job, which may be felt more by a woman than a man. It is hard to remain objective and avoid emotional involvement — "women are more prone to that," she finds.

Also she must consider her private life somewhat more restricted. Being a policewoman is a 24-hour job and subjects her to call-out after regular hours "quite a lot."

And there is an image to live up to, the public's expectations of police. In this community police have a good image, she finds:

Hard Laws Sought On Child-Beating

Compulsory reporting to authorities of all child-beating incidents — such as is now the case with gunshot wounds — was recommended by Health Minister Dennis Cocke Tuesday.

Some professionals balk at the idea of reporting incidences of child-beating, Cocke said, because it takes up their time and can lead to involvement in a legal suit.

Such reporting might also be blamed for the destruction of the doctor-patient relationship, he added.

In a joint press conference, Cocke and Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi outlined the government's intentions towards improving the process of reporting and treatment of cases of child abuse in the province.

These steps include:

—Appointment of Dr. Sid Segal of Vancouver as consultant to both departments on the general area of child-beating, with the task of developing a "blueprint" for improving facilities to treat parents involved.

—Encouragement of doctors, nurses, teachers, social workers and other members of the general public to report cases of child-battering to authorities so that the problem can be treated at its source as quickly as possible.

—Development of counselling facilities for parents, medical and psychiatric aids, financial relief for parents in depressed circumstances, part-time relief for parents with large families to reduce the potentiality of child-beating occurring and community involvement to keep parents properly motivated.

Levi said the incidence of child-beating has increased to the point where there were 180 cases of child-beating in 1971, as opposed to 70 cases in 1965. He said about one case per month results in death.

The two ministers said it is their intention to require people who have knowledge of cases of child-beating to report such cases to the authorities. They said people who report cases are protected from litigation under the Protection of Children Act.

"New methods of follow-up of suspect cases of child abuse must be introduced and the reporting procedures improved," Levi said. He added that his department is working out details with Cocke's department to establish a "profile" of the potential child-beater. In this way, he said, professionals like doctors, nurses, teachers and social workers will be better able to identify potential problems.

Segal, the consultant being appointed, is a professor of pediatrics at the University of British Columbia and is director of neo-natology at Vancouver General Hospital.

Cases of child-beating are usually reported to the police first of all, Levi said. Police then often contact the Children's Aid Society, which takes over the case. The two ministers said reporting procedures must be improved. Only about one in every three cases of child-beating are now being reported, they said.

Cocke said about 90 per cent of the parents who batter their children can be treated, so it is important for professionals to help out in dealing with the problem.

Addicts' Parents Urged to 'Tell Stories'

Dr. Scott Wallace urged parents of heroin addicts to "tell their stories to the public" at a meeting of Canadian Concerned Citizens Tuesday evening at Spencer House.

Members of the newly formed Victoria group are parents of young herion addicts or kids using other drugs such as LSD.

Wallace said he hoped members could convince the public that "the present system is hopeless and many innocent people other than the addicts have their lives ruined.

"New ideas will only be tried if the public becomes deeply involved," Wallace said. "People like yourselves who have been touched by the problem of heroin addiction will have to inform the public."

Wallace said members would never have a better chance to enlist government support for new programs. He believes the new provincial government is willing to listen to new ideas because "they are cock 'o the walk now with their big majority."

The group wants the provincial government to set up rehabilitation centres so that addicts who are trying to stay off heroin are removed from the drug scene until they have the strength to resist temptation.

At present there are few local facilities for an addict who wants to quit except "jail or the methadone clinic."

Members hope to tell their stories to government officials and Victoria citizens at a public meeting in February.

Parents spoke of the "desperate need" for rehabilitation programs.

"We've all lived through our children's withdrawal symptoms," a mother said. "Withdrawal is the easy part — it's trying to hang on afterwards."

"At present parents are the only form of rehabilitation available," a father said. "What 18-year-old kid wants to sit around and talk to his parents all the time? He wants to be with his friends — and his friends are all on drugs."

Another mother said her son had been off heroin for several months but was still seeing his old friends who are addicts.

"They are his friends," she said. "How can I deny them the house? I've known them all since they were little boys."

The new group is not dedicated to any one purpose. Members will study a variety of programs in the hope of solving the drug problem.

Some are interested in the British method of supplying heroin to addicts under medical supervision. Others oppose the idea of "legal heroin and marijuana."

Members will also counsel parents who discover their children are drug users.

"You get in one hell of a panic when you learn your child is on heroin," a mother said. "You head for your family physician and get nowhere. I scoured the streets for two years looking for help for my boy."

The next meeting will be held this Thursday evening at 7 p.m. at Spencer House. Fire regulations limit the number of people at weekly sessions. Those planning to attend are asked to call 383-7515.

In its series of informative bilingual material, Canada's department of labor has published two pamphlets which discuss topics every employer and employee connected with enterprises that come under federal jurisdiction should know.

Equal Wages explains that employers are not permitted to pay employees of one sex lower wages than an employee of the other sex, provided both work in the same establishment and perform the same or similar work under the same working conditions. Accordig to the leaflet, an employer may also not reduce the wages of an employee to comply with the labor standard.

Maternity Leave, another four-page bilingual pamphlet, also only applies to enterprises that come under federal jurisdiction.

To be eligible for maternity leave under the Labor Code, an employee must have worked for a full year in the firm where she is employed when she starts her leave. She is then entitled to up to 11 weeks leave before the expected delivery date and six weeks after delivery. Naturally, leave before confinement is not compulsory.

For either pamphlet write to: Labor Standards Branch, Canada department of labor, Ottawa, Ont. K1A OJ2. Please allow at least three to four weeks for delivery.

Bachelor Survival Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-two boys at Northern secondary school are learning the fine art of good cooking, wise shopping and home economics as part of a bachelor survival course.

The end result should either make them into good bachelors or better than average husbands.

Teacher Mary Jean Woods, 28, said she realized in September that more young men are living on their own than ever before, so she condensed four years of girls' home economics courses into a one-year course for boys.

"We have to live and eat somewhere, buy and wear our clothes and manage our money, time and energy.

"There's human relations in it too, we have to manage our lives in conjunction with other people," Mrs. Woods explained.

Columnist 'Turns On To Living'

By NICOLE STRICKLAND

Doyle Klyn sipped her coffee, leaned back in her chair, and admitted that she missed her weekly column and "TMIT-NO" and all those marvellous trips across Canada for Week-end Magazine.

"Sure it was great — the column was a good sounding board, and of course I miss it, but I hadn't had any chance to do any baking, or preserving, or gardening. Here, I feel I've really turned on to living."

"Here" is a 70-year-old whitewashed farmhouse in the Central Saanich countryside. It's a large old house — the kind you'd see in a Norman Rockwell painting, with a white picket fence and deer in the empty field out back.

According to Doyle, as she is still known to the hundreds who write asking for the return of her weekly column: "This is an old house, and just like a sponge, it soaks up all the time and money and affection we can give it and then hollers for more."

The house is decorated just as one is sure Doyle Klyn's house would be — with interesting bits of Canadiana and a lingering smell of baking in the kitchen and a roaring fire in the fireplace. Treasures abound, discovered in antique shops and through the column and snared at auctions. Every interesting piece contains a story.

Treen Everywhere

"My husband is an ardent collector of treen — useful woodenware," explains Doyle Klyn, and indeed, treen is everywhere. There is the collection of Welsh love spoons hanging on the wall ("The only collection on the continent, I think," muses Mrs. Klyn), and there is the tinkly 1828 piano the Klyns found in a pawn shop and at which Doyle Klyn delights to play "saloon songs", and there is the old music box in the hall that plays thin metal records with a sound that goes "splunk, splunk, splunk."

It is an alive house, filled with the vitality of a vital women who at one point wrote for 2½ million readers a week, and whose dining room table is heaped with letters from readers asking for her return.

"I still get batches of letters sending me unusual names, which I collect. I have the largest collection in Canada, but after doing the column for 14 years, I began to get lazy about finding my own, because people would send them to me from all over Canada.

"It's a good hobby — you don't have to dust it, it doesn't take up much space, and it's a good conversation piece. I got started when I went to school with a boy by the name of Claude Hopper. I knew right then something had twigged. When I ran across Iona Victory Bond, I was hooked."

Doyle Klyn adjusts the famous hexagonal glasses that have slipped down the bridge of her nose and pours through the book of unusual names that is almost as famous as her former column.

"In connection with the hobby I restricted myself to certain rlues — the first and last names had to be unusual together, such as Neal Downe. I resent the fact that some people just make fun of unusual names.

"What I like best are sentence names, and some of the rhyming names, like Myrtle Pertle. One of the joys of name collecting is to find a person who has lived with his name all his life and not realized it was unusual.

"Some names are well-suited to occupations, like O. U. Reade, an optometrist in Fredericton. One of the nicest names I know of was spotted on a nurse's bag — May I. Comfort."

Mrs. Klyn, who moved to Vancouver Island to escape pollution and "the rat race of Montreal", says that she was lucky to have had her years with Weekend.

"I had no formal training in English or journalism. I just began to write, first with light verse at the age of 14 for the Winnipeg Free Press, and then short features. I'd still rather write light verse than do anything else I can think of . . .

Secretarial Start

"For five years I wrote slightly risque lyrics for Montreal nightclub revues — that should surprise people! I broke into Weekend before it even started by doing secretarial work for the Montreal Standard, then movie reviews, and finally editorial writing. I became copy chief and women's editor at Weekend, and loved every minute of it.

"I think that trivia — and much of my column was just that — is important today. There's so much that's serious, but it's those 'little itsy-bitsies' that make life interesting.

"My fingers are just beginning to get itchy. I'd like to start writing again. I'd like to write some fiction, and now I've got the time, which few people have."

Doyle Klyn — your fans are eagerly waiting.

MAXIMUM DAILY ALLOWANCE STUDIED

Mercury Level Cut Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — Mercury is extremely toxic in fish and any legal maximum levels for other foods probably will be "considerably lower" than the present 0.5 parts per million (ppm) guide now used for levels in fish, Dr. D. G. Chapman said this week.

The director of the food advisory bureau in the federal health department said consideration of the total intake of mercury is what must be considered.

Canada and other countries now are trying to establish how much mercury an adult can take daily without health damage, Dr. Chapman said in an interview. So far this maximum daily allowance has not been established.

The World Health Organization probably will publish recommendations on this soon, he said.

In the meantime, the government will stick to its administrative guideline of 0.5 ppm of mercury in fish.

"All evidence points to the desirability, from a health hazard standpoint, of reducing this level as soon as possible," he told the Ontario Council of Commercial Fisheries last year.

He stands by this:

"We're never too happy about a chemical as toxic as this in any food product and therefore we wouldn't want to establish even this level too firmly.

"We might want to see it reduced."

Mercury is present in the environment naturally, but it occurs there in small amounts. About 0.08 ppm in the earth's crust.

However, there is evidence man-made mercury pollutants have caused it to occur in some fresh-water fish in greater concentrations, than normal, Dr. Chapman said.

He disagreed with an article in a recent U.S. nutrition magazine that said minute amounts of mercury might be essential in the diet.

"My toxicologists suggest that there is no scientific evidence of any positive role for some of the elements — including mercury," he said. The fact that some animals, including man, have developed ways to get rid of mercury from their bodies doesn't indicate that it was necessary to absorb them in the first place.

Greater Levels

Although some countries appear to allow greater levels of mercury than Canada does, this is often misleading. Dr. Chapman said Sweden, for example, allows up to one ppm of mercury in fish — but it also advises that fish should be eaten only once a week.

Canada allows one-half as much in fish, but it does not restrict the individual's intake — meaning Canadians could be consuming more mercuury than Swedes.

In recent times, the toxicity has been dramatically illustrated. During the 1950s, mercury poisoning was first recognized as a serious public health hazard.

Then, 52 persons died from eating mercury-contaminated fish from Minamata Bay and the Agano River in Japan. As well, about 168 others were ill, many of them seriously and with lasting damage to their nervous systems.

The waters of the river and bay had been used for dumping discharges from plants that had used mercury in manufacturing plastics.

Many other countries have also reported deaths, although Canada so far has been fortunate.

Mercury now is found in minute traces in most foods, he said, but usually in parts per billion ppb. This means that one ounce of mercury would be found in a carrot weighing 31,000 tons — one ounce in a billion ounces.

Not that Dr. Chapman is concerned about the average Canadian getting too much mercury in a normal diet. Canadians don't eat much fish, which is the food that contains the highest levels.

And even if the individual ate a serving of fish that contained the maximum level — and few of them would — the average serving would contain only about .05 milligrams.

Individuals in Japan who suffered from mercury poisoning were taking in about .33 milligrams to 4.78 milligrams of mercury a day over several months, he said.

However, still not enough is known about the buildup in the body and the lowest levels that will cause effects. Studies on cats at the deparment's labs are beginning to give some indications.

And, when they do come, the symptoms of mercury poisoning are serious, Dr. Chapman said. As well, they apparently are permanent — the person will not get better even when he stops taking in mercury.

Hands Numb

The symptoms, which come on gradually, include: Numbness in the hands, arms, lips and tongue; gradual loss of hearing leading to deafness; gradual blindness with loss of vision from the periphery or edges of the visual area leading to tunnel vision and eventual blindness; deterioration of speech; unsteady gait and general incoordination of limbs.

In cats, it has lead to almost paralysis of the hind legs.

It has been fatal to humans, Dr. Chapman said. And it can cause stillbirths or birth defects if the woman gets too much during the pregnancy.

"We can and must cut down on mercury getting into foods," Dr. Chapman said.

POTATOES MAKE THE STEW

OTTAWA (CP) — Some canned "beef stew" should probably be relabelled "potato stew," a report by the Consumers' Association of Canada says.

In its magazine Canadian Consumer, the association said it tested 12 different brands of canned beef stews available in most supermarkets and found that the main solid ingredient was potatoes in all brands except one.

"The potato content was so high . . . that we wonder if these products should not be renamed potato stew," the article said. One brand had 35-per-cent potatoes.

Composition of canned beef stew is not governed by any specific standards, the article said. This means that consumers have no assurance of the amount of beef present.

The average meat content in the samples ranged from seven per cent to 17 per cent.

The article recommended specific standards should be drafted for canned stew.

"These standards should require that the label state the actual percentage of meat in the formulation and that gravy be listed as an ingredient."

The amount of gravy in the samples ranged from 40 per cent to 53 per cent, the article said. In every sample, it was the main ingredient, but only one brand listed it as the top of the list of ingredients.

All the other manufacturers did list solid ingredients beginning with potatoes.

However, the association's analysts found that list and the contents often differed. In one sample, the list of ingredients read potatoes, beef, carrots and peas.

This was incorrect, the article said. It should have read potatoes, peas, beef and carrots.

The brands studied, listed according to the average meat content from highest to lowest, were: Bounty, York, Cordon Bleu, Heinz, Clark, Swifts, Puritan, Schneiders, Green Giant, Burns, I.G.A. and Valiant.

Baked apples a quick way to provide a hot dessert

Rosy Baked Apples In Three Batches

By MARY MOORE

There were baked apples all up and down my kitchen counter.

Which was best? Which one would I recommend? I could not decide so I am describing all three samples.

I used Spys for one batch. An apple called Idared — I wondered if it should have read "Ida Red" or I Dared". And beautiful rosy Cortlands. In each recipe you should use the number of apples needed by your family. My recipe is geared for six.

BAKED SPY APPLES

Six Spy apples;
Six tsp. butter;
Six tbsp. light or dark brown sugar;
Three-quarter tsp. mace (or nutmeg)

Wash and carefully core then pare apples. Put each in a buttered individual baking dish (large custard cup). In the hole of each put 1 teaspoon butter and 1 tablespoon brown sugar and ½ teaspoon mace (or nutmeg). Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 50 minutes.

BAKED CORTLAND APPLES

Six Cortland Apples;
Six tbsp. orange marmalade;
One-half cup water.

Wash and carefully core apples. Fill each hole with 1 tablespoon orange marmalade. Place on pyrex pie plate, adding water to pan and bake 40 minutes. Lovely and white and puffy. (These could be baked in individual baking dishes too if desired for neat service.)

BAKED IDARED APPLES

Six Idared apples;
Six tbsp. white sugar;
Six maraschino cherries.

Wash and carefully core apples. Fill each hole with 1 tablespoon white sugar. Top with a maraschino cherry. Add two-thirds cup water to pan and bake 50 minutes.

I favor the first version with Spys but try one each week and serve them to your families in January.

Try to serve them warm.

Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specified recipe.

Gov't 'Speed' Clampdown Soon

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — The federal health department is now preparing to take steps to control the use of illegal amphetamine drugs, principally "speed."

The action, expected to be announced on the heels of the publication of the LeDain Commission final report in a few months, follows recent regulation changes to limit the use of legally-prescribed amphetamines to six specified disorders. But at the same time, a senior health department official has admitted there is a definite "danger" that these recent controls of legal amphetamines that came into effect Jan. 1 could actually force some individuals to turn to illicit supplies of the drugs.

An official said he is more worried about athletes, who use amphetamines supposedly to stimulate their athletic performance, and about executives, who use the drugs to keep themselves going at the office in spite of exhaustion, than he is worried about women, who use the drugs mainly to control obesity, turning to illicit sources. None of the aforementioned uses are allowed anymore.

The department official said in a recent interview that the "speed" problem in Canada is much larger than the problem of abuse of legally-prescribed amphetamines. For this reason, the government is waiting for the LeDain Commission's views on how to combat "speed" abuse before it announces its own approach.

The LeDain Final report is expected in February, and will cover amphetamines, heroin, methadone, morphine, the opiates and other minor drugs. The official noted that one of the main reasons the government decided not to wait for the LeDain report before taking action on the legal amphetamine abuse was that control of this problem was so much easier. Perhaps more important, taking this action first solves what the official described as a credibility problem related to taking eventual action against "speed" in Canada.

"How can the government move against the problem of the so-called 'speed freaks,' which involves mostly young people, and not move against the obvious abuse involving the adults, who are allowed amphetamines through legal channels?"

The official said that his own department has already developed its own approaches to the more complex problem of controlling "speed" use in Canada. He said the government will be ready to take any action right after the LeDain report, just as its announced its cannabis policy right after LeDain's cannabis report.

Sources in Ottawa suggest that one of the steps being considered by Ottawa would provide penalties for illegal possession of amphetamines.

At present, possession of the drug without a prescription is illegal, but there is no associated penalty.

Other steps reportedly being considered include expanded education programs, to convince young people of the dangers to health of taking "speed", and the use of special medical clinics, in cooperation with the provinces, for treating "speed freaks" and allowing them to shake their habits.

The recent steps against legal amphetamines do not affect the illegal use of the drugs, primarily because most of the illegal speed is made in underground laboratories rather than being diverted from legal channels.

In fact, the official admitted there is the danger, which he hopes is minimal, that the new controls on prescribing amphetamines could in fact force some persons to turn to illicit supplies, especially those persons who have depended on prescribed amphetamines for a long time and have become addicted to them.

The official also admitted that the government will find it almost impossible to determine how many persons turn to illicit supplies during the coming months, after being given amphetamines legally by doctors for so long in the past.

Health officials only have very rough indications of the size of the illicit trade in amphetamines in Canada, he explained.

The problem of people switching to illicit supplies could become even worse if and when the government slaps similar controls on the prescribing of a number of amphetamine-like drugs, the official indicated. Doctors are expected to switch some patients now on emphetamines to these related drugs. But the government has warned that too large a switch will result in similar controls for these related drugs.

Girls' Smiles, Waves No Help to Me, Abby

DEAR ABBY: In one of your columns you told a girl it was all right for her to smile and wave at truck drivers. Thanks a lot! My husband is a truck driver and all he needs is good looking girls waving and smiling at him all day. He's a good-looking guy, and it doesn't take much to turn him on, and I'd just as soon he didn't make any new friends on his job. Not all truck drivers are alike, but I know my husband better than you do, so watch it, will you, Abby? — Thelma.

DEAR THELMA: I'll watch it, Thelma.

DEAR ABBY: Never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but after reading the letter from that young girl who asked if it was okay to smile and wave at truck drivers, I had to put in my 2 cents' worth.

I've been married to a truck driver for 19 years, there's not a better husband and father. It's an honorable position and I'm proud of him. Maybe most people aren't aware of this, but 70 per cent of the food they eat and the clothes they wear are delivered by trucks.

If a lady is stranded on the highway, a truck driver will be the first to stop and help her. And speaking of being a lady, my husband stopped to help a couple of so-called "ladies," and they robbed him of all his money.

So tell that gal to keep smiling. I hope she smiles at my truck driver someday, for it's a lonely job and he can use a smile along the way. — Wife.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 67, living alone in a one-bedroom apartment. The only living relative I have is a sister, Gertrude is 73, married and very well-to-do. She has been fighting with her husband Sam, who is 75, for as long as I can remember.

For the past year, Gertrude has been coming here in a taxi at all hours of the night asking if she can sleep in the other twin bed because she and Sam had another fight. Naturally, I let her stay. Sometimes she spends two nights with me until she's sure Sam has cooled off.

Now Sam calls accusing me of "breaking up his home." He says if I didn't let his wife come here to sleep she would stay home where she belongs. The old fool should know that if I didn't let her sleep here she could go to a hotel. She has plenty of money.

Sam says if I let Gertrude sleep here one more night he will cut me out of his will, and his wife's will, too. Can he do that? Please advise me. — Lady

DEAR LADY: Tell Sam that when your sister shows up at your door to spend the night with you, you will not refuse to let her in. He can cut you out of his will if he wants to, but he can't cut you out of his wife's.

News Gathering Becoming Risky

By The Associated Press

Foreign correspondents around the world face growing censorship problems in 1973.

Last year, in many countries, correspondents were arrested or expelled. Others were threatened with arrest or expulsion or were denied entry visas.

They encountered refusal of officials to provide facts. They were hampered by state control or censorship of the local press on which foreign correspondents depend for news tips and, sometimes, background information.

The annual Associated Press survey of the flow of news across international boundaries shows that formal censorship of news dispatches moving into and out of a country grew only slightly, most notably in the Philippines.

But the survey also showed that the outlook for this year was not good.

In the Philippines, President Ferdinand Marcos stopped a 25-year tradition of press freedom when he imposed martial law in September. Censorship of dispatches of foreign correspondents was lifted after 41 days, but a set of vague guidelines remained.

In Chile, the government told foreign correspondents to send copies of their outgoing reports to the presidential office twice a day. The government said this was not censorship.

Most of the informal censorship, sometimes enforced through intimidation, occurred in developing countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America. Their reasoning: It's a way of protecting their image in the outside world.

The International Press Institute concluded that the United States, where press freedom is embedded in the constitution, also lost some press freedom, although this was more apparent internally than on outgoing stories of foreign correspondents.

The institute reported that the U.S. government "in various guises is attempting to chip away at press freedom through the courts and by threats of court action."

A glance at the situation by countries:

AFRICA

In September, 14 reporters were jailed in Uganda during an invasion by foes of the government of President Idi Amin. They were never told why they were detained. All eventually were deported.

There is no official censorship in Nigeria, but fear of arrest and detention without trial inhibit press freedom in black Africa's most populous country. Entry permits are restricted.

There is no formal censorship of incoming or outgoing news in South Africa, but residence permits for foreign reporters are controlled.

ASIA

Imposition of martial law in the Philippines resulted in the banning of reports from abroad critical of the country, temporary censorship of outgoing dispatches, the suspension of about 10 major daily newspapers and 20 radio and television stations and the arrest without charges of 23 journalists.

VIETNAM

On the whole, foreign journalists reported events in South Vietnam as they saw them. U.S. officials held up details of American bomb damage in North Vietnam during part of the bombing blitz at the end of 1972.

The internal Vietnamese press is subject to crackdown under a law giving special powers to President Nguyen Van Thieu. All but a handful of more than 50 newspapers went out of business.

EUROPE

In Spain, newspapers continue to be censored. In Greece, the government-controlled Athens news agency censors incoming news. Anything that might embarrass the regime is deleted.

SOUTH AMERICA

Foreign correspondents in Chile were told they would face unspecified difficulties unless they complied with a government order to submit copies of their dispatches to the presidential office twice a day. Chilean authorities also admitted to monitoring correspondents' copy.

While internal censorship remained strict under Brazil's military government, foreign reporters encountered little difficulty sending news out of the country. The lack of basic civil rights for Brazilians and internal censorship, however, made it difficult for correspondents to obtain information.

Argentina's ruling military junta restricted news coverage from Aug. 22, the day guards at the Trelew marine base jail shot and killed 16 leftist guerrillas in an alleged escape attempt.

There was no physical censorship of stories being transmitted outside Argentina, but the government made it clear a foreign correspondent might land in jail if he is responsible for publication abroad of news emanating from guerrilla groups.

Uruguay, with a long history of civil liberties and press freedom, has been under news censorship since 1969 as part of the campaign against Tupamaro guerrillas.

THE CARIBBEAN

Cuba continues to censor incoming and outgoing news.

MIDDLE EAST

It is a truism of the Middle East that whenever the Arabs have a story to tell, they impose strictures to keep it from being told.

The chief exception has been Lebanon, where the national press demands—and usually gets—a lot of freedom. In September, the Lebanese government imposed censorship during Israeli bombing and ground attacks made in retaliation for the Munich Olympic killings.

Censorship officially does not exist in Egypt, but every foreign correspondent knows that a censor is the first person to read his story on its way out of the country. A major problem in Cairo is lack of access to officials.

In Israel, news concerning military security, army, oil and some stories of the occupation of Arab territory remain on the military censorship list. There are signs the rules are being relaxed.

SOVIET UNION

Outgoing dispatches continue to leave uncensored. Photographs, however, are subject to strict scrutiny.

The work of foreign correspondents was hampered by government efforts to stifle Soviet dissidents and by harassment of journalists.

IT'S JUST A CASE OF GETTING EVEN

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panama has retaliated against the World Boxing Council for withdrawing recognition of Enrique Pinder as world bantamweight champion.

It withdrew recognition of the World Boxing Council.

"We will never recognize a championship fight which carries the seal of the WBC," Dr. Elias Cordoba, president of the Panama Boxing Commission, told a news conference. "The only championship fights which will be valid here are those organized by the World Boxing Association."

The WBC withdrew recognition of Pinder last Friday for failing to defend against No. 1 challenger Rodolfo Martinez of Mexico within six months of winning the crown. Instead, Pinder signed for a Jan. 20 defence against fifth-ranked contender Romeo Anaya of Mexico.

Pratt Speaks In Duncan

DUNCAN — Famous former hockey player Babe Pratt will be guest speaker at the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce's annual installation banquet on Feb. 10.

Pratt, who made a name for himself several decades ago while playing with the Toronto Maple Leafs, is now public relations man with the Vancouver Canucks.

At the same time Pratt will present special awards to the best athlete in the Cowichan Valley and to the person who has done the most in promoting sports among the youth of the valley.

Fire Talk

DUNCAN — Chief protection officer Don Watts of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. will present a fire prevention display and demonstration at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Queen of Angels School, Maple Bay Road, Duncan.

Liz . . . A Restaurateur's Dream Come True

LIZ
. . . trencherman

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

EL BOQEQ, Israel (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor is one of the biggest eaters in the motion picture business.

"When Liz Taylor sits down to eat, the chef should be certain he's got lots of food, especially if it's turkey."

That's the word from a man who knows as much about feeding movie stars as anyone in the world — Bernard Martin, 29, a caterer from Limerick, Ireland.

Martin, unit manager and chef from a London firm that specializes in feeding film companies, has been cooking for the stars for 13 years. He is here preparing 450 meals a day in the middle of the desert for Jesus Christ, Superstar.

"In a hotel or a restaurant, a big film star might throw tantrums and start slinging things back to the kitchen, but on location they adapt themselves," said Martin. "The bigger the actor, the easier to work with.

"I have fed almost every actor and actress I can think of," he said.

Martin's favorite artists are Omar Sharif, Sir Alec Guinness and Topol of Fiddler on the Roof. They eat and enjoy almost anything.

Liz Taylor is the only big name he can recall who asks for special items on the menu. Martin just finished serving her in Night Watch.

"Once she asked if it would be possible to have wild rice," Martin said. "We ordered it from a London shop and flew it to the table."

Martin has also fed Miss Taylor's husband, Richard Burton — during the shooting of Becket — but said nothing about Burton's appetite.

With two British assistants and four Israelis, and food, drinks, water and ice brought from 50 miles away, he was serving 150 persons three times a day.

The dinner menu outside the big green dining tent read: Iced orange juice, green pea soup, roast chicken with mushroom sauce, roast beef, sliced beans, roast and creamed potatoes.

Rudy Can't Fight City Hall, So He Decides to Join Them

LOS ANGELES — Rudy Vallee, crooning idol of the 1920s, has filed as a candidate for the city council, making it clear he is still smarting from a bitter row over renaming a street.

The singer wanted the street in front of his Hollywood Hills home renamed Rue de Vallee. The council refused, and in the ensuing hubbub Vallee quit his post as tratffic commissioner. Vallee said he is running for office "to curb some of the arrogance and power of those little tin gods."

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — British actor Michael Caine married Shakira Baksh, a former Miss Guiana, in the chapel of the Algiers Hotel on the Las Vegas strip.

Caine, 39, and Miss Baksh, 25, reportedly had been dating for about 18 months. Caine, wearing a blue suit, was married under his legal name, Maurice Mickelwhite.

WASHINGTON — Folk singer Peter Yarrow, of the now defunct Peter, Paul and Mary trio has agreed to pay $30,000 to the mother of a teen-age girl who has accused him of sexually molesting her daughter.

Yarrow, who previously pleaded guilty and served three months in jail on charges of "taking immoral liberties" with the girl, agreed to the settlement as testimony was about to begin in a civil suit brought by the mother. She had sought $750,000 in damages.

BRASILIA — Justice Minister Alfredo Buzaid has banned a collection of erotic prints by Pablo Picasso, calling them "contrary to the morals and good principles of the Brazilian family."

Ministry sources said Monday that after the minister's orders, federal police began seizing the prints from newsstands and book stores.

TOKYO — The justice ministry said today it has advised against granting a Japanese visa to Mick Jagger, leader of the Rolling Stones rock band, because of a past conviction on a drug charge.

Justice ministry officials said, however, there were no objections to allowing 19 other persons associated with the British group to visit Japan for five concerts in Tokyo beginning Jan. 28.

MOSCOW — A Soviet court has refused to allow Nobel Prize-winning novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn to divorce his first wife, sources said.

The sources, quoting friends of the 54-year-old author, said he had been trying for 14 months to gain the divorce from Natalya Reshetovskaya, whom he married in 1940, but the Supreme Court of the Russian Republic ruled recently that the marriage was still valid.

Solzhenitsyn has been living for three years with Natalya Svelteva, who has borne him two sons.

Kiou Jayler, 30, an Iranian who works as a bellhop at a Lake Tahoe resort, was ordered to stand trial Jan. 26 on the charge — which carries a $5 fine upon conviction.

He was cited by a traffic officer Dec. 3 after running through an intersection near the end of a long run from the north end of the lake. The officer said the traffic light was red; Jayler insists it was green.

HAMILTON — A Hamilton minister in the 6,800-member Associated Gospel Churches of Canada has written to federal Solicitor-General Warren Allmand asking for the retention of the death penalty.

Rev. Grover Crosby, chairman of the church's social action committee, said that of 3,110 members responding to a survey 2,790 were in favor of capital punishment and 320 against it.

NEW YORK — Newsweek magazine reports that Senator George McGovern's losing Democratic presidential campaign spent $32 million but now is less than $400,111 in debt.

The debt is to be paid off from campaign pledges already committed.

Friday Funeral Set For Mrs. Richardson

WINNIPEG (CP) — Funeral services will be held Friday for Mrs. James A. Richardson, for 27 years head of the Winnipeg grain and investment company, James Richardson and Son Ltd.

Mrs. Richardson, 82, took over the presidency after the death of her husband, James, in 1939. She retired in 1966, having controlled the company longer than any other president except its founder, the first James Richardson, who established the business in 1857 and directed it until 1892.

Mrs. Richardson was the mother of James A. Richardson, federal defence minister, and George T. Richardson, president of James Richardson and Son Ltd. and governor of the Hudson's Bay Co.

She also is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William Benidickson of Ottawa, wife of Senator William Benidickson, and Kathleen M. Richardson of Winnipeg.

Muriel Sprague Richardson was born of United Empire Loyalist stock in Belleville, Ont. During her terms as president of James Richardson and Sons, Pioneer Grain, a subsidiary, more than doubled its capacity and the securities division of Richardson's opened up U.S. and overseas department, expanding to serve investors from 26 offices.

Mrs. Richardson's administration was considered a time of consolidation and expansion, and shortly following her retirement the Richardson building, the tallest in the city, was built at the corner of Portage Avenue and Main Street.

She was a supporter of cultural institutions in Winnipeg and made contributions to the University of Manitoba and Queen's University in Kingston. She held honorary degrees from both institutions.

Former Janitor Now a Teacher

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tellie Vereen, a janitor for 16 years, now is a teacher in the same school system where he once stoked the furnace.

While working as a custodian, Vereen attended night classes and earned his high-school diploma, then took night courses for eight years before attending university for two years.

Assembly Line Under Attack By 'Everybody'

DETROIT (AP) — After nearly 65 years, the institution that put Detroit on the map is under repeated attack by auto workers, labor unions and psychologists.

The assembly line, a production method recorded as early as 1908, is accused of causing boredom on the part of autoworkers and almost surely is to be a bargaining point when labor management contract talks begin later this year.

The issue has been at least partially responsible for a series of strikes against General Motors recently.

Thus it was no surprise when General Motors disclosed recently it was experimenting with "group assembly" at its GMC truck and coach division in suburban Pontiac, where the firm is starting production of a new motor home.

It was believed to be the first time group assembly has been tried in the modern U.S. motor vehicle industry, although it is widely used in some foreign countries such as Sweden.

Alex C. Mair, general manager of GMC truck and coach said six-member teams are responsible for body trim and some fitting operations, while three-member teams are assembling and fitting the chassis.

In normal assembly line work, an employee is given a single task and repeats it every time a unit passes his point of the line.

United Auto Workers (UAW) workers have complained of boredom in such jobs and group assembly has been suggested as an alternative.

But Mair and other auto executives aren't optimistic about the group system's chances of survival.

Using speedier assembly line methods, one plant can produce almost 1,000 cars a day or 200,000 a year—higher than the entire Swedish auto industry. By comparison, the GMC plant will build just 1,300 motor homes by the end of April.

Eugene A. Cafiero, Chrysler's group vice-president for North American auto operations, said last year his firm wanted to try group assembly at select locations in Detroit.

Aussies Ending Color Bar

CANBERRA (AP) — The last remnants of the white Australia immigration policy are expected to end this year, political commentators here in the Australian capital predict.

Albert Grassby, immigration minister in the Labor government that came to power Dec. 2, has announced a thorough review of immigration programs so he can make good on his party's campaign promise of an immigration policy "without racial discrimination."

Recent Liberal-Country party coalition governments eased the white-Australia policy but retained the goal of a "homogenous society."

In effect, this permitted the entry of non-whites and their families if the breadwinner was a professional or skilled worker and if the family could be expected to integrate into Australia's predominantly white society.

NOT GIVEN AID

But the non-whites were not granted assisted passages, a program in which migrants pay only a nominal sum for their air or sea fares, and the government picks up the rest of the travel tab. About two-thirds of Australia's 2.6 million immigrants since the Second World War have come that way.

Since the white Australia policy was eased, non-whites have been coming at the rate of 9,500 a year.

Though Grassby indicated in a newspaper interview that the non-racial policy already has been put into effect, an immigration department spokesman said today that the results of the review will be awaited before changes are made. Political commentators expect the review to be completed by the middle of the year.

It appears unlikely, however, that the Labor government is going to open the gates to a flood of unskilled non-whites. Grassby said Dec. 26 that the total of assisted migrants for the year ending June, 1973, will be cut to 110,000 from 140,000, and the selection of migrants will be "improved."

WHO HAS MOVED?

Capital Cost Cutting Number of Farms

EDMONTON (CP) — The continual increase in the amount of money needed to start farming has resulted in a substantial decrease in the number of farms in Alberta, says C. E. Sterling, an agriculture department statistician.

While the amount of land being farmed has not decreased, the number of census farms has dropped to 62,702 compared with 84,315 about 20 years ago. Census farms are those of one acre or more with annual sale of at least $50 in agricultural products.

Mr. Sterling said this represents a decrease of about 1,000 farms a year and the average capital investment for each farm has grown to an estimated $80,000 compared with $37,000 in 1961 and $21,000 in 1951.

"With investment requirements of this magnitude, many people who would like to start farming are unable to do so and farms that come up for sale are often divided among the highest bidders," Mr. Sterling said.

In addition, he said the average age of farmers in Alberta now is 49 years compared with 46 in 1961 and 45 in 1951.

TV Eye Would Help MLAs 'Clean Up'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Live television and radio coverage of the British Columbia Legislature might prompt MLAs to "clean up their act" and dispense with the wrangles that have characterized the House in past years, a broadcast journalist told a special committee of the Legislature which is examining the possible introduction of electronic coverage to the Legislature.

David Shnaider, 23, a bdekman in Vancouver for Broadcast News Ltd., said Tuesday the camera and microphone might make MLAs conscious of being more directly in the public eye, and thus lead them to act in a more publicly acceptable manner.

Shnaider emphasized that his appearance at the committee's Vancouver public hearing was personal, and in no way representative of the views of Broadcast News, Canadian Press subsidiary which provides newswire and voice report service to private TV and radio stations.

Shnaider, whose views were described as "refreshing" by committee chairman Hugh Curtis, Conservative MLA for Saanich-And-The-Islands, also said TV could be used to permit people in remote centres to participate in legislative committee hearings — without committees leaving Victoria or witnesses from leaving their hometowns.

This could be done through the use of closed-circuit TV, permitting committee members and witnesses to talk to each other via TV.

When the House considers intriduction of TV coverage, he said, it should not merely copy procedures used by the United Nations or other parliaments — it should "set the pace" and examine the media's potential for "more revolutionary use."

Such a revolutionary use, he said, might be "a question period in the House in which anybody from across the province can ask their question — if someone had a question from, say, Prince Rupert, he could line up at the appropriate time . . . it could be arranged a week in advance."

Ministers or other MLAs then would give their replies instantly by return TV circuit.

Vic Waters, program director for Cable 10, told the committee Vancouver Cablevision and its associated systems were willing to offer a liason officer to work with the subcommittee.

He said that conventional radio and television stations cannot give large amounts of time to coverage of House affairs because of commercial commitments but non-commercial channels on cablevision are not so bound.

Curtis said the committee, which has travelled across the country collecting information about parliamentary coverage by radio and television, felt there was a feeling of some concern about whether such coverage would disturb the dignity of legislative proceedings.

Waters agreed that it would be undesirable to have to have people jumping up and down hauling cables and shouting and he suggested a technical committee be set up to discuss the problems involved.

In its second and final day of public hearings today, the committee will hear briefs from the B.C. Association of Broadcasters and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The committee, which has visited the United Nations, Halifax, Toronto and Edmonton to examine assembly broadcasting facilities, expects to meet with officials of the Victoria press gallery before submitting a report to Speaker Gordon Dowding later this month.

The committee is composed of chairman Curtis, Graham Lea, NDP MLA for Prince Rupert; Robert McClelland, Social Credit MLA for Langley and Phyllis Young, NDP MLA for Vancouver-Little Mountain.

BIDS TOO HIGH, HEARING TOLD

RICHMOND (CP) — Some of the bids submitted by subcontractors for work on the Campbell River hospital extension were surprisingly high, the board's quantity surveyor has told a public inquiry into possible tendering irregularities.

L. P. Wynick, of J. V. Associates Ltd., was asked by the board to find out why the lowest tender for the extension was about $584,000 more than architect Herbert Wilson's $1.6 million estimate.

The lowest tender was a bid of $2,221,700 from Farmer Construction Ltd. of Victoria.

Wynick said he checked some subcontractor's bids supplied by Farmers and found large differences between those bids and his own estimates.

He told the hearing that he couldn't find factual reasons for the differences but suggested some possibilities including the fact several subcontractors had recently lost money on hospital jobs.

Wayne Farmer of Farmer Construction told the hearing he didn't consider bids from subcontractors to be abnormally high.

A DANGEROUS CURTAIN of icicles is admired along the cliffs of Stanley Park seawall in Vancouver by Edna Sibson. The glistening shards can also be lethal if they drop on a passerby; therefore Miss Sibson heeds police and safety warnings by keeping well on the outside track of the stalactites.

Increased Rioting Big Ulster Worry

BELFAST (AP) — An increase in rioting in Northern Ireland is causing concern to security forces.

While army and police chiefs have been encouraged by a recent decline in attacks by guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army, they are reported worrying about a rising incidence of rioting by both Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Northern Ireland's troubles began in 1969 with widespread unrest and violence in the streets. As the IRA got its guerrilla war into gear, shooting and bombing gradually pushed rioting into the background.

However, several minor riots have taken place in Belfast since Christmas. In Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city which has been largely quiet since last summer, the situation apparently is reverting to its old riot-a-day norm.

So far the British Army has prevented any serious trouble, but officers report the new rioters are more resistant to the troops' conventional anti-riot weapon, the rubber bullet.

Six soldiers cornered by a crowd of 200 youths hurling rocks and bottles in Londonderry's Creggan district last Friday were unable to defend themselves with the six-inch solid rubber missiles. The crowd dispersed, the army said, only when the patrol commander fired a live round over their heads.

Rival Protestant and Catholic youth gangs also have been showing an increasing tendency to attack each other since Christmas, informants said.

One army officer working in a social club designed to bring young people of both communities together said: "They would play table tennis quite happily then go out and knife each other when the club closed."

Censors Cut Profits

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP) — Movie theatres in this East African commercial centre are running in the red. They blame tightened censorship that bars scenes of sex, violence and "unsuitable political situations."

CRASH VICTIM DIES

A 23-year-old Ladysmith man has died in Victoria General Hospital after suffering head injuries in a two-car collision at Ladysmith Dec. 22.

Ladysmith RCMP said Brian Kenneth Mulholland was driving on the Trans-Canada Highway at 4 p.m. He turned on to Bayview Road and was in collision with a vehicle driven by Ronald Kirk Mosdell, 16, of Ladysmith. Both vehicles were demolished, police said.

Grant Lindsay Sunquist, of Chemainus, a passenger in the Mulholland vehicle, was treated at Ladysmith General Hospital for minor injuries. Mosdell was unhurt, RCMP said.

Mulholland was taken to Ladysmith General Hospital then transferred to Nanaimo Regional General Hospital later the same day. He was taken to Victoria General Dec. 27, where he died at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 7.

An autopsy was performed in Nanaimo and a decision on whether an inquest will be ordered is expected from Coroner C. F. Newcomb of Ladysmith before the end of this week.

Hearing Set On Nanaimo Harbor Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — A public hearing will be held in Nanaimo Jan. 25 on plans for development of Nanaimo harbor, a spokesman for New Democrat MP Tommy Douglas said Monday.

Mr. Douglas, MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, had urged Transport Minister Jean Marchand Friday to take steps to allow public participation in the planning decisions.

A spokesman for Mr. Marchand declined comment Monday on the minister's response, but the spokesman for Mr. Douglas said the minister had told Mr. Douglas privately that the hearing will be held Jan. 25.

The harbor development plans have aroused local opposition on grounds there was no consultation with any local public body, that fill-in of the Nanaimo River estuary would hurt fish stocks, that it would have a detrimental effect on a nearby Indian reserve and that the federal plans conflict with development plans of the Nanaimo planning commission.

Strangling Investigated

DUNCAN — Police are investigating the death of a 17-year-old youth who was found strangled here Saturday morning.

Archie Jimmy was found in the carport of a house on the Cowichan Indian Reserve.

Police said they suspect no foul play but are still investigating. Although an inquest has been ordered no date has been set.

The next clinics will be Monday and Tuesday of next week at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort.

Hours Monday will be 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 and Tuesday, 1:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Female Ban Illegal

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — Prohibiting women taxi drivers from operating cabs at night would be discriminatory and illegal, town council has been told.

E. C. Day, council's secretary-treasurer, said "We were going to restrict them to driving during daylight hours for their own protection."

"We wrote the human rights commission and they told us we couldn't do that . . . it is discriminatory."

Centennial Day July 15

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan, believed to be the third oldest municiuality in the province, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

The big day of celebration will be the actual day of incorporation, July 15.

Minutes of the first meeting held by the municipality (dated July 15, 1873) were read at the municipality's first meeting of the year Monday afternoon, by former alderman Don Morton.

Sitting in the mayor's chair and wearing the municipality's chain of office, Morton told how Thomas Skinner was appointed "Warden." Other names on the council were Drinkwater, Fry, Marriner, Lomas, Davie and Flett.

Main items of business at that first meeting were the furnishing of the municipal chambers and obtaining stationary.

Morton, who served as councillor, reeve, mayor and alderman for the past 19 years, was replacing Mayor Gerry Smith who is on holiday.

Cowichan Indians Angered By Two-Year Wait on Lease

DUNCAN — Cowichan Indian Band members are angry because they have been waiting two years for the Department of Indian Affairs to process a lease for band land rented by the city of Duncan for its sewage lagoon.

Band manager Norman Joe said Monday the longer the department takes to process the lease the longer members have to wait to collect all of their money.

Since 1961 Duncan has leased six acres of band land on Trunk Road for the lagoon. The 10-year lease expired at the end of June, 1971. A new 10-year lease for $2,500 annually was to be draw up effective July 1 of that year.

Joe said that since that time the lease has been sent back and forth between the justice department in Vancouver and the DIA in Ottawa and still isn't completed.

JOE
. . . back and forth

"We haven't any quarrel with Duncan", he said. "Although they are not required to pay anything until the lease is registered and they have gone out on a limb and paid the two years' rent."

Joe said the department has forwarded half the money to the three band members involved but is still holding back $2,500 until the document is registered.

Joe said band members are concerned for one of the owners Cecelia Alphonse who is in her 70s and is on a fixed income.

"She borrowed money over a year ago to have renovations done on her home. She expected to pay this off with the rental money she has coming. Because it has been held up she has to pay interest on the loan."

Joe feels that the department should be required to pay the interest.

He said publicity is the band's last resort to trying to get the department to process the lease immediately because all other channels have been tried and failed.

"We have turned to the Union of B.C. Chiefs and the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation to apply pressure but that hasn't worked either", he said.

"I think the difficulty is the lack of knowledge by the two departments on how to process the lease."

At the North Cowichan council meeting Monday aldermen approved the five-year lease for Indian land for their sewage lagoon adjacent to Duncan's. The lease is dated June, 1971.

Mothers' Army Raising Money

Strategic command is Vancouver's Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C. and the name of the army is the Mothers' March.

The annual one-night blitz of door-to-door canvassing is Feb. 5 and organizers in Victoria have already begun full-scale planning.

Funds collected in the drive are pooled across the province and then divided among community rehabilitation centres with some money held back for individual assistance.

A little boy from Victoria, born with a cleft-lip palate, is helped through the fund to get on-going treatment and therapy.

And a five-year old girl from Prince George is helped with a hearing problem that would otherwise prevent her from going to school.

Much of donated money provides assistance to province-wide rehabilitation programs such as the Paraplegic Association, the Laurel House School for Autistic Children and the Hemophilia Society.

Last year the campaign collected $52,000 in Victoria. This year their goal is $50,000.

"We decided to have a realistic goal this year," Victoria Kinsmen Chairman Don Michael explained, "one that we can reach and won't be disappointed."

The city has been divided into street sections and each marching mother need devote only about an hour and a half canvassing approximately 15 homes.

Anyone wishing to join the march is asked to phone Mrs. Sheila Manifold at 383-1323.

Way Paved for Community High School

After nearly 18 months of preliminary planning Saanich municipality will be formally invited by Greater Victoria school board to enter into an agreement for development of Saanich Community Secondary School.

Recommendation to send the letter came at the board's facilities and school support committee meeting Tuesday night and followed indications of approval for the community school concept from the provincial government.

Board members, along with officials from Saanich municipality met Education Minister Eileen Dailly and Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer last Fridy to seek changes in government regulations to allow for joint founding of community schools.

"We'd apparently won the battle before we realized it was all over," board chairman Peter Bunn told the committee.

Bunn said the ministers indicated that Legislation would be changed and the government's one-third funding scheme for recreational facilities could probably be applied to the community school.

The board's formal invitation to Saanich will ask them to join in "development and operation of the recreation facilities," which include auditorium or theatre, with stage; community library; additional floor space to gymnasium or stage; community information centre; swimming pool; health unit; plus additional service facilities as required.

The schbol, proposed for construction at Burnside and Acorn, is estimated to occupy 103,726 square feet and to cost $2,074,560.

Other school boards and municipal councils in B.C. have sharing arrangements in public school facilities but the Public Schools Act prohibits sharing of operating costs for joint plants.

Bunn said now that more permissive legislation will be forthcoming the joint school board-Saanich planning committee—and citizens advisory committee should formulate concrete community requirements for the school.

In opther-business, the committee recommended appointment of six architectural firms to study and submit reports on the physical condition of all Greater Victoria schools.

Last December the board approved initiation of a five-year master building plan and the architects' assessment of the physical, structural and functional condition of schools will help the board make long run decisions as to whether they should be phased out, altered, improved or added upon.

Estimated cost of the review, which should be completed by March, is $10,000.

Architectural firms involved are: John Di Castri; Peterson and Lester; Sager and Marshall; Siddall, Dennis and Warner; Wade, Stockdill, Armour and Blewett; and Wagg and Hambleton.

Leadership Clinic Set

A leadership clinic with special emphasis on administrative skills will be held at Camosun College Saturday, Feb. 24 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The day-long course is jointly sponsored by the Esquimalt Recreation Commission, the provincial Community Recreation Branch and Camosun

The course will cover working with volunteers, program planning, effective meetings, administration, and the community and its organizations.

It is open to the public for a $5 registration fee, which, includes lunch and course materials.

$220.00 richer after Christmas.

Mr. Bill Campbell, 2882 Austin Avenue is receiving $220.00 Downtown shopping dollars from Mr. J. Yuen owner of THE ORIENT. Mr. Campbell correctly identified THE ORIENT as the Downtown Business of the Day on C-FAX.

SWISS ORGANIST TO PERFORM

Professor of organ at the Swiss School of Sacred Music in Lucerne and organist and conductor at Zurich's Liebfrauenkirche, Bucher is a master in the great tradition of organ playing.

At the Wednesday recital, Bucher will play the Bach Toccata and Fugue in F major; Clerambault's Suite in the second Mode; Passacaille by Frank Martin and Fantasia and Fugue by Max Reger.

Tokyo-Moscow Pact?

TOKYO (WP) — Having normalized its relations with mainland China in 1972, Japan is turning its eyes northward to the Soviet Union for the diplomatic breakthrough of the new year.

It may be tough, slow going, Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said, but Japan is prepared to negotiate patiently with the Russians in pursuit of eventual agreements. In a review of Japan's international prospects, Tanaka singled out Russo-Japanese relations as the area of most dramatic potential accomplishment in the months ahead.

On the surface, the stumbling blocks to close relations are four small islands immediately of the coast of Japan's northernmost big island of Hokkaido. There little bits of land, referred to here as "the northern island," were traditionally a part of Japan but have been held by the Soviet Union since 1945.

Japan wants them back for reasons of national pride and geography — the nearest of them is only 2 miles off Hokkaido — but so far the Russians have shown no disposition to give them up.

In the opinion of many observers, however, the fundamental problem between Russia and Japan is far bigger than the future of the little "northern islands," as touchy as that might be. The big consideration, the full implications of which are still unclear, is Japan's developing relationship with China, the Communist arch-rival of the Soviet Union.

Prior to Tanaka's trip to Peking last September, the general expectation was that the rapprochment with China would place Japan in an enviable bargaining position with the Soviet Union. The theory was that Russia would want to be doubly sure to achieve close relations with Japan to prevent a too close Tokyo-Peking relationship.

In practice, there has been no sign of give in previous Soviet positions regarding Japan and in fact some suggestions of a hardening.

Russo-Japanese talks on a formal world War II peace treaty were due to begin last fall, but they have not yet materialized in concrete fashion. Despite earlier suggestions of "give" on the question of the northern islands, Soviet officials seemed to stiffen their position late in the year. Soviet Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky warned in a speech here last month that Japanese "agitation" over the northern islands could destroy relations with the Soviet Union.

In his comments this week Tanaka expressed the hope that talks between Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohior and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will resume "as early as possible this year." Gromyko came to Tokyo on an official visit last January. Ohira visited Moscow briefly in October to give a first-hand report to the Russians on the talks with the Chinese in Peking. The next meeting is not yet scheduled.

THE GALLUP POLL

Jobless Picture Gloomy for Most

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

While Canadians are a little more optimistic about an improving unemployment situation than they are about the inflation crisis, concensus is still a gloomy one. More than two-thirds of the adult population (69%) are of the opinion that no progress has been made, as yet, in solving this problem. Only 20% of the people are optimistic enough to say that tht situation is better, while 11% can't decide.

Labor is the most opinionated on the question, and the most apprehensive, as 74% in the skilled and unskilled segments say that the unemployment crisis is as bad as ever. Those in the homes of executives and professionals are slightly less worried, with 65% saying it shows no improvement. Other segments such as those in sale or clerical occupations, or farming, agree at much the same ratios.

In line with this apprehension, is the mood of the public reflected in a study made in mid-1972, when 71% of the public agreed that unemployment might remain at a high level for many years to come, while 19% felt this would not be the case.

Today's findings are based on a study made on October 20-21, with a random sample of 671 adults, in personal, at-home interviews across the nation. A sample of this kind produces results accurate within a 4 percentage point margin of error, 19 out of 20 times.

The question:

"IN GENERAL, DO YOU THINK THAT THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION IS IMPROVING, OR NOT?"

	Improving	Not Improving	Can't Say
CANADA	20%	69%	11%
Executive:
Professionals	22	65	13
Sales: Clerical	18	69	13
Labor	19	74	7
Farm: Other	21	68	11

A recent study showed that, compared to attitudes on unemployment, 78% of the people think the inflation crisis is not improving, 13% say it is, while 9% are undecided.

Obfuscation Official Takes Over

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Ronald L. Ziegler, 33-year-old press secretary to the president, has emerged in top position after an internal power struggle over reorganization of the White House public relations machinery.

An announcement of Ziegler's new authority as the president's principal adviser on information policy is expected in the near future. He will also continue as White House spokesman.

Herbert G. Klein, the administration's 54 - year - old communications director, is expected to leave the government in the relatively near future.

After last November's election it was announced that Klein would continue in office into the second term. But he made no secret of his intention to stay only for a limited period. He is one of the president's long time associates.

"I haven't determined when I'm going to leave, or what I'm going to do, so it is basically the same thing I've talked about before," Klein said.

"The president has asked me to stay on. I have no immediate plans to make a change. I haven't made any determination, except that I don't expect to stay indefinitely."

Ziegler is expected to be in full charge not only of the White House press operation, but of Klein's office, or what remains of it, as well.

The chief question that has not been answered is where Ken W. Clawson, Klein's deputy, fits into the new scheme of things. Clawson is expected to remain in the administration, possibly as head of the old Klein office in the executive office building but under Ziegler.

In giving new power to Ziegler, the president is following a pattern already established of strengthening the hands of the small group of close associates in the White House.

The group includes H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman. Ziegler, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger are the only officials who have easy access to the president's office and see him on a daily basis.

Nevertheless, in giving Ziegler new authority President Nixon is turning full circle from his plan of four years ago when he said he would give no one the title of press secretary.

At first, Nixon described Ziegler as a "spokesman" only, but after a short time he relented and named him press secretary.

As vice-president, Nixon had watched President Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, gather power into his hands, and Nixon had resented it. As president, he made it clear that he wanted no press secretary with such power and wanted no one in the White House acting for him the way either Hagerty or Sherman Adams did for President Eisenhower.

ZEIGLER
. . . new mouthpiece?

Adams combined the authority of both a Haldeman and an Ehrlichman and ran the White House machinery as a chief of staff to the president until Adams's fall from grace following disclosures that he had accepted gifts from outsiders.

Although Ziegler is gaining new authority, his conduct of the press office is running into increasing criticism from newsmen. Particularly since the election he has been more close-mouthed than formerly.

He has increasingly turned over the chore of the daily press briefings to his deputy, Gerald L. Warren, who has been authorized to say very little.

Monday Warren declined to answer almost all questions asked him, even as to the president's plans for his 60th birthday Tuesday.

"Tomorrow is his 60th birthday, and I just don't know exactly where he will have dinner with his family on that occasion," Warren said in reply to question.

"Are you confident that tomorrow is his 60th birthday?" a reporter asked.

"Supremely," Warren replied.

For ten days or more reporters have asked for a breakdown of mail, pro and con, to the president on the Vietnam bombing operation. Each time they were asked, Ziegler or Warren would promise vaguely to supply the information.

Asked Monday if he had come up with the mail count yet, Warren replied: "No, we haven't."

"We are getting no information and haven't for the last week on any subject," a reporter said to Warren. He made no comment.

Egg-Crate Radio Reaching Out To the Blind

By GEORGE N. BUKOTA

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Volunteers and hand-be-down equipment have transformed a suburban Spokane basement into a tiny radio station that serves as a unique broadcast training ground for the blind.

The basement is cold. Cardboard egg-carton dividers serve as soundproofing. And the 10-watt transmitter covers only a 10-mile radius from an antenna mounted on a telephone pole in the back yard.

About 50 volunteer announcers and programmers ranging from housewives to blind college students have worked at the station "at one time or another since we began," says George Cole, whose basement houses KPBX-FM.

LESSONS ARE FREE

With support from Spokane's Blind Steering Committee, Cole started with a class of six blind persons learning broadcasting in the free lessons he gives to volunteers. He already has trained 10 blind persons and now is working with five blind girls, all students at Whitworth College here who probably will work at KPBX when they finish their training.

"The blind are great to teach because they've got such well-developed memories," Cole said. "You tell them something once, and they retain it."

Planning for the station—featuring a wide variety of music and commentary, much of it produced by blind volunteers—began more or less as a lark.

"It took us about a year and a half from the time we actually sat down and decided we wanted a radio station 'til we were on the air," Cole said. "With donated legal and engineering help and donated and used equipment, we put the station on the air for under $2,000."

Ex-FBI Agents Used to Track Absent Fathers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state social services department is hiring former agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to track down fathers who desert their families and force them onto the welfare rolls.

The department said a recent survey indicated that in 87 per cent of all cases on the rolls of its aid-to-dependent-children program, the father is alive but does not live with the family.

Don't Give Up Tub Plant Plans

Apartment balcony gardeners are having a tough time with tubbed plants this winter, but don't be discouraged from giving them continuing care.

Supposing you chose the hardiest plants for your balcony tubs, you have every chance of their emerging from winter into spring essentially unharmed.

Possibly the greatest hazard will be the effect of alternate periods of prolonged frost (scarecely rising above freezing level during the day) and mild spells of overcast with no real frost even at night.

Because we normally grow many borderline plants, particularly shrubs and trees, these are what we like to choose for balcony tubs. But they do not increase their hardiness from being confined in containers nor being elevated to 10th floor balconies.

This is a good reason for using the hardiest of plant material which can be grown here—for the first few years at least. This provides experience, for you will discover what will live even though its roots are in frozen soil for a period.

This may seem a lot of nonsense, when all you want is a half dozen tubs with attractive shrubs all the year round. Probably either evergreen conifers or evergreen broadleafs have been first choice.

If your memory goes back to either prairie or eastern Canada days, you will recall some of the hardiest shrubs in the gardens were forsythia, the spireas, lilacs, weigelas, and for trees—birches, willows, poplars.

A balcony gardener lacking much experience and not wanting to keep constant watch over tubs in winter, will have more success in growing these really worthwhile plants. Young, two or three-year-old plants, carefully given a good start by planting into the tubs in spring, will be delightfully different as balcony attractions. In winter, the beauty of branch and twig pattern will be obvious, particularly with the trees.

Early catkins on birches, pussies on the willows, and balsam scented, sticky buds on the native Balsam poplar—these bring pleasure to gardeners on any level.

According to the size of the containers, and the local weight allowance for your balcony, these shrubs and trees will continue to grow satisfactorily for five years or so before needing replacement.

The shrubs will need pruning each year as the last flowers fade, and unwanted growth cut off at the same time.

The trees too can be thinned if necessary, to maintain a pleasing form and to encourage height if that is wanted.

Wait until spring to see the effect of this winter's weather on your balcony plants. But don't give up the project whatever the results may be. Try again.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, our South declarer arrived at a game contract which a better player would have brought home in routine fashion. Our actual declarer, however, slipped in his play; and, as a consequence, suffered a one-trick set. Can you isolate South's error and bring it to light?

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ Q 9 5
♡ Q J 7 6 2

WEST
♠ K 8 4 3

◇ K Q 10 8
♣ J 7 5 3

EAST
♠ A 10 6

◇ J 9 6 3 2

SOUTH
♠ J 7 2
♡ A K 10 8 4
◇ A 4
♣ A K 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	2♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

After winning West's king of diamonds opening with his ace, declarer cashed the queen and ace of trumps. Staking his existence on the 50-50 probability that West possessed the ten of spades, declarer now led a low spade and finessed the board's nine-spot after West had followed suit with the three. At the completion of play, the defenders had made three spade tricks and one diamond. What was declarer's faux pas?

As will be observed in a moment, declarer had a guaranteed contract regardless of the location of the spade ten, the spade king, or the spade ace. His victory could have been secured by forcing the defenders to lead spades to him.

After capturing the opening diamond lead, trumps would be drawn. The three top clubs would be cashed next, thus eliminating clubs from both the North and South hands. South's remaining diamond would then be led, thrusting one of the opponents into the lead, as simultaneously diamonds would be eliminated from both the North and South hands.

If whichever of the opponents won the diamond lead elected to play back either a club or a diamond, South would ruff the trick in dummy while, at the same time, he would discard the deuce of spades from his own hand. From here in his only losers would be two spade tricks.

If West chose to win South's diamond lead and return a low spade, South would follow with the five-spot off the board. East would capture this trick with his ace — and South couldn't be prevented from building up one spade trick.

The spade combination contained in this deal is a recurring one. If declarer attacks the spade suit, he will develop one trick 50 per cent of the time by finessing the nine of spades. But if declarer can get the opponents to lead the suit to him, he will always win one trick in this suit. And 100 per cent is better than 50 per cent.

By J. A. HUNTER

Sid threw down the letter. "The stupid idea of putting the month number before the day," he said. "This was written some time in 1971, but when? You can't tell if it's the day or the month that's first in that date."

"Does it matter?" Joe asked.

"Sure," replied his partner. "A difference of 86 days, and that could mean a lot of money."

What were the possible dates?

Thanks for an idea to F. C. Asbury, Toronto. (Answer tomorrow)

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Getting Aggressions Out

I read in the journal "Science News," an article by Robert J. Trotter, who says that it is well known that some psychoanalysts have taught their patients to explode and speak out whenever they feel annoyed at someone. Such physicians feel that people ought quickly to get their feelings of aggression out of them.

Because I have always felt that this is not a good idea, I was interested to read that in one case in California, a doctor was accused in a superior court of having poked, beaten, and tortured a woman patient during his efforts to get rid of some feelings of aggression. The superior court awarded her $170,000 in damages.

I have never had any patience with this idea of advising people to flare up at persons who annoyed and angered them. One trouble is that if a person flares out angrily at someone, that person is likely to be badly upset and have his or her feelings hurt.

For instance, if an employer flares at his secretary or at somebody who works for him, he is likely to produce a lot of ill feeling, which if the person has any kindness in him, will distress him greatly.

In this article, Dr. Trotter quotes a certain Leonard Berkowitz of the University of Wisconsin, who fears this idea of an unrestricted show of aggression. After 10 years of research, the doctor says, "It is unintelligent to encourage people to be aggressive."

Often I have suspected strongly that the reason a thief on the street shot and killed the man whom he wanted to rob was that the fellow became insolent and abusive. If he had only handed over his wallet without comment or anger, he might be alive today.

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA TENDER
PHYSICAL EDUCATION, ATHLETIC AND RECREATION CENTRE

Sealed tenders for the construction of the Physical Education, Athletic and Recreation Centre, Project 98/137, will be received by the University up to 2:00 p.m. Pacific Standard Time on Thursday, 15 February, 1973, and will be opened in public immediately thereafter.

Tenders shall be made out on the forms provided by the Architect and shall be delivered to the office of the Director of Campus Planning, Building D, University of Victoria.

Plans and specifications and Tender Documents may be obtained from Rhone & Iredale, 1100 West 7th Avenue, Vancouver, B.C., upon payment of $100.00 in cash or by certified cheque. The sum will be refunded if plans and specifications are returned to the Architect's office within two weeks after the date set for the closing of tenders.

Tenders shall be good for sixty days and shall be accompanied by a Bid Bond for $200,000.00 in the form set out in the Contract Documents. A performance Bond and a Labour and Materials Payment Bond, each in the amount of 50% of the Contract Price, shall be furnished by the successful tenderer.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

I. W. CAMPBELL, P.Eng.,
Director of Campus Planning,
University of Victoria.

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENT,
FISHERIES SERVICE
QUINSAM RIVER HATCHERY

Sealed Tenders for the supply and construction of the Quinsam River Hatchery near Campbell River, British Columbia, will be received up to 2:00 p.m., Pacific Standard Time, on Thursday, February 22, 1973, by the Director of Fisheries, Pacific Region, Department of the Environment, Fisheries Service. Tenders should be delivered to Mr. D. C. Kerr, Chief Administrative Services, 8th Floor, 1090 West Pender Street, Vancouver 1, British Columbia, Phone 666-1479.

The items of work include: an access road, bridge, parking lot, hatchery building, landscaping, carport, pumphouse with filters aeration tower, clarifiers, fifteen (15) reinforced concrete rearing ponds (17' x 75' x 4' deep), three (3) reinforced concrete holding ponds (17' x 75' x 6'6" deep), fish diversion fence, attraction channel, water supply intake structures, pipelines and associated pumps, piping, valves, controls, instrumentation and all other ancillary equipment.

Copies of documents including Instructions to Tenderers Form of Tender, Plans and Specifications may be seen on application to the Director of Fisheries, Pacific Region, 1090 West Pender Street, Vancouver 1, British Columbia, or many be obtained on loan from the above upon deposit of one hundred dollars ($100.00) in the form of a certified cheque or money order payable to the Receiver General of Canada.

A pre-bid site investigation was conducted on October 12th and 13th, 1972. Prospective tenderers may, however, make their own arrangements to inspect (or re-inspect) the site of the proposed works prior to closing of tenders on February 22, 1973.

Access to the site of the works is described on Key Plan Dwg. No. 32-15-SW-G1.

The use of a Bid Depository for subcontractors is intended and the latest rules and procedures of the Vancouver & Lower Mainland and Victoria Bid Depository will apply.

The Department reserves the right to reject any or all Tenders, and the lowest Tender will not necessarily be accepted.

D. C. KERR

Safeguards Eat Budget

Fire safety in secondary schools is the major item on Greater Victoria school board's $1,964,900 construction referendum going before voters Feb. 17.

A detailed accounting of planned expenditures shows seven of the nine schools to receive referendum money will use funds to update fire safety systems.

James Bay elementary will receive the biggest slice of referendum money, with $268,600 needed to provide six extra classrooms and an administration area as well as improve electrical, heaging and fire safety.

Cedar Hill junior secondary will receive the next highest allotment of $246,000 for more classrooms and fire safety, with Mt. Douglas senior secondary close behind with $202,000 in expenses for their gymnasium and fire safety.

Other schools to receive funds if the referendum passes are, in order of the amount of funds to be allocated: Quadra elementary, Oak Bay junior secondary, Highrock junior secondary, Oak Bay senior secondary, Mt. View secondary and Victoria secondary.

Cost of constructing portables, included in the referendum, is $55,000.

Fire and burglar alarm systems will cost $120,000 and the allotment to educational television will be $40,000.

The referendum, which will cost the taxpayer with a $9,000 home about $1 a year, was greatly reduced from the original capital plan for $10 million, put before the board early last year.

B.C. Tel Union Working to Rule

B.C. Telephone Company and union spokesmen used different words today to describe the same thing in their contract renewal dispute.

The company said there is a "slowdown" by operators in numerous communities and disruptions to service have occurred in Vancouver, Nanaimo, Campbell River, Cranbrook, Kamloops, Williams Lake and Nelson.

Victoria was reported as carrying on as normal.

Union spokesmen said operators are only following company rules. It was estimated that "working to rule" almost halves the calls handled.

B.C. Telephone said it is "evident also that in certain areas some personnel have refused to work overtime causing delays in installations of telephones and construction work."

Hazel Magee, general secretary of the traffic division of the Federation of Telephone Workers of British Columbia, said members of the Vancouver local decided, after a meeting to hear a report on negotiations, "it was in their best interest to observe all company rules for operators. This should not be interpreted as a slowdown because these rules are made by the company and should be observed at all times."

Contract talks broke down last Friday and the 8,600-member union, covering all employees, applied for appointment of a federal conciliation board. The previous contract expired Dec. 31.

B.C. Telephone said there was "some indication" earlier that settlement might be reached with a 14 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract and a 35 per cent increase in the company pension formula.

"The combined cost of these two items alone would be more than 20 per cent of the current payroll which would have to be paid for out of subscribers rates," the company said.

"It is the view of the board of directors that they are enormously reluctant to accept any such proposal, not only because of its heavy inflationary impact, but especially when the pensions are on a non-contributory basis and also since B.C. Telephone employees are already the highest paid telephone workers in Canada."

Business Scared Claims Socred

Opposition House Leader Frank Richter said Tuesday the "alarming" increase in unemployment in British Columbia is largely a result of the "scare" that business has received from the NDP government.

Richter in a released statement said Premier Barrett's explanation that federal winter works money was late in coming is not valid.

"The government has delayed what should be a simple administrative procedure" in getting winter works projects going, Richter said.

"The rise from 6.9 per cent to 8.3 per cent is in a line with predictions made by the official opposition that business scares, discouragement of investment, lack of action of the B.C. Development Corporation are major contributions to the situation faced by the Province under the no-growth policies of the NDP.

There could have been some action taken during the fall session of the B.C. Legislature but there was not, he said.

Anderson accused members of the cabinet of making "rash and immature statement about government takeover of business."

He said Barrett's government is not solely to blame for the rising unemployment but "what I do blame him for is the stupidity of getting up and blaming other people when he should be taking some of the blame himself."

Death Accidental

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre ruled Thursday that a 1½-year-old Langford girl died accidentally Dec. 28 after choking on one or more peanuts and no one was to blame.

The announcement followed an inquiry he held into the death of Heather Lynn Soderman, daughter of Judy Lynn Soderman, 21, of 649 Atkins.

The child was with her aunt, Bonnie Soderman, 18, at the home of her grandparents Dec. 27 when, left alone for a few moments, she began eating peanuts which were on a coffee table.

The youngster choked and was taken to Victoria General Hospital where surgery was undertaken but she died the next morning of cardiac arrest.

Injuries Detailed

A nine-year-old Saanich boy, struck by a car Jan. 3, died of a skull fracture, brain hemorrhage, shock and extensive internal injuries, a coroner's inquest was told Tuesday.

Paul Beaudry, 3838 Epsom, was hit as he walked along Cedar Hill Cross Road. He died Friday, Jan. 5, in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Dr. Frank Berry, a pathologist at Royal Jubilee, Tuesday evening told the opening session of an inquest into the boy's death, before Coroner Edmond de St. Jorre, that the child died of massive internal injuries to the head and trunk.

Dr. John McCracken, who attended the child from the time of the accident until his death, said he was in a "deep coma" when admitted to hospital, and showed no improvement before his death two days later.

The inquest was adjourned to Jan. 15.

Electronic Box Restores Voice

By MARCELLA BROWN
Sarnia Observer

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Gregarious Harold G. MacLean was never at a loss for words, written or spoken, during his many years as a newspaper man.

For Mr. MacLean now pronounced free of cancer—speechlessness probably was the hardest blow to befall him.

"I went for three years without a voice," he said. "If I'd only known about the elecrical speech device, I could have talked the day I came out of surgery."

He is telling about it now in the hope it will help others stricken with the same form of cancer.

The voice machine is made by Cooper-Rand, which says of it that "you can speak without embarrassment in a quiet room and converse with complete intelligibility under almost all conditions."

It resembles a small transistor radio weighing about six ounces, and fits into the shirt pocket. Inside the case are an elecronic pulse generator and batteries. Outside are knobs for pitch and volume controls.

TAKES LITTLE EFFORT

A plastic speaker tube goes into a corner of the mouth, connected to a tone generator and thence by wire to the battery. Sounds are formed by tongue and lips and broken into syllables by depressing a generator button attached to the speaker tube.

"It works quite well and although people have a little difficulty at first because of the lack of inflection, thereby causing a monotone, it's almost effortless," Mr. MacLean reported through the speaking machine.

He conceded that esophageal speech (by which air is injected or inhaled into the upper esophagus to produce a belch-like sound used for speech) is probably the best. But it takes a lot of practice.

Bell Canada has a device for picking up throat vibrations but too many of Mr. MacLean's throat muscles were removed to permit him to use it.

"My surgeon recommended this (the one he uses) and it has become a conversation piece in more ways than one," he said.

Mr. MacLean entered newspaper work in 1925—in earlier days he was called Scoop—and later did a wartime stint as a defence department public relations officer. He has been managing editor and editorial page editor of The Observer. He said he's enjoying his retirement.

"I read, write letters and spend six weeks each winter in Florida," he said. He and his wife Bea visit the Lost Voice Club in Fort Lauderdale.

"They all use the esophageal speech method," he said, "and once they've conquered it, they never stop talking."

Fuel Oil, Gasoline Prices Up

Imperial Oil has increased wholesale gasoline prices one cent per gallon and wholesale fuel oil two cents per gallon effective this morning and other oil companies indicated they will follow suit.

Victoria Imperial fuel distributors this morning increased heating oil prices to 25.3 cents per gallon from 23.3 and gas stations are expected to increase their prices one cent per gallon Thursday.

Other oil companies indicated today they will follow Imperial's move.

The Automotive Retailers' Association is meeting this afternoon to consider its reaction but secretary-manager J. Lloyd Kinneard said service stations would have little choice but to increase pump prices.

Prices fluctuate from station to station but average price in Victoria is 52.9 cent regular and 57.9 cents premium, one cent above the average Vancouver price.

Pump price increases would take effect immediately if approved as expected this afternoon.

An arbitration board has awarded Petrofina Canada an increase in the wellhead price to 16 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, up from 13 cents, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Customers of B.C. Hydro pay $1.20 per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas. For Westcoast to increase its prices to B.C. Hydro would require negotiations and hearings before the National Energy Board.

B.C. Hydro has a long-term supply contract with Westcoast at a fixed price running until 1987.

Imperial oil announced Tuesday it will pay 20 cents more per barrel for crude oil.

As a result, it will raise the wholesale price of gas one cent per gallon and heating oil, diesel and turbo fuel two cents a gallon across Canada.

In addition, in western Canada only, the price of industrial and consumer gas will go up two cents a gallon wholesale.

Industrial gasoline is sold to major industries in bulk. Consumer gasoline is sold for other than highway use. Consumer sales include those to farmers, marinas and small commercial customers.

The selective increases brought criticism from Kinneard who said all wholesale prices should be identical.

"Service station operators cannot understand why the same product should have different wholesale prices for different customers," he said.

"Selective price increases are discriminatory. We feel gasoline should sell at one wholesale price to everyone and let marketing conditions govern the retail price."

He added that Imperial's increased costs for crude oil amounted to little more than one-half a cent per gallon and they were recovering the cost at a rate of a cent a gallon.

"That's a pretty healthy recovery rate."

Imperial is paying 20 cents more per barrel containing 35 gallons of crude oil.

Crude oil costs vary from $2.39 per barrel to $3.19 per barrel depending upon production costs but all will go up the identical 20 cents.

Imperial Oil said there were many reasons for the wholesale price increases.

These include:

Increased taxes on oil com-

SIDEWALK DRINKING?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips said Tuesday he is seeking a meeting with Attorney-General Alex Macdonald to see if liquor laws in the city could be relaxed to allow people to get more enjoyment out of drinking.

Phillips said some suggestions will include allowing alcoholic beverages to be served at sidewalk restaurants and permitting entertainment in beer parlors.

Young Firing Upheld

A majority decision by a three-man board of reference has upheld the Sept. 8 firing of Campbell River high school principal John Young.

John Laxton, counsel for Young, promptly said it was most likely the decision would be appealed.

Young, who has been providing a free ombudsman service in Campbell River since he was dismissed, says he is looking for a new job.

A lengthy set of reasons for the board's decision, which was opposed by Lake Cowichan schoolteacher member Robert Wilson, was submitted to Laxton, school board lawyer J. S. Clyne and the department of education.

Adam Robertson, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, which financed Young's appeal, said if Young wanted to pursue the appeal further his request would be considered by the federation executive next weekend.

Young's first reaction to the decision was:

"Obviously I am not guilty of any misconduct or neglect of duty. I had every expectation that the decision would have been in my favor."

"In fact, it was so obvious that I was not guilty that I just assumed that my appeal would be allowed," he told the Times.

Young would not comment

Curbs Hinted On Exports To U.S.

Times News Services

Canadian oil refineries were assured today by federal energy minister Donald McDonald that their future needs will be met even if it means limiting oil exports to the U.S. which is now suffering a severe fuel shortage.

MacDonald emphasized however that there is no evidence Canada is faced with an imminent petroleum shortage and there are no immediate plans to impose controls on exports to the U.S.

Meanwhile, the White House has authorized more than a fourfold increase in heating oil imports to ease the fuel shortages threatening a six-state region of the midwest.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness said that the lifting of the import quotas would mean some 252 million additional gallons of No. 2 heating oil would become available to most of the nation over the next 90 days.

Major airlines rationed their jet fuel at Kennedy International Airport today because of what industry officials called a "very serious" shortage.

The shortage was attributed to a cut in deliveries to airlines by major petroleum companies straining to meet demands posted by the fuel shortage.

Because of the shortage at Kennedy, the airlines most affected are taking on extra-heavy loads at other cities before flying to New York so they have enough fuel for flights to their next destination.

While the weather took its share of the blame, the OEP laid at least part of the responsibility on Midwest refineries it said persisted in producing gasoline at a time when heating oils began to run short.

The OEP said some 70 refineries in nine states have been producing twice as much gasoline as heating oils every week of the last three months.

A glut of gasoline led to gas wars in Michigan and Wisconsin that have resulted in prices seven cents a gallon lower than sourrounding states, the OEP said.

"The new quotas will bring heating oils from the Virgin Islands into East Coast ports," a spokesman for the LOG JAM ON INDIAN RIVER near Tofino is one of several which clog the once free flowing salmon-producing waterway. Tributaries of the river are also filled with debris and stumps from logging operations and fish are no longer able to reach their spawning grounds.

Logging Labelled Salmon Killer

Ten local organizations have joined together to assist the Save Our Salmon Association in its fight for the survival of the Pacific salmon threatened by coastal logging operations on Vancouver Island.

In telegrams sent today jointly to federal environmental Minister Jack Davis and B.C. Resource Minister Bob Williams, they urge immediate action to stop the devastation of hundreds of streams and rivers on the Island.

Davis is asked to abolish the "presently prevailing practice of leniency towards transgressions against the Fisheries Act," such as yarding across streams, driving motorized vehicles across creeks and leaving debris and stumps in rivers.

It asks that "all laws safeguarding our fish resource be supported by strict enforcement.

Williams is asked to revise the existing guide lines for logging operations to incorporate adequate provisions for the preservation of fish streams. This would include leaving a belt of trees along creeks and rivers and controlling cutting operations on salmon stream watersheds.

In addition, the two governments are urged to co-operate on all matters regarding fish preservation and to undertake a detailed survey of salmon streams in B.C.

The province and Ottawa are also asked to undertake a stream clean up under the summer works program. The costs of such a program to be borne equally by the federal environmental department, the B.C. department of recreation and conservation and the forest industry.

The Save Our Salmon Association is composed of commercial fishermen.

Organizations supporting the association are: Amalgamated Conservation Society, Federation of B.C. Naturalists; James Bay Association; Sierra Club of Victoria; Victoria SPEC; Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association; Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs; United Fisherman and Allied Workers' Union; Victoria-Sooke-Sidney: Victoria Canoe Club, Windsor Park Neighbourhood Group.

Mike Hill of Ucluelet, secretary, said other organizations on the mainland are expected to join in the fight for a new deal for B.C. fisheries resources.

Public action to stop damage to salmon streams is sparked by logging operations in the Staghorn Creek and Indian River area, near Tofino-Ucluelet.

The rivers and creeks were once choked with fish, but logging operations now have serious depleted the spawning grounds of the salmon, according to Hill.

"You cut down trees along stream banks and that's all you will get out of the land for another seventy years," he said. "But if the streams are protected, they will produce tens of thousands of salmon year after year."

"It's incredible how we have tolerated for so many years such waste," he added. "Fish are not only important to man but to other life forms. We are destroying a bountiful resource."

Turner Defends Economy: 'Strong Despite Setbacks,

Times News Service

Smarting from Opposition attacks on the high rate of unemployment shown in newly-released figures, Finance Minister John Turner told the Commons Tuesday that the Canadian economy is basically strong, despite a "temporary pause" in growth last year.

Turner confessed that he was "disturbed and disappointed" by the figures but he laid the blame for them indirectly to crop problems and strikes late in 1972.

Because of these problems, the rate of increase in national output declined, the merchandise trade balance deteriorated, unemployment increased and prices rose sharply, he said.

To opposition cries of "fairy tale," Turner said indications are that the economy is recovering — the rate of price increases has slowed, industrial production has "rebounded sharply," labor income and consumer spending are up and the trade picture has improved dramatically.

Turner's speech was delayed while Liberals, New Democrats and Social Crediters banded together to vote down a Conservative motion that the House adjourn debate on the Throne Speech so that an increase in old-age pensions could be considered immediately.

The motion was defeated 154-104 with five members absent from the House.

NDP support of the motion would have meant its success with the present House standing — Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 15, Independent 2.

Later Conservative speakers accused the NDP of abandoning their principles to support the Liberal government.

But Ed Nelson (NDP-Burnaby-Seymour) countered that the Conservatives would be even quicker to jump between the sheets in a marriage of convenience because of "their lust for power."

Speaking to reporters, veteran New Democrat and higher-pension advocate Stanley Knowles lashed out at the Conservative motion:

"It was a farce and it comes from a party that refused to agree to $150 a month for the old-age pensioners, has refused to say where it stands, and we think that this was a vote that was just designed to mislead the old-age pensioners, that it was just fun and games and playing fast and loose."

Since the government did not have pension-increase leg-

FOOD PRICES TAKE MASSIVE JUMP IN U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Wholesale farm product prices in the U.S. went up 5.7 per cent in December, a 68.4 per cent rate of rise on an annual basis and their largest one-month increase in 26 years, the labor department said Tuesday.

The massive food price rise, which the department blamed "chiefly" on "unusual weather patterns," drove the over-all wholesale price index upward by a seasonally adjusted 1.6 per cent for the month, or a 19.2 per cent annual rate, the most it has gone up in any month since 1951.

Consumer hopes for a slowdown in food price inflation in 1973 have been further dimmed by a new government forecast that prices in the first six months of the year will rise 50 per cent faster than predicted earlier.

Lumber Hikes 'Criminal'

Highways Minister Robert Strachan has termed lumber price increases over the last year "criminally irresponsible" and warned private industry to expect economic controls if the trend continues.

In a speech at the Empress on Tuesday, Strachan said the lumber industry is taking advantage of a good market and the increases have nothing to do with the "puny" wage increase last granted to the International Woodworkers of America union.

He quoted a Victoria Times story, saying that lumber prices have risen by between 30 and 70 per cent over the last year and there have been 13 price increases in at least one type of lumber in the year.

Strachan said that the IWA settlement added only 15 cents to the cost of 1,000 feet of lumber.

"And I suggest that that is criminal irresponsibility on the part of the major industry of this province to subject this province to that kind of price increase."

He said it is especially bad at a time when there is a housing shortage and at a time when the forest industry's "profit picture is higher than it's been for years."

The minister said that "if this sort of price increases continue, you'll be faced inevitably with price controls and wage controls."

"But I suggest to you that if we get to the point of wage and price controls, it can't stop there.

"If we have wage and price controls, you then must also have profit controls, you must also have interest controls, and you must have export-import controls.

"And I say to you that the lumber industry of British Columbia is driving us up that road to compulsory regimentation much faster than the IWA or this socialist government is doing," the minister said.

He said the kind of price increase experienced in lumber sales is "the kind of luxury, the kind of medicine that will be fatal.

"It won't be the socialist medicine that will be fatal. It will be the kind of private enterprise medicine that will be fatal because we simply can't afford the luxury of that kind of freedom any more," Strachan said.

The minister added that it is neither the intention or the wish of the NDP government to have economic controls of the kind he described, but "there has to be someone in the driver's seat."

INCENTIVES GET NOD

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Tuesday that while the New Democratic Party government hopes to get a greater share of the profits from mining in the province, it will not forget that incentives are necessary for mineral exploration.

"We realize that the hope of the jackpot is the catalyst that urges people on in exploration and we do not wish to destroy this incentive," he told the annual meeting of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

"But since the minerals belong to the people we feel that they are not getting their proper share of the jackpot.

The chamber was told by retiring president E. H. Caldwell that mineral production in British Columbia is heading for a record in 1973 after setting one in 1972.

He said preliminary provincial government figures indicate mineral production in 1972 was $631 million, a 20-per-cent increase over 1971.

A further production increase this year is indicated by a full year's production by six large mines which started operation in 1972.

Canadian mining as a whole also had record production, he said, but dividends dropped 24 per cent from 1971 and a number of companies are operating at a loss.

Mackasey Rips Into UIC Critics

OTTAWA (CP) — Former manpower minister Bryce Mackasey tore into critics of the Unemployment Insurance Act Tuesday in an emotional address that had members of all parties cheering him on.

Mackasey said in debate on the throne speech that one of the reasons he remained in the Commons after resigning from the cabinet following the last election was to see that "reactionary forces in the House do not destroy unemployment insurance legislation."

Alleged abuses of the unemployment insurance plan raised a controversy during the election campaign and were credited with helping turn the tide against the Trudeau government.

Mackasey produced poll-survey figures to show that of the people who voted against the government, only five per cent did so because of discontent over unemployment insurance abuses.

"I have looked up the results of polls, not only the Gallup poll but private polls which people were kind enough to place at my disposal after the election," said Mackasey.

"I find that 51 per cent of the people who voted against the government voted because of unemployment, that 13 per cent voted because of inflation, and six per cent because they thought old-age pensions needed improvement," he said.

"Only five per cent of the electors voted against the government because we increased unemployment insurance."

Mackasey's first targets were the government "mandarins" whom he accused of using the unemployment insurance controversy as a screen to divert attention from unemployment figures.

He said there are several economic forecasters in the finance department whom Finance Minister John Turner "might be better off without."

They used issues such as unemployment insurance as excuses for their own failures.

ALTERATION STUDIED

A $5,000 alteration in plans for Cedar Hill Community Centre now under construction in Saanich would improve its usefulness and add to spectator facilities, aldermen were told Tuesday.

The proposal was brought forward by former finance chairman Ald. Alan Newberry, now chairman of parks and outdoor recreation, following a meeting of finance committee.

He said he was seeking reaction to the suggested addition of a viewing gallery above a dance studio at the front of the building on Cedar Hill Road due to open in February or March.

Members of the committee, including indoor recreation chairman Ald. Fred Severson, agreed to view the site at 4 p.m. next Wednesday and have a meeting immediately following to decide whether to make a recommendation to council.

The dance studio is one of the larger sections of the building, about 1,100 square feet in size, but original plans made no provision for a public viewing area as was allowed for in the main auditorium.

The suggested alteration would allow a 15 by 25-foot glassed gallery to overlook the studio floor from the second storey above a concession area and adjoining a staff room. It would be reached by stairs from the ground level.

The proposed room could also be scheduled for meetings or receptions.

$250,000 for Spies—Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The prosecutor charged today that White House aide G. Gordon Liddy was provided $250,000 to finance a political intelligence operation for President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Earl J. Silbert, chief prosecutor in the Watergate bugging trial, said Liddy and his close friend and E. Howard Hunt Jr., who served at times as a White House consultant, were provided the money to recruit intelligence agents.

He alleged their aim was to provide advance information about possible demonstrations by "extremist groups either of the left or the right" during the presidential campaign.

In an opening statement to the jury Silbert said the government would prove that Liddy, Hunt and five men arrested at the Watergate building offices of the Democratic National Committee last June 17 conspired to steal political secrets by theft and by wiretapping.

He said he wanted to give the jury "a general idea . . . a broad picture" — of the alleged crimes, set forth in an eight-count indictment in September, before calling witnesses that he said could prove the charges.

Silbert noted that Liddy, an ex-FBI agent, left his staff job at the White House in September, 1971, to become a counsel to the committee to re-elect the president.

"Toward the end of December, he received two additional assignments . . ." Silbert said. "He was to try to develop an intelligence operation to find out in advance if demonstrations were planned for campaign appearances . . . in addition, he was to look into security problems for the Republican national convention then scheduled to be held in San Diego."

Half a Century Late: But at Long Last Chums

Item: A note today from my friend Paul Faris in North Vancouver triumphantly informing me of a Christmas most men would envy. As a boy, Paul dreamed, as we all did, of getting Chums' Annual. It was never to be. He was often reminded by his parents that "money didn't grow on trees" and, after all, Chums was priced up around the five-dollar mark.

"This Christmas morning, under the tree, was a package addressed to Dad," Paul now writes. "When I lifted it I assumed that someone with a misguided sense of humor had wrapped up a slab of concrete. Of course, you have guessed it. At long last my Chums Annual. A 1913 edition and very well preserved, too. It took over half a century, but I did get it."

I have offered Paul a straight swap with an unworn Hathaway shirt, a velvet smoking jacket, a striped tie and a pair of genuine carpet carpet-slippers—my big gifts—but he's not taking and I don't blame him.

Item: Funny and revealing sentence in a publicity hand-out today from A. E. Warrick who is heading the campaign by the private companies seeking to stay in business after the NDP government takes over car insurance. "We know from experience," says Mr. Warrick, "that a car insurance monopoly is not in the best interests of the majority of people in British Columbia."

Item: Yet another very good reason for taking a winter vacation is the fighting chance it gives you to escape from people who have taken a winter vacation.

As it was, we were snug in our bed on a cold winter's morning when our friend Webster, just back from Baja California, shook us awake and launched into a non-stop, 90-minute dissertation on the exotic pleasures of La Paz and Cabo San Lucas, surely the most tiresome monologue in the memory of man.

Deeply tanned, fairly bursting with his batteries newly recharged by the Mexican sun, Webster went on and on and on about the joys of the virgin beaches and secluded coves where the desert meets the Sea of Cortez and the open Pacific at the farthest point of that finger-like peninsula. He seems to have caught some 30 fish. Each was described in the complete detail possible only with a man possessed of—afflicted with—total recall.

Webster has a new guarantee of a captive audience. Somewhere, somehow, he has come into possession of a truly enormous dog which, though still a puppy, now weighs 180 pounds. It looks somewhat like a small polar bear. It adores Webster and the sound of Webster's voice, which seldom diminishes below a steady roar. If you interrupt Webster the dog turns upon you with a menacing growl, focuses its beady little eyes on your jugular vein and reveals fangs fully four inches in length.

If my attention wandered it was because I was reflecting, though not aloud, upon the strange fact that it is quite possible to hate a man even though he be numbered among your closest friends.

Item: A perceptive comment from my octogenarian friend C. K. Morison on the philosophy expressed in Desiderata which appeared here as a New Year's column.

Writes C.K.: "Having passed 80 I now feel that I am entitled to 'go placidly amid the noise and haste.' I have those philosophical remarks hanging in my front porch, but I have been wondering whether Karl Marx would not label that, too, as 'opium for the people?' While decent people wander around placidly, feeling that 'the universe is unfolding as it should', the panhandlers and thugs, in high places and in low places, quietly take us for a ride and constantly cook up new ways to take us for a ride."

Too terribly true. I know of no truly outstandingly successful man who hasn't broken most or all of the Desiderata commandments. Or as Leo Durocher put it: Nice guys finish last.

Item: Yet another case of Disenchantment with the Empress, sadly in increasing phenomenon, this time from CKDA's commentator John Mackin who forgot his wallet and arrived with his wife at the hotel's New Year's Eve dinner dance with just 10 dollars in his pocket.

Mackin, it seems, consulted a short wine list and settled on a Chablis priced at $5.50. When the Chablis that arrived was priced at $9.50 John complained and was told, peremptorily, without apology, that "they were out of the wine I had ordered and take it or leave it."

Addressing Louis Finamore, the hotel's general manager, Macklin went on the air to say this: "Can you imagine, Mr. Finamore, listing a wine without first checkikg your cellar to find out if you can serve it? I have sampled the hospitality of hotels in England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria and Germany and I can tell you, Mr. Finamore, that is not the way a hotel of the first class performs . . . I am of the opinion that things ain't what they used to be."

Since I've a couple of dozen letters with similar complaints, most of them involving the Empress Christmas Day dinner, I'm wondering if Louis' greatest challenge isn't to shine up, locally, the tarnished image of an institution we want to love.

Fast Start on Housing Push

Vancouver Co-Op May Play Big Role, Says Alderman

Ald. Alf Hood, the man charged with directing Victoria's thrust for a major housing program in 1973, was quick off the mark this week in tackling the 'groundwork' for the assignment he was given Monday by Mayor Peter Pollen.

Among his top priorities, Hood said today, will be pushing ahead with development proposals for the four-acre site on McCaskill Street which the city is selling to the provincial government's land bank.

Hood has high hopes that the United Housing Foundation, the Vancouver co-operative responsible for the acclaimed De Cosmos Village housing project, will play a a major part in developing the 70-unit McCaskill site in Victoria West.

He has already met with the foundation's officials, and received an invitation to view their complex at an early date.

"It sounds quite terrific," he commented, adding that the UHF has expressed keen interest in the possibilitites for a similar development in Victoria West.

Hood is determined that, whatever council manages to achieve in the housing field this year, there will be no massive concentrations of low-income homes as typified by Blanshard Court.

This has been accomplished by the De Cosmos scheme, he noted, where there is a wide range of incomes from about $1,000 up to $12,000, and an age spectrum from 23 to 85.

"The idea is to get a real mix," he added.

Hood said the UHF has been concerned solely with non-profit development of land for home ownership, but he is hopeful that arrangements can also be made for some rental accommodation at the McCaskill site.

Victoria is negotiating to sell the land to the province for $350,000.

What about other sites?. Here lies a thorny problnlem, the alderman admitted, because most of the city-owned land is either not suitable for housing or is being held for other purposes, such as parks or street improvements.

Hood said finding areas within city boundaries large enough for a 15- or 20-unit development is going to be extremely difficult, and he envies the "vast tracts" which outlying municipalities have available.

The answer may be to tackle housing on a regional basis, he speculated.

Looking ahead to a busy year, Hood says besides travelling to such places as Burnaby and Calgary which have accomplished a great deal in housing he wants to meet with local "potential user groups," developers, property managers and contractors.

One purpose behind such discussions would be to find out what can be done locally to help meet the pressing need for apartment accommodation for young families with children, and also for single-parent families.

Hood admitted that city council had achieved little or nothing on the housing front last year, and said there were two possible reasons for that failure: fear of the heavy cost to the city and a feeling of disappointment that areas such as Blanshard Court had not produced the expected results.

The city's new impetus, as reflected in Pollen's inaugural address Monday, was a response to the provincial government's determination to promote vigorous housing programs, and to the pledge of federal assistance under amendments to the National Housing Act, he explained.

"This means that funds are going to be available for various types of projects which will relieve municipal authorities from coming up with actual funds."

Municipal participation, Hood said, would be mainly confined to trying to find land at a reasonable cost, and encouraging mixed development through co-operatives.

CBC Studying City Station

British Columbia's representative on the CBC's board of governors, Wilson said today:

"It is the accepted policy of the CBC, the Canadian Radio-TV Commission and the federal government that ultimately all provincial capitals have CBC services."

Victoria is the only provincial capital with neither a CBC television station nor radio station.

He added that providing Victoria with CBC facilities is a "question of when and how."

Wilson said the question of installing joint aerial facilities on Saturna Island had been considered:

"It (the aerial) would have to be made higher so that joint use could be made by several stations. However, I understand the ministry of transport frowned on this."

Wilson said he had been trying to contact CBC president Lauren Pickard in Ottawa today but had been unable to reach him.

Reg Jessup, CBC regional representative in Vancouver, was also unable to say how close Victoria is to getting CBC facilities.

Added pressure for a CBC station in Victoria may be exerted, following a CRTC ruling last year allowing cable-television stations to black out programs on other channels when the same program appears on a local one.

The request for a blackout of CBC's Vancouver station, CBUT, made by B.C. Television (which owns both Victoria's CHEK and Vancouver's CHAN) when its programs are carried on Victoria cablevision, may have motivated the CBC.

The request was made last fall and although the blackout never took place it may have persuaded the CBC that now is the time to consider seriously giving Victoria its own station.

A number of years ago the CBC was granted a reservation on a television broadcasting channel to enable it to transmit directly from a Victoria station. The channel has since been lost and in view of heavy demand for broadcasting channels in this area it was expected the reservation would not easily be regained.

'Safest' Home Built In the World'

Developer Hits Highrise Fire Trap Rap

Victoria developer Jim Mace jumped to the defence of highrises Tuesday when a Vancouver urban affairs commentator claimed that high towers are "impossible to fight fires in."

Mace claimed that highrise buildings erected in Canada over the past five to 10 years are the "safest residential accommodation that have yet been built in Canada or any other country in the world."

The statement was greeted with some laughter. When Mace was asked by someone how he could substantiate that remark he replied . . . "because of our engineers, our architects and our rules."

Michael Crampton, speaker at the Sierra Club meeting at Landsowne College is a teacher of urban affairs at Capilano College and a broadcaster. He said the synthetic materials used in modern apartment construction are highly flammable and where buildings have a core of adjacent stairs and elevator shafts there is a "most gorgeous chimney."

Mace retorted: "I feel the people who live in these buildings deserve more than people like yourself. . . ."

Crampton's theme was the manipulation of local government by those in property development and real estate, to serve their own interests. He said this process came about because the manipulators are, in a sense, filling a vacuum created by apathetic citizens and inactive councils.

"Apathy is the most important ingredient in politics," he said. "You have to ask yourself who is being apathetic. Obviously it is not the developers — it's not in their own intrests to be so."

But when one listener asked what the cure to apathy is, Crampton said there was no magic formula for plucking people from their firesides "short of topless aldermen or something like that."

He said informed, active and innovative citizen groups are the only real hope of coming to grips with civic politics, as city halls across the country have been in the hands of the property industry for a long time.

In this respect, Crampton said, Victoria is not much different from other cities, although he conceded that here "it is rather harder to pin labels on members of city council."

After reading some extracts from the recently published study of James Bay by the city's planning department, he said the naivety evident in some of the official attitudes would not have escaped a hammering in cities such as Vancouver where there are scores of aggressive citizen groups.

"This report reveals a cast of mind now obsolescent in most communities in B.C. and certainly in Vancouver as I thought it would be in Victoria following the election of a reformist mayor," he said.

But Mayor Peter Pollen, while appearing "vaguely committed to a change of direction," also gave the impression of behaving "in an incoherent way," he said.

Crampton was reluctant to be drawn into any discussion on specific civic matters in Victoria, but he did say it was "rather interesting" to note the make-up of Victoria's Board of Variance, which is charged with considering routine zoning matters.

This body, which by its actions has the potential to create land values, has five members "three of whom without doubt are concerned with the property industry and possibly a fourth as well," Crampton said.

The fourth member was listed as an investment man, "and that covers a multitude of sins," he added.

Fuel Oil, Gasoline Prices Up

Imperial Oil has increased wholesale gasoline prices one cent per gallon and wholesale fuel oil two cents per gallon effective this morning and other oil companies indicated they will follow suit.

Victoria Imperial fuel distributors this morning increased heating oil prices to 25.3 cents per gallon from 23.3 and gas stations are expected to increase their prices one cent per gallon Thursday.

The Automotive Retailers' Association is meeting this afternoon to consider its reaction but secretary-manager J. Lloyd Kinneard said service stations would have little choice but to increase pump prices.

Prices fluctuate from station to station but average price in Victoria is 52.9 cents regular and 57.9 cents premium, one cent above the average Vancouver price.

Pump price increases would take effect immediately if approved as expected this afternoon.

13-CENT INCREASE

An arbitration board has awarded Petrofina Canada an increase in the wellhead price to 16 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, up from 13 cents, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Petrofina sells to Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd., B.C.'s major transporter of natural gas. Westcoast in turn sells to B.C. Hydro, among others.

Customers of B.C. Hydro pay $1.20 per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas. For Westcoast to increase its prices to B.C. Hydro would require negotiations and hearings before the National Energy Board.

B.C. Hydro has a long-term supply contract with Westcoast at a fixed price running until 1987.

Imperial oil announced Tuesday it will pay 20 cents more per barrel for crude oil.

As a result, it will raise the wholesale price of gas one cent per gallon and heating oil, diesel and turbo fuel two cents a gallon across Canada.

In addition, in western Canada only, the price of industrial and consumer gas will go up two cents a gallon wholesale.

Industrial gasoline is sold to major industries in bulk. Consumer gasoline is sold for other than highway use. Consumer sales include those to farmers, marinas and small commercial customers.

The selective increases brought criticism from Kinneard who said all wholesale prices should be identical.

DIFFERENT PRICES

"Service station operators cannot understand why the same product should have different wholesale prices for different customers," he said.

"Selective price increases are discriminatory. We feel gasoline should sell at one wholesale price to everyone and let marketing conditions govern the retail price."

He added that Imperial's increased costs for crude oil amounted to little more than one-half a cent per gallon and they were recovering the cost at a rate of a cent a gallon.

"That's a pretty healthy recovery rate."

Imperial is paying 20 cents more per barrel containing 35 gallons of crude oil.

Crude oil costs vary from $2.39 per barrel to $3.19 per barrel depending upon production costs but all will go up the identical 20 cents.

Imperial Oil said there were many reasons for the wholesale price increases.

These include:

The growing shortage of world supplies of oil;

Higher crude oil prices being paid outside North America;

Increased taxes on oil com-

Curbs Hinted On Exports To U.S.

Times News Services

Canadian oil refineries were assured today by federal energy minister Donald MacDonald that their future needs will be met even if it means limiting oil exports to the U.S. which is now suffering a severe fuel shortage.

MacDonald emphasized however that there is no evidence Canada is faced with an imminent petroleum shortage and there are no immediate plans to impose controls on exports to the U.S.

Meanwhile, the White House has authorized more than a fourfold increase in heating oil imports to ease the fuel shortages threatening a six-state region of the midwest.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness said that the lifting of the import quotas would mean some 252 million additional gallons of No. 2 heating oil would become available to most of the nation over the next 90 days.

Major airlines rationed their jet fuel at Kennedy International Airport today because of what industry officials called a "very serious" shortage.

The shortage was attributed to a cut in deliveries to airlines by major petroleum companies straining to meet demands posted by the fuel shortage.

Because of the shortage at Kennedy, the airlines most affected are taking on extra-heavy loads at other cities before flying to New York so they have enough fuel for flights to their next destination.

While the weather took its share of the blame, the OEP laid at least part of the responsibility on Midwest refineries it said persisted in producing gasoline at a time when heating oils began to run short.

The OEP said some 70 refineries in nine states have been producing twice as much gasoline as heating oils every week of the last three months.

A glut of gasoline led to gas wars in Michigan and Wisconsin that have resulted in prices seven cents a gallon lower than sourrounding states, the OEP said.

"The new quotas will bring heating oils from the Virgin Islands into East Coast ports," a spokesman for the

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Postal workers have voted to accept conciliation board proposals and have rejected by a narrow margin a recommendation by their national negotiators to turn down the proposed terms.

Results of the balloting announced today by union leaders show that 10,128 full-time and 1,089 part-time postal workers went against their committee recommendation.

Voting for the negotiating committee suggestion were 9,047 full-time workers and 432 part-time employees.

Young Firing Upheld

A majority decision by a three-man board of reference has upheld the Sept. 8 firing of Campbell River high school principal John Young.

John Laxton, counsel for Young, promptly said it was most likely the decision would be appealed.

Young, who has been providing a free ombudsman service in Campbell River since he was dismissed, says he is looking for a new job.

A lengthy set of reasons for the board's decision, which was opposed by Lake Cowichan schoolteacher member Robert Wilson, was submitted to Laxton, school board lawyer J. S. Clyne and the department of education.

Adam Robertson, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, which financed Young's appeal, said if Young wanted to pursue the appeal further his request would be considered by the federation executive next weekend.

Young's first reaction to the decision was:

"Obviously I am not guilty of any misconduct or neglect of duty. I had every expectation that the decision would have been in my favor."

Young would not comment

Logging Labelled Salmon Killer

Ten local organizations have joined together to assist the Save Our Salmon Association in its fight for the survival of the Pacific salmon threatened by coastal logging operations on Vancouver Island.

In telegrams sent today jointly to federal environmental Minister Jack Davis and B.C. Resource Minister Bob Williams, they urge immediate action to stop the devastation of hundreds of streams and rivers on the Island.

Davis is asked to abolish the "presently prevailing practice of leniency towards transgressions against the Fisheries Act," such as yarding across streams, driving motorized vehicles across creeks and leaving debris and stumps in rivers.

It asks that "all laws safeguarding our fish resource be supported by strict enforcement.

Williams is asked to revise the existing guide lines for logging operations to incorporate adequate provisions for the preservation of fish streams. This would include leaving a belt of trees along creeks and rivers and controlling cutting operations on salmon stream watersheds.

In addition, the two governments are urged to co-operate on all matters regarding fish preservation and to undertake a detailed survey of salmon streams in B.C.

The province and Ottawa are also asked to undertake a stream clean up under the summer works program. The costs of such a program to be borne equally by the federal environmental department, the B.C. department of recreation and conservation and the forest industry.

The Save Our Salmon Association is composed of commercial fishermen.

Organizations supporting the association are: Amalgamated Conservation Society, Federation of B.C. Naturalists; James Bay Anglers Association; Sierra Club of Victoria; Victoria SPEC; Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association; Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs; United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union; Victoria-Sooke-Sidney; Victoria Canoe Club; Windsor Park Neighbourhood Group.

Mike Hill of Ucluelet, secretary, said other organizations on the mainland are expected to join in the fight for a new deal for B.C. fisheries resources.

Public action to stop damage to salmon streams is sparked by logging operations in the Staghorn Creek and Indian River area, near Tofino-Ucluelet.

The rivers and creeks were once choked with fish, but logging operations now have seriously depleted the spawning grounds of the salmon according to Hill.

"You cut down trees along stream banks and that's all you will get out of the land for another seventy years," he said. "But if the streams are protected, they will produce tens of thousands of salmon year after year."

"It's incredible how we have tolerated for so many years such waste," he added. "Fish are not only important to man but to other life forms. We are destroying a bountiful resource."

Turner Defends Economy: 'Strong Despite Setbacks'

Times News Service

Smarting from Opposition attacks on the high rate of unemployment shown in newly-released figures, Finance Minister John Turner told the Commons Tuesday that the Canadian economy is basically strong, despite a "temporary pause" in growth last year.

Turner confessed that he was "disturbed and disappointed" by the figures but he laid the blame for them indirectly to crop problems and strikes late in 1972.

Because of these problems, the rate of increase in national output declined, the merchandise trade balance deteriorated, unemployment increased and prices rose sharply, he said.

To opposition cries of "fairy tale," Turner said indications are that the economy is recovering — the rate of price increases has slowed, industrial production has "rebounded sharply," labor income and consumer spending are up and the trade picture has improved dramatically.

Turner's speech was delayed while Liberals, New Democrats and Social Crediters banded together to vote down a Conservative motion that the House adjourn debate on the Throne Speech so that an increase in old-age pensions could be considered immediately.

The motion was defeated 154-104 with five members absent from the House.

NDP support of the motion would have meant its success with the present House standing — Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 15, Independent 2.

Later, Conservative speakers accused the NDP of abandoning their principles to support the Liberal government.

But Ed Nelson (NDP-Burnaby-Seymour) countered that the Conservatives would be even quicker to jump between the sheets in a marriage of convenience because of "their lust for power."

Speaking to reporters, veteran New Democrat and higher-pension advocate Stanley Knowles lashed out at the Conservative motion:

"It was a farce and it comes from a party that refused to agree to $150 a month for the old-age pensioners, has refused to say where it stands, and we think that this was a vote that was just designed to mislead the old-age pensioners, that it was just fun and games and playing fast and loose."

Since the government did not have pension-increase leg-

FOOD PRICES TAKE MASSIVE JUMP IN U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Wholesale farm product prices in the U.S. went up 5.7 per cent in December, a 68.4 per cent rate of rise on an annual basis and their largest one-month increase in 26 years, the labor department said Tuesday.

The massive food price rise, which the department blamed "chiefly" on "unusual weather patterns," drove the over-all wholesale price index upward by a seasonally adjusted 1.6 per cent for the month, or a 19.2 per cent annual rate, the most it has gone up in any month since 1951.

Consumer hopes for a slowdown in food price inflation in 1973 have been further dimmed by a new government forecast that prices in the first six months of the year will rise 50 per cent faster than predicted earlier.

INCENTIVES GET NOD

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Tuesday that while the New Democratic Party government hopes to get a greater share of the profits from mining in the province, it will not forget that incentives are necessary for mineral exploration.

"We realize that the hope of the jackpot is the catalyst that urges people on in exploration and we do not wish to destroy this incentive," he told the annual meeting of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

"But since the minerals belong to the people we feel that they are not getting their proper share of the jackpot."

The chamber was told by retiring president E. H. Caldwell that mineral production in British Columbia is heading for a record in 1973 after setting one in 1972.

He said preliminary provincial government figures indicate mineral production in 1972 was $631 million, a 20-per-cent increase over 1971.

A further production increase this year is indicated by a full year's production by six large mines which started operation in 1972.

Canadian mining as a whole also had record production, he said, but dividends dropped 24 per cent from 1971 and a number of companies are operating at a loss.

Lumber Hikes 'Criminal'

Highways Minister Robert Strachan has termed lumber price increases over the last year "criminally irresponsible" and warned private industry to expect economic controls if the trend continues.

In a speech at the Empress on Tuesday, Strachan said the lumber industry is taking advantage of a good market and the increases have nothing to do with the "puny" wage increase last granted to the International Woodworkers of America union.

He quoted a Victoria Times story, saying that lumber prices have risen by between 30 and 70 per cent over the last year and there have been 13 price increases in at least one type of lumber in the year.

Strachan said that the IWA settlement added only 15 cents to the cost of 1,000 feet of lumber.

"And I suggest that that is criminal irresponsibility on the part of the major industry of this province to subject this province to that kind of price increase . . ."

He said it is especially bad at a time when there is a housing shortage and at a time when the forest industry's "profit picture is higher than it's been for years."

The minister said that "if this sort of price increases continue, you'll be faced inevitably with price controls and wage controls."

"But I suggest to you that if we get to the point of wage and price controls, it can't stop there.

"If we have wage and price controls, you then must also have profit controls, you must also have interest controls, and you must have export-import controls.

"And I say to you that the lumber industry of British Columbia is driving us up that road to compulsory regimentation much faster than the IWA or this socialist government is doing," the minister said.

He said the kind of price increase experienced in lumber sales is "the kind of luxury, the kind of medicine that will be fatal.

"It won't be the socialist medicine that will be fatal. It will be the kind of private enterprise medicine that will be fatal because we simply can't afford the luxury of that kind of freedom any more," Strachan said.

The minister added that it is neither the intention or the wish of the NDP government to have economic controls of the kind he described, but "there has to be someone in the driver's seat."

Obfuscation Official Takes Over

Washington Post

ZIEGLER
. . . new mouthpiece?

WASHINGTON — Ronald L. Ziegler, 33-year-old press secretary to the president, has emerged in top position after an internal power struggle over reorganization of the White House public relations machinery.

An announcement of Ziegler's new authority as the president's principal adviser on information policy is expected in the near future. He will also continue as White House spokesman.

Herbert G. Klein, the administration's 54 - year - old communications director, is expected to leave the government in the relatively near future.

After last November's election it was announced that Klein would continue in office into the second term. But he made no secret of his intention to stay only for a limited period. He is one of the president's long time associates.

"I haven't determined when I'm going to leave, or what I'm going to do, so it is basically the same thing I've talked about before," Klein said.

"The president has asked me to stay on. I have no immediate plans to make a change. I haven't made any determination, except that I don't expect to stay indefinitely."

Ziegler is expected to be in full charge not only of the White House press operation, but of Klein's office, or what remains of it, as well.

The chief question that has not been answered is where Ken W. Clawson, Klein's deputy, fits into the new scheme of things. Clawson is expected to remain in the administration, possibly as head of the old Klein office in the executive office building but under Ziegler.

In giving new power to Ziegler, the president is following a pattern already established of strengthening the hands of the small group of close associates in the White House.

The group includes H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman. Ziegler, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger are the only officials who have easy access to the president's office and see him on a daily basis.

Nevertheless, in giving Ziegler new authority President Nixon is turning full circle from his plan of four years ago when he said he would give no one the title of press secretary.

At first, Nixon described Ziegler as a "spokesman" only, but after a short time he relented and named him press secretary.

As vice-president, Nixon had watched President Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, gather power into his hands, and Nixon had resented it. As president, he made it clear that he wanted no press secretary with such power and wanted no one in the White House acting for him the way either Hagerty or Sherman Adams did for President Eisenhower.

Adams combined the authority of both a Haldeman and an Ehrlichman and ran the White House machinery as a chief of staff to the president until Adams's fall from grace following disclosures that he had accepted gifts from outsiders.

Although Ziegler is gaining new authority, his conduct of the press office is running into increasing criticism from newsmen. Particularly since the election he has been more close-mouthed than formerly.

He has increasingly turned over the chore of the daily press briefings to his deputy, Gerald L. Warren, who has been authorized to say very little.

Monday Warren declined to answer almost all questions asked him, even as to the president's plans for his 60th birthday Tuesday.

"Tomorrow is his 60th birthday, and I just don't know exactly where he will have dinner with his family on that occasion," Warren said in reply to question.

"Are you confident that tomorrow is his 60th birthday?" a reporter asked.

"Supremely," Warren replied.

For ten days or more reporters have asked for a breakdown of mail, pro and con, to the president on the Vietnam bombing operation. Each time they were asked, Ziegler or Warren would promise vaguely to supply the information.

Asked Monday if he had come up with the mail count yet, Warren replied: "No, we haven't."

"We are getting no information and haven't for the last week on any subject," a reporter said to Warren. He made no comment.

Egg-Crate Radio Reaching Out To the Blind

By GEORGE N. BUKOTA

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Volunteers and hand-be-down equipment have transformed a suburban Spokane basement into a tiny radio station that serves as a unique broadcast training ground for the blind.

The basement is cold. Cardboard egg-carton dividers serve as soundproofing. And the 10-watt transmitter covers only a 10-mile radius from an antenna mounted on a telephone pole in the back yard.

About 50 volunteer announcers and programmers ranging from housewives to blind college students have worked at the station at one time or another since we began," says George Cole, whose basement houses KPBX-FM.

LESSONS ARE FREE

With support from Spokane's Blind Steering Committee, Cole started with a class of six blind persons learning broadcasting in the free lessons he gives to volunteers. He already has trained 10 blind persons and now is working with five blind girls, all students at Whitworth College here who probably will work at KPBX when they finish their training.

"The blind are great to teach because they've got such well-developed memories," Cole said. "You tell them something once, and they retain it."

Planning for the station—featuring a wide variety of music and commentary, much of it produced by blind volunteers—began more or less as a lark.

"It took us about a year and a half from the time we actually sat down and decided we wanted a radio station 'til we were on the air," Cole said. "With donated legal and engineering help and donated and used equipment, we put the station on the air for under $2,000."

Ex-FBI Agents Used to Track Absent Fathers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state social services department is hiring former agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to track down fathers who desert their families and force them onto the welfare rolls.

The department said a recent survey indicated that in 87 per cent of all cases on the rolls of its aid-to-dependent-children program, the father is alive but does not live with the family.

Fuel Oil, Gasoline Prices Up

Times News Services

Canadian oil refineries were assured today by federal energy minister Donald MacDonald that their future needs will be met even if it means limiting oil exports to the U.S. which is now suffering a severe fuel shortage.

MacDonald emphasized however that there is no evidence Canada is faced with an imminent petroleum shortage and there are no immediate plans to impose controls on exports to the U.S.

Meanwhile, the White House has authorized more than a fourfold increase in heating oil imports to ease the fuel shortages threatening a six-state region of the midwest.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness said that the lifting of the import quotas would mean some 252 million additional gallons of No. 2 heating oil would become available to most of the nation over the next 90 days.

Major airlines rationed their jet fuel at Kennedy International Airport today because of what industry officials called a "very serious" shortage.

The shortage was attributed to a cut in deliveries to airlines by major petroleum companies straining to meet demands posted by the fuel shortage.

Because of the shortage at Kennedy, the airlines most affected are taking on extra-heavy loads at other cities before flying to New York so they have enough fuel for flights to their next destination.

While the weather took its share of the blame, the OEP laid at least part of the responsibility on Midwest refineries it said persisted in producing gasoline at a time when heating oils began to run short.

The OEP said some 70 refineries in nine states have been producing twice as much gasoline as heating oils every week of the last three months.

A glut of gasoline led to gas wars in Michigan and Wisconsin that have resulted in prices seven cents a gallon lower than sourrounding states, the OEP said.

"The new quotas will bring heating oils from the Virgin Islands into East Coast ports," a spokesman for the LOG JAM ON INDIAN RIVER near Tofino is one of several which clog the once free flowing salmon-producing waterway. Tributaries of the river are also filled with debris and stumps from logging operations and fish are no longer able to reach their spawning grounds.

Imperial Oil has increased wholesale gasoline prices one cent per gallon and wholesale fuel oil two cents per gallon effective this morning and other oil companies indicated they will follow suit.

Victoria Imperial fuel distributors this morning increased heating oil prices to 25.3 cents per gallon from 23.3 and gas stations are expected to increase their prices one cent per gallon Thursday.

The Automotive Retailers' Association is meeting this afternoon to consider its reaction but secretary-manager J. Lloyd Kinneard said service stations would have little choice but to increase pump prices.

Prices fluctuate from station to station but average price in Victoria is 52.9 cents regular and 57.9 cents premium, one cent above the average Vancouver price.

Pump price increases would take effect immediately if approved as expected this afternoon.

13-CENT INCREASE

An arbitration board has awarded Petrofina Canada an increase in the wellhead price to 16 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, up from 13 cents, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Petrofina sells to Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd., B.C.'s major transporter of natural gas. Westcoast in turn sells to B.C. Hydro, among others.

Customers of B.C. Hydro pay $1.20 per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas. For Westcoast to increase its prices to B.C. Hydro would require negotiations and hearings before the National Energy Board.

B.C. Hydro has a long-term supply contract with Westcoast at a fixed price running until 1987.

Imperial oil announced Tuesday it will pay 20 cents more per barrel for crude oil.

As a result, it will raise the wholesale price of gas one cent per gallon and heating oil, diesel and turbo fuel two cents a gallon across Canada.

In addition, in western Canada only, the price of industrial and consumer gas will go up two cents a gallon wholesale.

Industrial gasoline is sold to major industries in bulk. Consumer gasoline is sold for other than highway use. Consumer sales include those to farmers, marinas and small commercial customers.

The selective increases brought criticism from Kinneard who said all wholesale prices should be identical.

DIFFERENT PRICES

"Service station operators cannot understand why the same product should have different wholesale prices for different customers," he said.

"Selective price increases are discriminatory. We feel gasoline should sell at one wholesale price to everyone and let marketing conditions govern the retail price."

He added that Imperial's increased costs for crude oil amounted to little more than one-half a cent per gallon and they were recovering the cost at a rate of a cent a gallon.

"That's a pretty healthy recovery rate."

Imperial is paying 20 cents more per barrel containing 35 gallons of crude oil.

Crude oil costs vary from $2.39 per barrel to $3.19 per barrel depending upon production costs but all will go up the identical 20 cents.

Imperial Oil said there were many reasons for the wholesale price increases.

These include:

The growing shortage of world supplies of oil;

Higher crude oil prices being paid outside North America;

Increased taxes on oil com-

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Postal workers have voted to accept conciliation board proposals and have rejected by a narrow margin a recommendation by their national negotiators to turn down the proposed terms.

Results of the balloting announced today by union leaders show that 10,128 full-time and 1,089 part-time postal workers went against their committee recommendation.

Voting for the negotiating committee suggestion were 9,047 full-time workers and 432 part-time employees.

Young Firing Upheld

A majority decision by a three-man board of reference has upheld the Sept. 8 firing of Campbell River high school principal John Young.

John Laxton, counsel for Young, promptly said it was most likely the decision would be appealed.

Young, who has been providing a free ombudsman service in Campbell River since he was dismissed, says he is looking for a new job.

A lengthy set of reasons for the board's decision, which was opposed by Lake Cowichan schoolteacher member Robert Wilson, was submitted to Laxton, school board lawyer J. S. Clyne and the department of education.

Adam Robertson, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, which financed Young's appeal, said if Young wanted to pursue the appeal further his request would be considered by the federation executive next weekend.

Young's first reaction to the decision was:

"Obviously I am not guilty of any misconduct or neglect of duty. I had every expectation that the decision would have been in my favor."

Young would not comment

Logging Labelled Salmon Killer

Ten local organizations have joined together to assist the Save Our Salmon Association in its fight for the survival of the Pacific salmon threatened by coastal logging operations on Vancouver Island.

In telegrams sent today jointly to federal environmental Minister Jack Davis and B.C. Resource Minister Bob Williams, they urge immediate action to stop the devastation of hundreds of streams and rivers on the Island.

Davis is asked to abolish the "presently prevailing practice of leniency towards transgressions against the Fisheries Act," such as yarding across streams, driving motorized vehicles across creeks and leaving debris and stumps in rivers.

It asks that "all laws safeguarding our fish resource be supported by strict enforcement.

Williams is asked to revise the existing guide lines for logging operations to incorporate adequate provisions for the preservation of fish streams. This would include leaving a belt of trees along creeks and rivers and controlling cutting operations on salmon stream watersheds.

In addition, the two governments are urged to co-operate on all matters regarding fish preservation and to undertake a detailed survey of salmon streams in B.C.

The province and Ottawa are also asked to undertake a stream clean up under the summer works program. The costs of such a program to be borne equally by the federal environmental department, the B.C. department of recreation and conservation and the forest industry.

The Save Our Salmon Association is composed of commercial fishermen.

Organizations supporting the association are: Amalgamated Conservation Society; Federation of B.C. Naturalists; James Bay Anglers Association; Sierra Club of Victoria; Victoria SPEC; Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association; Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs; Victoria-Sooke-Sidney local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union; Victoria Canoe Club; Windsor Park Neighbourhood Group.

Mike Hill of Ucluelet, secretary, said other organizations on the mainland are expected to join in the fight for a new deal for B.C. fisheries resources.

Public action to stop damage to salmon streams is sparked by logging operations in the Staghorn Creek and Indian River area, near Tofino-Ucluelet.

The rivers and creeks were once choked with fish, but logging operations now have seriously depleted the spawning grounds of the salmon according to Hill.

"You cut down trees along stream banks and that's all you will get out of the land for another seventy years," he said. "But if the streams are protected, they will produce tens of thousands of salmon year after year."

"It's incredible how we have tolerated for so many years such waste," he added. "Fish are not only important to man but to other life forms. We are destroying a bountiful resource."

Turner Defends Economy: 'Strong Despite Setbacks'

Times News Service

Smarting from Opposition attacks on the high rate of unemployment shown in newly-released figures, Finance Minister John Turner told the Commons Tuesday that the Canadian economy is basically strong, despite a "temporary pause" in growth last year.

Turner confessed that he was "disturbed and disappointed" by the figures but he laid the blame for them indirectly to crop problems and strikes late in 1972.

Because of these problems, the rate of increase in national output declined, the merchandise trade balance deteriorated, unemployment increased and prices rose sharply, he said.

To opposition cries of "fairy tale," Turner said indications are that the economy is recovering — the rate of price increases has slowed, industrial production has "rebounded sharply," labor income and consumer spending are up and the trade picture has improved dramatically.

Turner's speech was delayed while Liberals, New Democrats and Social Crediters banded together to vote down a Conservative motion that the House adjourn debate on the Throne Speech so that an increase in old-age pensions could be considered immediately.

The motion was defeated 154-104 with five members absent from the House.

NDP support of the motion would have meant its success with the present House standing — Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 15, Independent 2.

Later Conservative speakers accused the NDP of abandoning their principles to support the Liberal government.

But Ed Nelson (NDP-Burnaby-Seymour) countered that the Conservatives would be even quicker to jump between the sheets in a marriage of convenience because of "their lust for power."

Speaking to reporters, veteran New Democrat and higher-pension advocate Stanley Knowles lashed out at the Conservative motion:

"It was a farce and it comes from a party that refused to agree to $150 a month for the old-age pensioners, has refused to say where it stands, and we think that this was a vote that was just designed to mislead the old-age pensioners, that it was just fun and games and playing fast and loose."

Since the government did not have pension-increase leg-

FOOD PRICES TAKE MASSIVE JUMP IN U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Wholesale farm product prices in the U.S. went up 5.7 per cent in December, a 68.4 per cent rate of rise on an annual basis and their largest one-month increase in 26 years, the labor department said Tuesday.

The massive food price rise, which the department blamed "chiefly" on "unusual weather patterns," drove the over-all wholesale price index upward by a seasonally adjusted 1.6 per cent for the month, or a 19.2 per cent annual rate, the most it has gone up in any month since 1951.

Consumer hopes for a slowdown in food price inflation in 1973 have been further dimmed by a new government forecast that prices in the first six months of the year will rise 50 per cent faster than predicted earlier.

INCENTIVES GET NOD

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Tuesday that while the New Democratic Party government hopes to get a greater share of the profits from mining in the province, it will not forget that incentives are necessary for mineral exploration.

"We realize that the hope of the jackpot is the catalyst that urges people on in exploration and we do not wish to destroy this incentive," he told the annual meeting of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

"But since the minerals belong to the people we feel that they are not getting their proper share of the jackpot."

The chamber was told by retiring president E. H. Caldwell that mineral production in British Columbia is heading for a record in 1973 after setting one in 1972.

He said preliminary provincial government figures indicate mineral production in 1972 was $631 million, a 20-per-cent increase over 1971.

A further production increase this year is indicated by a full year's production by six large mines which started operation in 1972.

Canadian mining as a whole also had record production, he said, but dividends dropped 24 per cent from 1971 and a number of companies are operating at a loss.

Lumber Hikes 'Criminal'

Highways Minister Robert Strachan has termed lumber price increases over the last year "criminally irresponsible" and warned private industry to expect economic controls if the trend continues.

In a speech at the Empress on Tuesday, Strachan said the lumber industry is taking advantage of a good market and the increases have nothing to do with the "puny" wage increase last granted to the International Woodworkers of America union.

He quoted a Victoria Times story, saying that lumber prices have risen by between 30 and 70 per cent over the last year and there have been 13 price increases in at least one type of lumber in the year.

Strachan said that the IWA settlement added only 15 cents to the cost of 1,000 feet of lumber.

"And I suggest that that is criminal irresponsibility on the part of the major industry of this province to subject this province to that kind of price increase."

He said it is especially bad at a time when there is a housing shortage and at a time when the forest industry's "profit picture is higher than it's been for years."

The minister said that if this sort of price increases continue, you'll be faced inevitably with price controls and wage controls."

"But I suggest to you that if we get to the point of wage and price controls, it can't stop there.

"If we have wage and price controls, you then must also have profit controls, you must also have interest controls and you must have export-import controls.

"And I say to you that the lumber industry of British Columbia is driving us up that road to compulsory regimentation much faster than the IWA or this socialist government is doing," the minister said.

He said the kind of price increase experienced in lumber sales is "the kind of luxury, the kind of medicine that will be fatal.

"It won't be the socialist medicine that will be fatal. It will be the kind of private enterprise medicine that will be fatal because we simply can't afford the luxury of that kind of freedom any more," Strachan said.

The minister added that it is neither the intention or the wish of the NDP government to have economic controls of the kind he described, but "there has to be someone in the driver's seat."

Another Defeat For Young

on whether he considered the hearing fair.

The board decision, received my Campbell River school district Tuesday, came five weeks after th eterminaation of a 10-day hearing which heard 11 witnesses and received 103 documentary exhibits.

The school board based its dismissal of Young on formal grounds of "misconduct and neglect of duty," which it backed up with 10 pages of reasons reaching back to Young's appointment in 1965.

Central to the hearing was a set of rules imposed by the board on Young's school during the summer holidays.

Young was suspended before the start of school last fall, although he had agreed to impose the rules.

He was dismissed a few days later.

Campbell River high school under Young's principalship was based on a "collegiate" philosophy under which students were encouraged to adopt "freedom with responsibility."

The philosophy encountered problems with the Public Schools Act, particularly with regulations governing "regular" attendance.

panies imposed by the Alberta government effective Jan. 1.

Increased costs of exploration and development.

He said the increase appears to be in line with a general increase in industrial costs "and it was probably to be expected."

Macdonald said the increase would appear to involve "cost recovery" as opposed to any "structural change."

Imperial Oil chairman W. O. Twaits said in Toronto said the increases reflected the increased costs of obtaining crude oil.

"In addition, inflationary effects on the costs of new equipment, plant maintenance, contract labor and materials plus the costs of more stringent environmental reglations have to be met by the company," he said.

"Such costs cannot be absorbed if the company is to be able to attract the capital required to finance the developments which it must undertake to provide its share of future Canadian oil energy needs."

He said that while oil wholesale prices, including the present increases, had gone up 16.8 per cent since 1967, the cost of living had gone up 21.1 per cent, wages 45 per cent and electricity 24 per cent.

In Victoria some gas stations reporting prices two cents above the current Vancouver level indicated they would not increase their prices. The price 53.9 cents regular and 58.9 premium will become common for Imperial stations.

Some stations will be selling at the Vancouver average of 52.9 and 57.9.

Thieves Take Cash, Liquor

SOVIET ARMS FOR SYRIA

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has completed a massive airlift of arms to Syria believed to have included an unspecified number of MiG-21 aircraft to replace losses suffered recently by the Syrian air force, diplomatic sources disclosed Tuesday.

The airlift was carried out during November and December and involved roughly 40 medium- and long-range Soviet transport planes, including Antonov-22s capable of carrying 220,000-pound payloads each, the sources said.

More than a dozen Syrian MiG-21 jets were reported to have been shot down in sporadic Israeli-Syrian aerial battles during the past five months.

The airlift was described as the most massive Soviet shipment by air of weapons to Syria. The Soviets had airlifted weapons to Syria during September and early October using 20 or so medium-range Antonov-12 transport planes.

About 150 new Soviet military advisers were reported to have been flown to Syria in the September-October airlift but there was disagreement among Western experts on whether that shipment included any important new missile systems.

The arms shipments to Syria indicated Moscow's continued interest in bolstering its position in the Arab world. There was speculation among Western sources that the latest shipments also may have included sophisticated low altitude SAM-3 anti-aircraft missiles in anticipation of major Israeli strikes.

According to official Israeli accounts, Syria has lost 45 aircraft in aerial flights since 1967, nearly half of those shot down during a string of clashes in the last five months.

islation ready, said Knowles, an adjournment would simply have meant stopping debate for the day and going through the same farce the next day.

Reilly also accused Prime Minister Trudeau of delivering a "disputatious, discursive, didactic diatribe" and establishing "a new low in gutter politics."

Turner said he soon would produce a new budget with major measures to reduce unemployment, encourage steady, balanced economic growth and discourage high inflation.

But he gave no indication of tax cuts and both New Democrat and Conservative spokesmen described his speech as virtually meaningless.

Energy Shortage in U.S.

Office of Emergency Preparedness said.

"Some of this fuel will make its way to the midwest, but its primary purpose will be to divert Gulf Coast shipments of heating oils to the Midwest that had previously been committed to Eastern customers."

The midwest shortage was triggered by a cold wave that shows no signs of abating, though it did turn into a dry cold that allowed some harvesting of corn and grains in Nebraska and Iowa.

Drier weather also allowed more barge and truck shipments of heating oil into the Midwest, though a shortage of diesel fuel tied up barges on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers that had been contracted to carry heating oils into the Midwest.

"These same barges were to be used to transport wheat out of the Midwest for sale to the Soviet Union," an OEP spokesman declared. "We don't know when these barges will begin to move freely. A lot depends on the weather."

The Federal Power Commission told the OEP that shortages of natural gas had spread from the Midwest into parts of New Mexico, Arizona and California as the cold wave spread into these same southwestern regions.

"El Paso natural gas is cutting back on customers in this region that can use alternate fuels," an FPC official said.

More snow and cold weather is on tap today for the already shivering U.S. Atlantic coast and Southland as the second major storm in three days rumbled over the area.

Snow blanketed much of Northern California and sprawled through the Central and Southern Intermountain region over the central and Southern Rockies and into the western portion of the central and southern plains.

Thousands of Atlanta residents cooked in fondue pots, dined by candlelight and shivered through another night of subfreezing temperatures without power Tuesday night and the weatherman offered little hope of relief.

Ice storm warnings were posted for south-central Texas and portions of southeastern Texas while travellers' advisories were in effect for most of the remainder of southern Texas.

Freezing rain was expected to move eastward today to plague the Gulf Coast states.

Snow and freezing rain resulted in advisories for western Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas.

And, in Parchman, Miss., three convicts who broke out of the state penitentiary, but apparently missed connections with a getaway car turned themselves in after braving freezing temperatures for five hours.

"They were iced over from their knees down when they gave up," a prison spokesman said.

the weather

The current cold spell over the southern half of B.C. has lasted for a full week and has set many record minimum temperatures from Vancouver Island to the Kootenays and north to the Cariboo. However milder weather is in sight and a storm some 600 miles southwest of Victoria will bring clouds to the coast this evening. Snow flurries will spread inland Thursday morning to be followed on the coast first by wet snow and then by rain. Icy winds at or near gale force will continue to blow out of mainland inlets for the next 24 hours at least.
